BRITISH ATTACHE TAKES OWN LIFE

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Aug. 12.—John Hall Dowling, British consular charge d'affaires here, was found dead in his bedroom yesterday morning with an automatic pistol near his right temple, a bullet in his side.

On a table nearby was a letter for him which apparently he had been reading. His clothes were neatly folded and an album of clippings and photographs lay beside it. There was nothing in the letter addressed to his wife in London.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith leaves San Francisco by airplane to escape arrest in connection with a murder in which her sweetheart, Tony, is implicated. She had not known that he was a gunman. Evelyn Howard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii, is aboard. She is enroute to New York to live with her wealthy aunt, Mrs. Allison Carstairs, whom she has never seen. The plane crashes and all but Fanchon are killed. Grasping the opportunity to start life anew, Fanchon goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn. Mrs. Carstairs affection wins her heart. At Southampton, where she arrived on her son, Collin, Mrs. Carstairs warns Fanchon not to take him seriously. He arrives and accuses Fanchon of being there under false pretenses. Collin objects to "Evelyn". Fanchon learns that Evelyn had indirect affairs with a naval officer and a native.

CHAPTER XV

"I have nothing to say in my defense," Fanchon went on, "except that it is possible that appearances were against me. Possible that I did not really know of Commander —," she hesitated again, remembered and went on. "Commander Gaines' marriage, after all; possible that my interest in the native you speak of was what I said it to be."

She was silent a moment, remembering all she knew of native life and character and of the primitive standards which had before this arisen between the children of the island sons and alien occupiers of the Islands. "I am not pleading for myself," she continued, "but for, as you put it, the benefit of the doubt."

"You mentioned," she said, smiling, suddenly, Hawaiian moons and susceptible youth. You forgot to mention loneliness. A girl, alone. Is it likely that when offer of haven and harbor and affection were held out to that girl that she should refuse . . .? Or that she should, as she would think, seek to jeopardize herself in any confusion? What, at its worst, was only folly?

After a moment, fascinated against his will by her smile, by the warmth in her eyes and her voice, Collin nodded:

"You have the there. . . . Almost —you have convinced me. Let it go, then, as folly. I understand folly. What does not, grown to man's estate? But what alienated me was your attitude."

She said, swiftly:

"Your knowledge of my attitude. Only from my letters. Letters are dangerous, they mislead. I have never been," she laughed a little, "a ready letter writer. I am sorry. I would like you to know that I care for your mother very much. I never knew mine," she added, unconscious of where her words were leading her.

"What!" asked Collin in blank amazement.

Fanchon flushed scarlet. She said, hurriedly:

"I mean . . . it has been some years since she died. Before that I was a child, busy with the adjustments of childhood, of growing up. I never cams close to her. Only since her death, and that of my father, have I felt the need of her. Of someone to whom I belonged. I am putting this very badly," she said hopelessly.

He was suddenly gentle with her "No, I think I understand."

Fanchon took her feet.

"I must," she said, "get back to the house and dress for dinner, Mr. Carstairs—"

"Collin, please. We may be cousins, but we are cousins," he said, rising.

"I am not your enemy," she said, so sweetly, so simply that his heart milagore him and he took a step toward her, "even if you are mine, Collin, if you like, I will talk to your mother about—what has happened."

"That is generous of you. No, I she has not spoken of it herself, perhaps she would rather not. Perhaps she wants you to begin all over again," Collin said, a little awkwardly.

Fanchon remembered certain words of Jennie Carstairs, words actually urging her to begin all over, making a clean sweep of her years which lay behind. Now she knew what they had meant. Those in the person of Fanchon Meredith as well as for Fanchon, too, was young and Fanchon had loaned herself to Tony and Evelyn Howard and with the consequences of evil appearances and circumstantial evidence.

Collin Carstairs held out his hand. His dark eyes smiled down into hers.

"I believe you," he said, slowly, "whether it is because you are so darned beautiful or not, I don't know; I do know that you are not all like your letters. Your letters seemed — insincere. You do not. Yes, I believe you. You may call it —armistice?"

"Armed truce?" she laughed and laid her slender, golden hand in his.

Jennie Carstairs, coming softly through the garden, saw them standing there and her face lighted. She came forward with a soft exclamation of pleasure.

"Collin, dear, darling! and Evelyn! You've met then. I'm so glad!"

"So am I — " said Collin. His arm went about his mother, he bent and kissed her dark head to kiss her cheek. But his hand still held Fanchon fast. Fanchon had an intuition. She said, not trying to free herself:

"Aunt Jennie . . . I told Collin just now I wouldn't speak of something to you. But I'd rather. I have talked to him about it. As I have explained my reasons for not speaking, at least . . . " she looked at him briefly, "he has explained them to me. I — I'd like you to know that all I have told him he believes. That there isn't anything I should tell you, not really. Nothing that matters. Nothing that would hurt you."

"My dear," said Jennie Carstairs. Together, hands fast, the three went back toward the house.

That was the beginning of Fanchon's happy summer. Collin, cancelling whatever other plans he may have had, was at "Dunoross" all season long for those occasions on which he went to town on business. He taught Fanchon to ride and to golf. She was already able to swim and her prowess in the surf amazed him.

But the bit of ocean which surrounded Southampton was child's play to Fanchon after her years on Hawaiian beaches, riding the great breakers to shore. He improved her tennis game and took her to dinners and dances. They were always together, to the entertainment of the colony and to the discomfort of a great many marriageable maidens whose eyes and hearts were set upon the conquest of Collin.

Nor did Fanchon lack for attendance. She had more young men about her doorstep than she knew what to do with. She had everything in her favor. She was young, she was beautiful, she was intelligent; she was a good sport and she was backed by the Carstairs millions and the unassailable Carstairs social position.

ALWAYS HANDY

"I'd love to go to a nice quiet place for my holiday," said one of the girls, "but one doesn't dare isolate one's self completely." "But my dear," said another, "you can't be really isolated nowadays. You're always within a stone's throw of a telephone, you know. One simply can't be without that!"

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IS LAID

Crown Lays Charge After Car Strikes a Little Boy

Brockville, Ont., Aug. 12.—Crown authorities having preferred a charge of criminal negligence against Lawren Fleming, of Rockbuck, Grenville County, in connection with a recent automobile accident there as a result of which Alton Boyd, a small boy, subsequently died in hospital here, a preliminary enquiry is to be held at Prescott tomorrow. Midnight Tatoo Features Siamese King's Departure

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—(CP)—Ottawa was treated to a "midnight tattoo" late last night, the occasion being the departure of Their Majesties, King Prajadipok and Queen Rambai of Siam, from Western Canada. Synchronising with this leave-taking was the departure of H.E. Excellency the Governor-General for Montreal, where he will receive the royal party from the Orient bit the Union Station for only a few minutes before that of the Earl of Bessborough.

Here for the state banquet to Their Majesties the King and Queen of Siam, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, and Mrs. Ferguson returned to Kemptville for a few hours' visit after the function.

The High Commissioner had nothing to say to newspapermen.

REPRESENT CANADA'S LEADER

A-1 Sign Co. Represent Outstanding in Outdoor Advertising

General outdoor signs attract and hold the attention of every passerby.

They suggest the product to the public when it would never have been thought of otherwise. Today the most prominent outdoor signs are the Claude Neon display advertising. But a short time ago Neon was unknown. Today embellished throughout the country it stands as symbolic of modern display lighting. It may be of interest to the reader to know that 95 per cent of the electricity which comes into the homes today is wasted in useless heat. When the electricity can be transformed into cold light such as the firefly uses one will be able to light the home for one twentieth of the present cost. Through the introduction of Neon a progressive step has been taken toward this end. The Neon light penetrates fog and haze to a much greater extent than any illumination yet perfected. In fact it has been said that "Neon tubes will replace the incandescent lamps."

What motorist isn't attracted at once to the Neon signs that meet his gaze when driving? These signs emblazon before the public the message in a beautiful and comprehensive manner. They are the "Signs Supreme" for the attractive and pleasing to the eye in color harmony and symmetry.

A-1 Sign C&F represent Claude Neon display advertising in this district. By way of completeness this firm is also equipped to do any and everything in the way of sign painting. Mr. Fred W. Smythe wishes to announce that he is especially prepared to handle all display card writing and decorating for Belleville merchants in connection with the Belleville Fair. One will find it advantageous to remind Mr. Smythe regarding any advertising in this connection. Do you know the approximate number of Neon Signs in Belleville?

$3.00 cash prize given daily for greatest correct answers to questions on these tickets. Call the above firm to assist you. (Seven in today's issue.)

With a sudden rush it occurred to Nan that a friend in a distant city was soon to be married. She hadn't a present, but then in a jiffy, but maybe, if she telephoned she'd understand. The two girls had a good talk over Long Distance. Eileen was delighted to hear her friend's voice, and promised to send her something for her linen whereabouts. Nan realized that call had saved her a friend.

RE-OPEN CHURCH AT MARMORA

Re-Decoration of Sacred Heart Church Completed

ARCHBISHOP SPOKE

Impressive Services On Sunday Largely Attended

Marmora, Aug. 13—The formal re-opening of the Sacred Heart Church at Marmora, following the completion of a beautiful scheme of redecoration and the installation of a new lighting system, took place at the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament on Sunday evening.

His Excellency Most Reverend M. J. O'Brien, co-adjutor Archbishop of Kingston, was present at this auspicious service and other sacred clergy were Right Rev. J. R. Nicholson, V.G., Belleville, Very Rev. Dean O'Riordan, Napanee, Very Rev. Dr. Byrne, Chancellor of the Diocese, Rev. M. J. O'Farrell, Stirling, Rev. C. P. O'Gorman, Marysville, Rev. Father Callaghan, Ebro, Rev. Father Shannon, Read, Rev. Father King, a visitor at Trenton, and Rev. Father Keeley, parish priest. The order of procession from the Presbytery to the church was Cross Bearer, Acolytes, First Communicants, Choir Leaders, Choir Girls, Holy Name Society, Altar Boys, Clergy and Archbishop.

Rev. Father Keeley having extended a cordial invitation to the public generally to be present, it was not surprising that the church should be well filled with its regular worshippers mingled with many of other Christian Communities.

Stirling Address

In the absence of the beautiful liturgy of the service Archbishop O'Brien delivered a very striking address. His first words were those of congratulation to pastor and flock for efforts put forth to bring about the redecoration. He felt that the forefathers of those in the congregation and the pioneer priests were looking down and praising God that each succeeding priest had done his duty. He was assured also that the present pastor was carrying on his duties. Then His Excellency had words of praise for the beautiful church property and the location of school and presbytery.

Archbishop O'Brien proceeding said, "On an occasion like this when a church has been redecorated and also when a new church is being opened, I feel our faiths call upon us beautifully. He then referred to the Lord ordaining the apostles. When a new church is consecrated or when a cemetery takes place how these words come home. "Lo I am with you always unto the consummation of the world." Changes take place in churches as buildings. One change will not take place. It has not taken place nor will it ever take place. There will be no change in doctrine. Holy Faith stands out in wonderful glory on an occasion as this."

The Archbishop next gave colorful interpretation of the three cardinal virtues, Faith, Hope and Charity.

Referring to the present trade depression the Archbishop emphatically declared: "There is one Consolidated Association we may well learn and that is for every man to love God and his neighbour. The trouble in the world today is due to too much selfishness being there." His Excellency closed his forty-five minutes address with references to the presence of Christ within the Church in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, the Sacrament of Penance and the need of more choosing a vocation within the Kingdom.

Improvements

A sketch of the improvements which occasioned Sunday's rejoicing and thanksgiving follows:

Upon entering the church now one's first impression is that of restfulness and peace. Then the harmony of the color scheme becomes apparent. The lowest part of the walls have been colored with a deep green of an unusual tint. The sheathed moulding which skirts the bottom of the beautiful stained glass windows and the beams of the ceiling are stained in mahogany color. Above the moulding the walls are an olive green while the ceiling is done in old ivory tint. At the lower edge of the olive green part of the walls, a very neat border in shades of brown and gold has been executed, while surmounting the olive green is a more elaborate border in shades of brown and green which blends splendidly with the color of the walls and the ceiling. The ceiling is in panels with a handsome narrow border around each panel. The front walls to the side of the Sanctuary are decorated with artistic reproductions of St. Gabriel and St. Michael.

Lighting Changed

The electric lighting has been changed. Whereas before it was emitted from globes attached up on right standards, now it will be diffused uniformly by all parts of the edifice from large frosted globes suspended from the ceiling. Completing the interior improvements the seats have been stained a mission oak color and varnished, and new linoleum has been laid in the aisles and other parts of the church not taken up with seating. A few other notes on the church are appended:

Since its erection in 1904 when its first pastor and founder as recorded on stone, was the late Rev. Thomas Murtagh, it has been regarded as an edifice of beauty. Its altar is most strikingly designed and furnished. The eastern window is of particular note, while the handsome rosette window in the west end was the gift to the Church of the Catholic Order of Foresters. One hundred pews provide accommodation for about five hundred worshippers, but there is room for extra seating when special occasions warrant. With the redecoration of its interior and its other improvements, the church may now rightly be classed among the most beautiful in this part of the province.

Baby Clinic Held By Marmora W.I.

Marmora, Aug. 14. — On Friday afternoon, August 7th the Marmora Women's Institute held its second Well Baby Clinic in the Public Library rooms. Five in July Miss Watt, B.N., of the Belleville S. and R. Co. Ltd., conducted the first clinic under the auspices of the Institute when eight mothers were in attendance with their babies. The August clinic indicated the increasing interest in this new health service, for on this occasion twenty babies and pre-school age children were weighed and inspected by the nurse in charge. It is very gratifying to note the excellent physical development of most of the children present and the records showed a satisfactory gain in weight of those enrolled at the July clinic.

There is no medical man in attendance at these clinics but Miss Watt already well known to Marmora school children and the public gives a free minded individual attention to each baby, answering the mother's questions and giving expert advice on the daily care and diet of the child. Where any defect is indicated or medical advice seems necessary the mother is referred to her own family physician.

The clinic proper being over a social half-hour is enjoyed and observed by ladies of the Institute. It is their intention to hold such a clinic every month with Miss Watt in charge. Future dates will be announced in the local news paper and all parents of babies and children under school age are invited to have them enrolled and kept in touch with this very worth while service which the Women's Institute freely offers.

A man should marry a girl near his own age, not one seven years.

—Maurice Chevalier.

CONFIRM GOLD STRIKE RUMOURS

Rich Gold Strike Made North of Sioux Lookout

Toronto, Aug. 13.—A special despatch to the Toronto Star from Sioux Lookout today says: "Rumors of a rich gold strike which have excited Sioux Lookout, were confirmed today by J. A. Munro who flew out from Red Lake with the tidings.

"A rich gold strike and discovery was recently made in Red Lake, just north of Long Lake, where two and four miles north of the Howey gold mines. The strike was made by Mr. Munro who flew from the property to Sioux Lookout yesterday.

"This new gold strike has been made on an island 14 miles long and two miles wide, situated four miles north of the Howey mines. The actual width of the vein is very much greater, only one wall is now exposed. Six pits have been sunk from one end of the island length for a distance of 750 feet, the shallowest pit being 8 feet deep and the deepest 15 feet in solid rock."

Clue to Fate of Missing Flyer?

Cleveland, O., Aug. 13—Edwin Thompson, president of the Transamerican Airlines, Inc., backers of the flight of Parker D. Aviators here were inclined to think that the object probably was part of a ship's rocket and had nothing to do with Cramer's plane.

DIX IN "PUBLIC DEFENDER" REVEALS UNUSUAL PLOT

The read for new story material and novel situations instituted by the producers of motion pictures has resulted in many unusual plot twists and angles.

The effect of this has been to improve film entertainment and consequently to elevate the screen to a commanding position where it may rightfully claim distinction among the expensive arts.

Radio pictures, among the most active in the picture field to create something new, has been singularly fortunate in developing a startling new dramatic theme in Richard Dix's "The Public Defender" which is scheduled to open at the Belle tomorrow for two days, matinee daily.

DIX WAR HERO

The picture presents Dix in another remarkable characterization—that of a returned war hero who has been so keyed up by the tenseness and excitement of his battle experiences that civil life is impossible for him.

Peace leaves him strangely disturbed and restless. He tries, like countless thousands of other veterans have done, to reconcile himself to the tame pursuits of ordinary business but he can't.

He must live within the shadows of danger. It is like a drug conquering his brain.

STARTS OWN WAR

There are no more wars, and he can not fight legitimately, so he organizes a unnitive campaign of his own against the business shysters and society swindlers who wreck banks, prey on the gullible and steal millions seemingly under the protection of the law.

To do this he leads a double life; he makes the rounds of his exclusive clubs as the natural self, a rich idle young man, searching information. At night he becomes a sinister avenger, descending on his victims and leaving a card reading: "Public Defender" to remind them of their ultimate fate.

With Dix in this unusual story are Shirley Grey, Wilbur Mack, Purnell Pratt, Allen Roscoe, Ruth Weston, Nella Walker, Paul Hurst, Boris Karloff and Edmund Breese.

A gorgeous and tuneful musical revue, "Angel Cake," Mirthey and Flippantics and a clever comedy skit, "Naggers Day of Rest," Paramount Sound News, which receives its first run Ontario exhibition at the Belle every week-end and a funny Talkartoon, "20 Legs under the Sea," are announced for exhibition on the same program.

Friday night is Redpath Sugar Night," at the Belle this week. Twenty ladies attending Friday night will each be presented with a Ten Pound Sack of Redpath's Granulated Sugar, with the compliments of the Management.

"FIVE AND TEN" REVEALS MARION DAVIES AS BEST

Marion Davies turns dramatic in "Five and Ten", her new starring vehicle which opened before a large audience at the Belle Theatre last night.

In the picturization of the popular Fannie Hurst novel, Miss Davies eclipses her own achievements as a comedy star, blending humor and drama with an expert touch. As Jennifer, daughter of newly-rich parents, Miss Davies offers a delightful and sincere performance, convincing and appealing in charm.

Leslie Howard plays opposite the star in the new production directed by Robert Z. Leonard, contributing an engaging performance as the society ne'er-do-well who somehow manages to conquer lofty ambitions under the guile of the capricious daughter of the chain store magnate. His misunderstanding of her motive provides a unique twist to the plot.

Richard Bennett and Irene Rich play the parent roles and Kent Douglas as the young brother whose tragic suicide brings a crashing climax to the story. Others in the cast are Mary Duncan, Lee Tracy, Arthur Housman, George Irving, Halliwell Hobbes, Charles Giblyn, Henry Armetta and Ruth Selwyn.

Metrotone Newsreel. Chester Conklin in "The 13th Alarm" and Bobby Jones the King of Golf in demonstrations of the use of "The Spoon," preceded the exhibition of the feature offering and proved very entertaining. The entire program will be repeated again tonight for the last time and is well worth seeing.

"GIFT TO WOMEN" RIOTOUS PARISIAN FARCE

Gift to Women, which opens at the Capitol tonight (Silverware Gift Night) for a six-day run is an uproarious farce. Frank Fay whose whose suave humor is so absolutely his own, gives a performance of a rising subtlety, as Toto, the man the ladies simply can't resist—the gay young-man-about-Paris who can't resist the ladies.

The producers have provided Toto with a bevy of beauties which are as irresistable as pretty ladies can be—among them being Laura La Plante, Joan Blondell, Louise Brooks, Margaret Livingston, Yola D'Avril, Ethlyne Claire, Nena Quartaro, Hazel Howell as the gay and sapple Sisters G.

Toto, surrounded by his friends and lady admirers, in a scene of gayety, with tumblers tumbling and jazzbos jazzing in a Parisian cafe when he spies Diane, with her father and a friend, who does not like Toto's all-conquering campaigns with the girls, and blackens him in the eyes of Diane's father, but only piques Diane's interest in him. By all sorts of clever ruses Toto manages to meet her. He almost loses her when Tanin, a former sweetheart, arrives—but manages to regain her—and to win over her father with the understanding that Toto for six months see no women at all, and that he consult a doctor.

Toto's doctor puts him on a rest cure, and insists that even one kiss is apt to be fatal, on account of a heart condition. Toto agrees. Lady loves flutter in to nurse the patient and to fight with each other for possession of him. At this embarrassing moment, Diane sends word that she is departing, and desires one last fervent kiss. Toto, faced with this problem of life with out his inamoratas, or death with her kiss—heroically makes all preparations for his early demise—and sends for her!

What happens must be seen to be appreciated—and it is but one of an hundred mirth provoking moments in the play. Besides the star and the galaxy of beauties many of the screen's best players take part in the show. Among them are Charles Winninger, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Alan Mowbray, Tyrrell Davis, Billy House, Armand Kalis, Charles Judels, Eddie Lambert, Murray Smith, Jacques Venaire, Douglas Gerrard. Michael Curtiz directs with sure skill.

FREE SILVERWARE AT THE CAPITOL

Tonight each lady will receive a dainty piece of E.P.N.S. silverware to add to her collection. This Silverware is proving beyond doubt that quality and genuine description on the part of the management is having the desired result. Every lady is absolutely satisfied and manager Holmes reports verbal and written appreciation by many of his patrons.

In Mexico City, Albert Medrano, who has tried to commit suicide by: throwing himself under a train (but was prevented); shooting himself in the head (but the plan failed); asphyxiation (but relatives broke in); drowning (but he was hauled out of the river); hanging (but he was cut down), made one more attempt. He climbed to the roof of his house, jumped off, died of heart failure.

Lindberghs Will Leave Nome, Alaska, To-morrow

Nome, Ala., Aug. 13—Facing the most hazardous part of their 7,000 mile flight to the Orient, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today prepared to ra 1,067 mile hop across the foggy waters o fthe Bering Sea.

The flying couple brought their pontooned monoplane down at Safety Bay, 21 miles east of here, at 4.40 p.m., Eastern Standard Time yesterday after a 100-mile flight from Shismaref, on Kotzebue sound, where they were forced down by fog late Monday night on their Point Barrow-Nome hop.

Colonel Lindbergh said he expected to remain in Nome today and tonight, and then weather permitting, he would continue to Karegimt, Siberia, tomorrow morning.

Extensive plans for entertaining the couple were made here after they had a long sleep.

"We are enjoying ourselves immensely," was also frequently repeated reply of Lindbergh and his diminutive wife to their many admirers.

Before retiring last night, Lindbergh told his host, Robert R. Jackson, the barber, and his wife, that they must be up early by Thursday.

The waters of the Bering Sea were rough for a safe landing at Nome yesterday and a radio messages had been sent to Mrs. Lindbergh that the Nome River was a safe landing place.

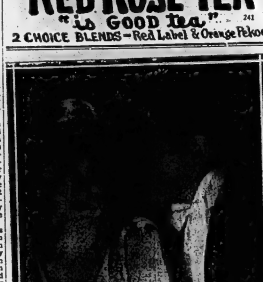
TWEED MILLING CO. GROWING CONCERN

Local Firm Handles Quality Flour Products

Because of the great volume of business transacted through its extensive establishment, because of its up-to-date business methods and the high quality of products which are handled, Tweed Milling Co., gained for Belleville a commercial prestige as an excellent market for retailers. Thousands of dollars are brought into this section each year through the trade channels provided over by this well known house and a number of people are also given employment by this concern. The fact that its trade extends over all adjoining counties adds prosperity to the community.

This firm began its career with the fixed belief that success could be obtained by first-class products of quality, at a reasonable margin of profit. With this thought uppermost in their mind the management proceeded to build their career upon this foundation, until today its products will be found in the leading shops and stores throughout this territory. The story of the success of this firm is one than many business men would find profitable reading.



Tweed Milling Co. are distributors in this section for the well-known Tweed, Robin Hood and Western Canada flours and feeds and carry at all times a complete stock which is a great convenience to the farm trade. So extensive and established has become the trade that their products are known most everywhere, when their large warerooms merchants in this district receive their supplies, are pleased to complement the management of this concern for its efficient conduct of business and for meeting the needs of the hour in a most thoughtful manner. We predict for this establishment continued prosperity and a great future. Do you know the approximate number of dealers throughout this section handling their products?

FIND RATES ON PULP PROPER

Interstate Commerce Commission Investigates Rates in Force

Washington, D.C., Aug. 12 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today found rates on pulpwood from Canadian points to New York and Pennsylvania to be improper. At the same time it announced that certain new points might be preferred as against another it could do nothing because the preference was entirely within Canada.

Paper mills at Johnsonburg, Pennsylvania, complained that mills at Niagara Falls and North Tonawanda, New York, were being preferred as to rates from points in New Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

Mills at North Tonawanda are shipping to paper manufacturers' scale on inbound shipments of pulpwood while that scale is denied the Johnsonburg mill. The commission said the situation was one it could not correct by a "cease and desist" order against the lines within the United States.

"It appears," said the commission, "that the discrimination complained of arises out of the action of the Canadian Canadian rail lines which carriers could, and doubtless would, establish their practices of according to the north Tonawanda and the Canadian Manufacturers' agile on pulpwood for the reasons the International boundary upon assurance from the mill in north Tonawanda that it would accord to the Canadian lines the same treatment as the lines of the outbound products."

The resulting combination of rates complained of by established following any order it might issue, the commission said, would be no higher than the existing joint rates and Johnsonburg mill would not be bettered in any way.

The commission said the rates from Canadian origins to Johnsonburg would have been reviewed by the Canadian Board of Railway Commissioners which had found them neither unreasonable nor unduly prejudicial.

Papal Secretary to Resign Office

Vatican City, Aug. 13—Semi-official confirmation of reports that Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of State came from Dr. Van Roosevelt.

He has sought the Pope's permission, it was said, but the Pontiff asked him to wait until the difficulties with Italy over the Catholic action organization are settled.

It is believed that some sort of accord on that issue will have been reached by autumn and that the Cardinal will retire from his office in November or December.

His successor, it is thought, probably will be a prelate who is not now a Cardinal. He is likely to be appointed secretary protem until he can be elevated, as was the late Cardinal Merry Del Val in the reign of Pope Pius X.

Election Returns Still A Puzzle

Three Rivers, Que., Aug. 12.—(Canadian Press)—A correction made yesterday in returns for the returns for the Three Rivers-St. Maurice Dominion by-election Monday, increased the majority of Charles Bourgeois, Conservative over his Liberal opponent, Wilfrid Lepy, back from eight to 44. This morning Bourgeois majority was reduced from 45 to 8 by a correction in the figures from St. Eddie De Caxton poll. Later Point-Du-Lac reported the Conservative majority there should be 60 instead of 24. An official recount by the returning officer will take place in order to straighten out the uncertainly about the result. The Liberals still maintained today that Carlepy would have the seat.

Record Shattered by Montreal Girl

Lillian May Captures both Sprint Events—Western Athletes Star

Wetaskiwin, Alta., Aug. 13.—Miss Young Lillian May from Montreal Wednesday afternoon smashed and snatched for the East major honors in the Canadian women's track and field championships. Edmonton Girl Stars

While the Quebec flash won both her sensational Miss Beatrice Gillespie of Edgmonton completed a double against triumph in the intermediate class. She followed her win in the 50-metre event yesterday with a conquest in the 100-metre final, trading a pace of that included Miss Elsie Proctor, frail little Ottawa girl and Miss Violet Gale, Halifax. Miss Gillespie won the century dash by two yards, with Miss Proctor second way to a poor start, second place by a foot.

Defeat of the two intermediate sprinters from the East was a surprising, as it was decisive. The Alberta-trained Edmonton girl, who emerged from the national tests as a prime favorite to make a place on the 1932 Olympic team, easily beat off the challenge that Miss Proctor made in the final and was mark and went on to increase her lead.

Well the local girl softball schedule is very near over.

Which reminds me that the protest, which the management has not been settled as yet. Manager Lloyd of the Maple Leafs, says that he is going to fight the case until the last ditch.

The Maple Leafs have a swell chance to get into third place. (That is if C.L.A.C.S. lose all their remaining games.

But then the Belleville Fruit have not clinched second place yet. They are the first three teams are in the league playoff. (Which makes it interesting.)

Next Monday is the Civic holiday in the Ivy Dead Line Day ever in Wellington on Monday. The Belleville Y.M.C.A. are entering a team over to defend the cup that they won last year in the model Flag race.

The Y team will be made up of Vic White or Spike Murphy running the 1-3 mile with Wag Rose following in the mile sprint.

Then Dick Cretney will take the ballon for the two mile jaunt and "Bert" Girling will be entered for the three mile, while "Cliff" Barber will finish off the string running five miles to the finish.

The complete race is over a 11 1-3 mile course with five runners, taking part, for each team. The day's activities close with a street dance at night. The music is to be furnished by George Hall's "Carnhaven" of radio fame.

I hear that the followers of fine horse flesh are going to the 'Isaac Wallon' are catching some here in the Bay of Quinte, which is also fur away fields look green.

The local quoit pitchers won an exhibition game with the Quoiters" from Bloomfield the other night I see. The score was 6 to 3.

Did you see yesterday's ball game. Tommy Pointer haried very near a perfect game. The "writer" said it was perfect and two scratch hits off his delivories.

If Poisier continues to improve there will be no doubt as to the winner of the Central League as Gibson has had very good success against the Kingston ace in the past few years.

The Nationals plastered all three Kingston pitchers to all corners of the field. Which reminds me perhaps the "Powers" that be will send a real baseball diamond, the local park is a "BALL PARK" to one side of either field in Kingston.

Picking tomato worms is still the order of the day in these parts.

"Tiny" Thompson was the hitter to watch with 3 hits in 3 innings the Vics will have to get real bat to tie up "the" record.

The Maple Leafs upset the odd people and the dope when they won from the hard hitting C.I.A.C.O. girls. It sure hurt the lassies from Corbyville up to be beaten by the locals but as the night's play the better team won.

"Tiny" Thompson was the hitter to watch with 3 hits in 3 consecutive hits. While "Pat" Patterson, the C.I.A.C.O.'s star baseman, had no less than five errors and they were all costly ones.

The Leafs are now in third place in the league but the C.I.A.C.O. lassies have two more games and if they win them, they should finish in third place at least. Who will win tonight has not been settled as yet, but they have to play some of the supposed games now.

Lindbergh's Optimistic For Northern Traffic

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 12. — Poised here, their last stopping place in North American territory before hopping on the final stages of their Orthodox circumpolar tour, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh paint and pronounce picture of the future of aviation in the North.

The flying couple said the Far-Northern territory was one of the places where "airplane traffic is destined to become a benefical factor in the lives of the residents."

"We are especially interested in this country," said Lindbergh, "and see no reason why in the very near future, perhaps that air lines on regular schedules should not be established.

We never somewhat surprised as we flew through Canada and Alaska to find that flying in this country proved to be not only simpler, but more effective than it was reported in the United States to be.

QUAINT LOVE

by N. Florence Leeh

Rea Rockhart drove through the cool, spring moonlight, his eyes on the road, his hands on the wheel, but conscious in every fibre of his being of the girl beside him. So little, so blonde, so fragrant! His wife, Bessie, was as tall as he, her hands were brown, and her voice was not liquid music. But Elaine was fairy-like.

"It's perfectly divine riding like this," she murmured. "How black those pines are yonder on the hill. And look, Rea, there's a teeny star exactly over the tallest one."

Rea slowed the car. "The star is trying to hide from your bright eyes," he declared, and put his arms around her. She returned his kiss. "You're perfectly precious, Rea," she declared, "but let's hurry; it's terribly late."

He released her unwillingly and started the car.

"By this time tomorrow the play'll be over," he said, dismally, "and I'll be swamped once more in the bog of monotony."

Rea was taking Elaine home from the dress rehearsal of "The Cods Rock the Boat," a production of the Holly Mount Drama Guild. It was due to a lucky chance that he had a part in this play, for he was a business man, and actor, and he usually divided his time between the office and the little stucco bungalow where he lived with Bessie and eighteen months old Bunny. He had always had literary aspirations and this past winter had tried his hand at play writing. To everyone's astonishment, his own included, the Drama Guild offered to produce his one act play "Following Him," they prepared to rehearse "The Cods Rock the boat," and since Rea had a good figure and a strong, fine voice he was offered a part.

His joy was unbounded, but Bessie thought the whole thing foolish.

"You might better concentrate on sales management," she declared.

That remark proved that his wife didn't understand him, and Elaine Norman showed from their first meeting that she did. So Rea formed the habit of taking her home from rehearsals, though Terry Rives, a long fingered, effeminate pianist, had claimed the privilege.

Of course Rea realized that he was married; but everybody in the cast flirted; so why not he? Besides his emotion for Elaine, he assured himself was real, not make believe. He felt suddenly freed from the shackles of conventionality among people whose aims and values were different from those which had bound him, and which still fettered Bessie. He sighed as he turned in at the gate of his home. A bright light was burning in the front hall and with alarm not unmixed with guilt he hurried up-stairs. Bessie was sitting by Bunny's crib, her eyes wide with lack of sleep and worry.

"Bunny's been sick all evening," she said, with terrible to be alone with a sick baby."

"The boy is over tomorrow night," he answered, as he had replied to Elaine, but with an entirely different meaning.

Undressing for bed he wondered what Bessie would do if he left her. Elaine loved him, of that he was sure. He fell asleep, happy in the consciousness of being loved by two charming women.

All the next afternoon, which was Saturday, the cast rehearsed, and at 8:30 the curtain went up on the first act. Rea was more excited than he had ever been in his life. The Rea Rockhart who trod the boards mouthing noble sentiments was as far removed from the honest young B and O clerk as the east is from the west. Before the play began, he and Elaine had gone out for a minute on the tiny platform of the fire escape at the rear of the stage. It was cool and shadowy out there, shut off from the street by a wide, tree sprinkled lawn, and from the stage by a long, dark passage way. Elaine had told him he was perfectly priceless in his part of the lackey, and he had kissed her masterfully, regardless of her makeup.

He realized as he did so that when he kissed Bessie, he just kissed her; but with Elaine, so fragrant and yielding, he kissed her masterfully, as with infinite tenderness or with poignant yearning.

The play went on to a scattering of applause and guests of laughter, and at the next intermission he sought Elaine through his rendezvous of the evening. His tenderness for Elaine. Through the door which opened on the platform her dress showed pearly white in the dusk, and a thrill of delight swept through him at the sight. In the doorway however, he paused, for the effeminate pianist, gorgeous in purple doublet and hose, was already in possession. As Rea gazed, shocked and angered, purple-clad arms enfolded gleaming white shoulders, and the two graceful outlines melted into one. Their voices, low but penetrating, reached his ear.

"Like me a little bit?"

"You know I do."

"Better'n that lackey fellow?"

She laughed a merry, disdainful laugh. "Him?" she mocked.

"Then why?" was the next inquiring query, "why have you been playing around with him?"

"Because," her laugh rippled again, "he's so perfectly quaint."

Rea turned and stumbled back through the darkness to the stage. She had been laughing at him all along, laughing because he was so quaint. The rest of the act all laughing at him. Suddenly he thought of Bessie's honest, hurt, tired eyes, and wished from the bottom of his heart that he were home, where he was appreciated and needed, and not something to be made fun of.

"Curtain," a voice called. The lights in the auditorium went out, the curtain rose; the play continued, second act, third act, to a brilliant finale.

Rea spoke automatically, responding to cues moved about according to an oft rehearsed plan; made gestures, and twisted his face into the semblance of a smile of a success; but all the while, the quaint" his mind was repeating, "so perfectly quaint." Oh, he longed for peace and security and dignity of home; he was hungry for Bessie's unaffected love, her jolly laugh. But she was at home sitting up with that baby while he was acting.

At last the performance was over and he was free. The cast was going to have a celebration party, but he had no desire to linger. He hurriedly cleansed his face of makeup, and changed his clothes. As he raced to the door, he all but collided with a group of the cast still in costume, who had been in the star's dressing room.

"What's your hurry?" one of them called. "The night's young yet."

He made them a comprehensive bow. "Got a date with a lady," he answered. "Good-by."

"My dear, it's so simple you'll laugh. I just make sure that I don't eat too much for lunch. For example, this noon I had two Shredded Wheat Biscuits covered with berries and a pitcher of half and half. That's what I call an ideal lunch. The big idea is the Shredded Wheat—it's so light, nourishing and easy to digest, it keeps me comfortable on a hot afternoon."

BELLEVILLE'S POPULATION ON INCREASE

'Pertinent' Question Fans Fire of Strife in Liberals' Ranks

W. E. Sinclair, Liberal House Leader Asks Senator A. G. Hardy to State Connection, if Any, With Negotiations Leading Up to Beauharnois Order-in-Council—Hardy Refuses to Enter Controversy.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14 (CP)—In a letter to Senator Arthur G. Hardy, president, of the Ontario Liberal Association, and handed to the press, W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., leader of the Liberal opposition in the Ontario Legislature declares the Senator's charges on the matter of lack of energy and in regard to hostility to the Liberal Association fall entirely. Mr. Sinclair's letter is in reply to statements of Senator Hardy, published August 8, in which Sinclair's attitude was "simply to embarrass Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader" and "to arrogate to himself the role of spokesman for leading our leader's lifted."

In his letter to the Senator today Mr. Sinclair says: "Just why my discussion of Hydro affairs and the Beauharnois matter should so arouse your ire as to cause you to make such an unjustified attack on me, I am at a loss to know. If you attacked my views I could understand, but when you take my statement and distort it into a whole effort against me personally, without even discussing the issue I am raising, it seems to me the public must be wondering why you have done so."

Further on in the letter Mr. Sinclair proceeds: "And while writing you I propose to ask you a pertinent question which can be answered by you briefly. The question is this: "Have you at any time had any part in any manner directly, or indirectly, in any of the negotiations with anyone leading up to or relating to the Beauharnois order-in-council passed by the late Federal government, and which was recently revoked and replaced by legislation by the present government?"

Mr. Sinclair says, the Senator's statements about the Liberal leader's "lack of energy for seven and a half years while acting as leader" came rather late. "It was never communicated to me by you during my leadership," the letter goes on. "I could not get you to see me, and you refused to write me. At that time, until after the Federal party defeat," Mr. Sinclair said he was never wont to him after the last provincial election congratulation on the fight he had put up and also wrote to Harry Johnson, secretary of the Liberal Association, stating he trusted "our people would be most careful not to criticize me (Mr. Sinclair) and that I did good work and was not to be blamed for the debacle."

"Your reference to my desire for the leadership of the Liberal opposition is ill advised," continues the letter, "and was never contested by the convention. As I recall it, I was chosen to be a candidate, to lead the Liberals in the House during the session, following that convention, and have received warm praise from Liberals ever since, for my work there."

Regarding Senator Hardy's criticism of the Liberal statements as published in the press Mr. Sinclair remarks, "if after twenty years of public life, I am not capable of performing an opinion, it would be a strange thing.

TWO BUDGETS IS FORECAST

A Second Finance Bill Lays in the Background

London, Aug. 14.—Another budget within six months hangs over the head of the British taxpayer.

Leaders of the three main parties conferred at No. 10 Downing Street yesterday, following the deliberations of the special committee of the Labor Cabinet. As the meetings adjourned last night a second Finance Bill lay in the background.

In the British Parliament, the Finance Bill gives legislative effect to the taxation proposals in the budget, and under the suggested Labor-Conservative Bill, any added taxation necessary to make the budget balance would be imposed by Parliament. The Bill would also give effect to agreed-upon economies, the legislation would be embodied in the Finance Bill.

To ensure the Bill's speedy passage into law, Parliament will probably be summoned at a date earlier than contemplated when it adjourned—October 20. There would be no necessity to call a new session as technically Parliament is still in session.

TAKE OFF FOR TOKYO

Lindbergh's Leave None at Noon Today for Far East

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 14.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will leave Nome about 8 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) today for Safety Bay, 21 miles to the south, where their monoplane is anchored, to prepare for the take-off for Siberia enroute to Tokyo, the flying colonel announced before retiring last night. The trip to the plane and the hop-off depends on continued favorable weather reports from Siberia, Lindbergh said. "It will take about two hours to warm the motor for the trip," he added.

Yesterday Lindbergh spent considerable time in his plane, checking the motor and fuselage, and made its refuel it for the 1,000 mile flight to Karaghi Island, where he has a cache of gasoline and oil. The pair planned to have arrived there by 8 a.m. (3 p.m. Eastern Standard Time).

Conducted Opera House in Belleville For Many Years

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14.—Closing a long career in the course of which he was donor of half a dozen circuses and the first man to exhibit motion pictures in Toronto, John J. Griffin died in the hospital here last night, aged 68.

Born in Toronto, he entered the show world at an early age, and rose from being a candy butcher with Sells-Floto to be the owner of a string of circuses. Griffin opened the first motion picture house in Canada in Toronto in 1906. The theatre still stands.

He is given credit with bringing motion pictures to Toronto ahead of Chicago and other big American cities.

The late Mr. Griffin was a well known figure in Belleville as he operated the Carman Opera House and Regent Theatre here for many years. George Ponton now resident manager of the Regent Theatre was closely connected with the deceased. being in his employ for many different sections of the province. BACKETEERS BUSY

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 14.—Vandalism allegedly employed by racketeers in the cleaning and dying industry invaded seven shops early today and left them clothing with acid. Louis Holman, manager, said $10,000 worth of customers' garments was destroyed.

It was the second raid in a week on cleaning shops controlled by the Michigan Cleaners and Dyers Company and blamed by its officials upon racketeering.

BELLEVILLE UP 13.04 PER CENT CENSUS SHOWS

Twenty One Cities and 83 Towns Increased their Population

NOT CORRECT

Census Shows Canada in Healthy Condition With Bright Outlook

Ottawa, Aug. 14. — Twenty-one cities and eighty-three towns in Canada increased their population in the last ten years, according to the preliminary and, as yet quite incomplete, returns of the decennial year's census, issued yesterday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. At the same time four cities and sixty towns declined in population. The increase, however, considerably more than offset the loss. Examination of the totals discloses that the population as a whole increased when all returns are compiled, will be very much ahead of what it was in 1921.

Two cities in Ontario top the present list in the matter of enhanced population—Toronto and Hamilton. In the former the total the "queen city" rose by 105,689, or 18.26 per cent. over the 1921 and previous decennial census. Hamilton's increased before retiring 14.68 per cent., or 40,783 persons.

Of twelve cities unable to show striking increases, two others, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls, were the most outstanding. The former increased its numbers by 4,832 or 34.25 per cent., while the latter's gain was 3,644 per cent.

One city in Ontario declined—St. Thomas, the drop being 4.15 per cent., representing a decrease of 66 persons.

Decrease In North

The decrease in the precious metals mining industry is revealed by the drop in the population of the two northern Ontario towns of Haileybury, Cobalt, Charlton and Cheminford. The last named town has declined by 30.81 per cent., a total of 33 having been dropped since 1921. Haileybury's decrease was 943 souls or 23.17 per cent., that of Cobalt was for 1241 or 9.91 per cent., and Charlton 161 or 44.69 per cent.

Forty-five towns in Ontario gained and twenty-seven dropped in population. The Toronto suburbs showed marked increases, Mimico rising by 81.95 per cent., or by 3,076 persons, and while New Toronto soared by 131.17 per cent., representing an increase of 3,501. Weston's rise was 42.48 per cent., or by 1,535 individuals.

For the Maritime Provinces complete figures are likewise not available, but those issued today show that while Halifax, the largest city by something under 1 per cent., Sydney, N.S., dropped by virtually the same percentage.

In New Brunswick five towns increased while seven declined, while in Prince Edward Island the increases were less numerous than the losses, in all cases the numbers involved in the declines were small.

Four Quebec province cities enjoyed greatly enhanced increases, a percentage for Outremont, a suburb of Montreal, being 10.14. Outremont's population is now given as by 13,950.

Subject to corrections, the report shows:

Large Quantity of Wheat Is Canada's Carry Over

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Canada's total carry-over of wheat at the end of the crop year, July 31, including Canadian wheat stored in United States ports or afloat to these ports, was 167,079,343 bushels, as compared 132,381,633 bushels were stored in Canada.

Canadian wheat in elevators in the United States at July 31, 1931, amounted to 2,533,344 bushels—a much lower figure than the comparable holdings on July 31, 1930, 16,-053,342 bushels. In addition there were 1,329,276 bushels of Canadian wheat afloat for United States ports. The total amounts of Canadian wheat in Canada and the United States at July 31, 1931, is thus 161,-179,945 bushels.

Export trade indicated that the January estimate of last year's crop of 367,272,000 bushels was short by 13,500,000 too low. The amount of wheat used on farms for feeding had been greatly underestimated.

COULD PREVENT HALF OF DEATHS JACKSON STATES

Physicians Ignorant of Proper Proceedure He Tells Board

ANSWER TO CRITICS

Sees Alarming Increase in Induced Abortions as Factor

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14.—Ignorance of physicians is held to be one cause of deaths from childbirth in a report of maternal mortality submitted to the Board of Health by Dr. Charles P. Jackson, medical officer of health for Toronto.

Half of the deaths from this source are entirely preventable by the medical profession in the light of present day scientific knowledge, he says in his report.

The maternal mortality rate in Toronto, while not as high as it has been, represented a figure which is too high, and can and should be reduced, the report declares. An alarming increase in the incidence of induced abortion becomes steadily a more and more important factor in dealing with the situation in Toronto, the report noted.

The death rate for births is found to be considerably lower in the mothers' own homes than in the city hospitals. Septicaemia (blood poisoning) is responsible for a third to one-half of all the deaths.

MIGHT BE BODY OF MISSING AIRMEN

Haugesund, Norway, Aug. 14.—The body of a man, clothed in what appeared to be flying clothes was seen on Sunday afternoon floating west of the island of Feoda by the crew of the Norwegian steamer Spesgut, which arrived here yesterday.

The crew of the steamer thought the body might have been that of Parker D. Stramer, United States' aviator, who has not been heard from since he took off from the Faeroland Islands last Wednesday.

The master of the steamer, reporting the sighting of the body, said the steamer was compelled to run into the shelter of the Sandaa Islands to avoid Sunday's violent weather.

Have .Formed .the .Re- Unemployment to Assist

Kingston Ont., Aug. 14.—Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., Honorary Chairman of the Unemployment Research Committee, speaking in Outlining the plans of the Committee, today said that, "The local economic agreement that unemployment as it presents a most serious problem. Many conferences have been held recently and many ways have been raised to suggest how it should be met. There is a very marked lack of organized information on the nature and extent of the problem in Canada and it is obvious that wise policies of amelioration or cure cannot be formulated or put into effect until this gap in information is bridged.

"It is with these views in mind, and with a desire to perform the neglected function of fact finding and scientific analysis of the facts regarding unemployment in Canada, that a number of public minded citizens have formed the Unemployment Research Committee of Canada.

"Since the most immediate phase of the problem is that of relief during the present emergency with provision of relief for the unemployed the Committee has undertaken as its first task the collection of data and survey of unemployment relief up certain selected Municipalities. Under the circumstances, it seems highly desirable that a study of relief should be made to make a survey of last year's problem of unemployment relief and the way in which it was met, and to appraise, insofar as possible, the social results blowing from the relief programme. In other words a social audit of relief of expenditures and methods up to date should be undertaken.

Will Hurry Survey

"It is proposed that the survey which is already under way, be pushed forward as rapidly as possible during the summer months so that at a partial report may soon be prepared for distribution at the beginning of October. Since it will be impossible in such a limited time available to cover very much territory, it is planned to confine immediate work to seventeen Ontario municipalities, namely, Toronto, Ottawa, Windsor, London, Brantford, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Chatham, Stratford, Kitchener, St. Thomas, York Township, Ochawa, East York Township, Belleville and Kingston.

"The preliminary outline of the study calls for investigation of the problem in the municipalities under the following main headings:

(1) Amount of unemployment.

(2) Analysis of destitution and its incidence.

(3) The public relief programme.

(4) The private relief programme.

(5) The financial programme.

(7) Other costs of unemployment, present and future.

(8) Appraisal of community relief efforts.

The expenses of this work are to be met by donations from private and public sources. The Committee plans.

LIFE-LONG RESIDENTS OF CITY CELEBRATE 60TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Phillips, 226 Charles St., are Happy Couple

HOLD RECEPTION

Many Offer Congratulations for Continued Happiness

Today Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Phillips, 226 Charles St., life-long residents of this city, are receiving the congratulations of their friends on the celebration of their diamond wedding anniversary. An informal reception is being held at their home in honour of the occasion.

Sixty years ago today the marriage was solemnized, for on that day a young girl pinned up her curls and donned the sweeping skirts to show that she had grown up, and the charming bride of long ago was a picture of demure dignity. Mrs. Phillips was formerly Miss Mary Charters, and Mr. Phillips was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips.

After their marriage the young couple built a home at 226 Charles street, residing at a hotel until its construction was completed. This home has been their home for sixty years. Here they saw their children grow up, saw Belleville develop, witnessed all the changes that come to a town newly grown to a city.

Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips and the only death that has occurred so far in the family was the passing fifteen years ago of their youngest son, Norman, a deep sorrow to his parents. The sons and daughters include, Mrs. R. R. Fraser, Mrs. C. E. Kenerick, Mrs. John and George all of Montreal; Mrs. M. J. Clarke and Mrs. R. G. Stafford of Belleville, and Kenneth Phillips of Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips have nineteen grandchildren.

Mr. Phillips is the last surviving member of his family, but Mrs. Phillips has two sisters and one brother living, Mrs. A. I. Bird of Belleville, Mrs. Fred Abrahams of Montreal, and Fred Charters who resides in the United States.

Well known, citizens who have the respect and admiration of the entire community, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are today receiving countless messages of good wishes and affection. Handsome gifts have arrived in their home as a remembrance of this great occasion. Both enjoying splendid health, their friends wish them many more years of good health and happiness.

MAHATMA GHANDI TO ATTEND PARLEY

NEW YORK

Bombay, India, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Mahatma Gandhi, head of the Hindu Nationalist Congress, may yet be seen alongside representatives of India's other factions and native states when the second Round Table Conference on the constitution of the new India assembles this autumn in London.

It was announced today the authorities are ready to examine alleged breaches in the truce signed by Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, and Mahatma Gandhi last March, by which the civil disobedience campaign was terminated and the Nationalist promised participation in the parley.

The authorities, anxious to have every section of India represented when the conference meets, will confer with Gandhi in order to bring Mahatma into line. It was stated. Fifteen influential Indians or representatives of Indian interests will seek fresh consultations with Gandhi.

Gandhi yesterday announced he would not go to London unless he claimed the authorities had not shirked on the terms of the Delhi truce; more particularly because Viceroy Lord Irwin, retiring Viceroy, refused Gandhi's request for investigation of alleged violations.

Today however, Gandhi stated: "I will dash to London if the moment the Government makes the way clear for me. I am confident I can retrievable by the local authorities implementing the terms of the truce."

Gandhi added: "I claim for the Delhi settlement such sanctity and protection as are claimable for any ordinary contract. But if for any reasons whatsoever one contracting party can be bold, irrespective of the public is not worth the paper on which it is written."

"If London cannot guarantee protection to the party which has no arms to back it, London is not likely to produce a scheme which will give India what she long has desired and to which she is entitled by suffering. If nothing more," he asserted.

"Indian Nationalists were their own worst enemies. They have have discharged the best part to the best of their ability. They court the most rigid scrutiny into every one of their allegations of infractions of the pact by the Government. I would give all I own to go to London, for Lord Irwin's sake if nothing more, but the Government alone can now make that possible."

Hold Judicial Inquiry Into Sewer Explosion

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The Board of Control yesterday decided to recommend to the city council that a judicial inquiry be held into the sewer explosion on January 28, last. The move was a sequel to the stormy meeting of council held last Tuesday, when the report of the civic sewer committee on the explosion, particularly in its reference to the responsibility of W. F. M. Bryce, former sewer engineer, was under fire. Also the strength of the report the Board of Control obtained the resignation of the

DOG GIVEN GOOD HOME

"Great is the power of the Press"—this is an accepted truth however, Thomas Thorne, city custodian of lost and stray animals, knows the great interest aroused by The Ontario Intelligencer's plea of last Thursday for someone to come forward and save the life of a lone Airdale dog, was almost too much for him. He was overwhelmed with telephone calls from city and country residents requesting that the dog be saved for them. One could only tell them that the first to arrive would get the dog and they came thick and fast—some in autos, some on bicycles and some puffing and panting from the unaccustomed exertion in running. The race was won by a lady residing in the city and Mr. Thorne feels confident that the dog will have a comfortable home.

JERSEY MAN IS WOUNDED

Shooting Took Place in Apartment of Miss Jayne

New York, N.Y., Aug. 14—Roy Yates, New Jersey State Senator and Democratic party leader, received serious wounds early today in an apartment at 301 West 57th street. He had a bullet wound in the abdomen, but it was not fatal, it is said. Miss Ruth Jayne, found in the apartment, was questioned by police.

Miss Jayne, who gave her age as 35, refused to say how the shooting could not tell them how the bullet happened but added that she thought if she knew Yates they asserted that he would not shoot himself.

Dr. Maier, the ambulance surgeon, found Yates lying on the floor and Miss Jayne wandering about in a dishevelled dazed and clad only in pyjamas.

He said later that Miss Jayne's neck was scratched and blue marks and that she told him she could remember nothing except that someone had grabbed her by the throat. He said the police had been called, fired and disclaimed ownership of automatic pistol found in a rear courtyard and thrown under the window of her apartment.

Attorney-General Mitchell announced that the application for executive clemency must be denied by President Hoover.

The reason for the denial was given that none of the three prosecutors and judge of whom opinions were asked on the petition advised clemency.

Embarrassing Moments

British Films Will Prove Popular in Belleville

Written By

Chris. G. Holmes, Manager, Capitol Theatre

Two weeks ago I exhibited "The W Plan." A week ago "This Mad World" was the featured attraction. The former was a British, the latter an American, and the result? "The W Plan" won by a very wide margin in gaining favour with those who saw both and now sets up a fine comparison. Both dealt with espionage during the late war, but in the case of "The W Plan" facts made the story convincing, whereas the fiction in "This Mad World" was badly apparent, and the whole picture was only saved by the excellent acting on the parts of Kay Johnson and Basil Rathbone. These two rise out of Hollywood's artists, and give one the impression that there are a few at least who are worthy exponents of the dramatic art.

In the case of "The W Plan" from commencement to the last foot of film, the high ideals of the British people, possessing, as they do, the finest educational qualities have of the strength that is a prevalent with all that the public, quickly recognizing these possibilities, demand the highest form of screen entertainment.

It was thought, and justly so, that the British, possessing, as they do, the finest educational qualities of the strength that is a prevalent with all that the public, quickly recognizing these possibilities, demand the highest form of screen entertainment.

Chris. G. Holmes, Manager of the Capitol Theatre, who keenly desires a grand entry of British films into Canada and sets forth their undeniable qualities in the accompanying article.

authentically obtained. Throughout the entire production, the strict attention to detail is a most commendable, which stands as one of the strongest points in the picture industry, if an art can be termed thereby.

The present day theatre is a combination of stage and screen, and from it all the fine traditions which the older people associate with the stage must be retained for screen. Filth and poor use the theatre as a medium for recreation and recreation of the mind in parts New York and from there home.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hadley are visiting friends in Rochester, N.Y.

Mrs. Ernest Tuckabury is enjoying a week's holidays at her home in Wooler.

Misses Lydia and Irene Orr of Toronto are visiting at Mrs. C. D. Sweet's.

Mrs. and Mrs. R. K. Maclean and family have returned from their holidays and Mrs. Maclean has resumed his duties as manager of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. Wm. Day and friends of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher.

The average picture with the public is the sophisticated comedy-drama, and the producer who can reasonably reveal in this type of entertainment thus the British Chronicle an instance at random, "One Embarrassing Night" (with Ralph Lynn, Winifred Shotter and Cicely Courtneidge) is the best subtle comedy creations it has been my fortune to both see and exhibit. There was a dream and a delight, not the type to cause gufaws but to cause one's sense of humour for the duration of the piece and with reflection of the piece afterwards, bring a smile with every remembered thought of the scenes and cars to the thinker. That is the true meaning of illusion with a lasting impression,—make-belief which genuinely assists in driving away care and aiding the public to live with daily problems 6ith the advantage of a "time-out" means of just cutting trouble in two.

"The Middle Watch" was almost as witty as "One Embarrassing Night," but in some ways the subtlety was even more pronounced. And we have the finest entertainment associated with British films, entertainment which gives pleasure, because as I have already asserted the public is quickly recognizing clever screen work, and special effect is good, too. One likes to see Jerry Hawthorne and Lucy Hall have seen without misgivings of conscience as to the "time" spent, so many picturized stories which have left a bad taste in the mouth, one could recount them, or incidents which have been suggestive. And the gathering need not necessarily be a bad one, by any means.

In the issue of the Star Weekly for Saturday, July 25th, James A. Cook, in his article, "Movies, On Stage and Off", has a review of the British picture "Rasputin" which now being released in Canada.

Mr. Cook says in part that this group is a selection of British films which will be the finest group of various important producing units in the British Isles, and has considered all the pictures in the "Victory Group" and says the readers some idea of what these pictures are.

"Victory Group"

The "Victory Group" comprises twenty-four of the finest examples of screen entertainment that are available to conceive. British International Pictures, Gainsborough Productions, British Lion, Gainsborough and Ideal Films have all contributed heavily represented in this group. Film fans do not represent all the British films available for exhibition, but does constitute an admirable selection for all.

I am glad to see there is a goodly membership of British pictures represented in the group, contained in "A Chance at Love," Clive Brook's great wonderful comedian, Ralph Lynn, "One Embarrassing Night" which was seen at the Capitol Theatre, Belleville, some months time ago played in Montreal for six good weeks, and is being brought back again for a return.

Thrillers

Thrillers are also included in this group being represented by "The Ringer," with Henry Edwards and Lilian Hall Davis, best sellers.

Here are the contents of the group:

"Carmen", (Blatt's Spanish Opera), "Chance of a Night time", "Dance Pretty Lady", (voted at Toronto as excellent), "Night Like This", "Love Lies", "The Man in the Mirror", "Night Birds", "Love Stranger", "Flunder", "Blue Lagoon" "The Love Nest", (delightful little romance), "On Approval", "Shadow Between", "Sailor Daddy", "Returning Wives", "Fascination", "The Opposite", "The Lodger", "Rasputin Man", "Uneasy Virtue", (played Toronto with great success), "Sunshine Susie", "Dreyfus", "A Warm Corner", "Yellow Sands", (needs no introduction), "Keepers", "Love Contract", "Woodley" (kiddy), "Carnival", and "Lucky Girl".

Twenty-four examples of what screen art really means!

These are the type of pictures which children will not have to beg their parents leave to see. The parents will send them, glad of the opportunity of educating their children to the ideals of the mother-land.

ARMOURIES BOWER OF BEAUTY WHEN FLOWER SHOW IS HELD

Belleville Horticultural Society Sponsors Beautiful Display of Blooms. Gladioli, Dahlias and Asters Not Shown in Profusion Due to Heavier Rainfall. Unique Display Feature Seen.

Summer flowers in all their beauty were displayed in the Armouries a place of glaring loveliness last evening, when the annual show of the Belleville Horticultural Society opened. Artistically arranged about a centre display of massed gladioli and dahlias, the various entries were shown to advantage in a new arrangement of the tables.

At first glance the exhibit appeared a bewildering brilliance of colour. A blorson mosaic of fresh, bright tints, that soon resolved itself into individual flowers which made up the show. Familiar plants, favourite blossoms, shrubs and humble vegetables were shown in a degree of beauty that made flower lovers grasp, in spite of the low weather which was so trying on plant life, the flower show this year adds another success to the society's endeavour. The absence of dahlias and asters for which this has been a disastrous season, and the small showing of gladioli through the floods of the thin menace were noted. Zinnias, tuberous begonias and potted plants were outstanding in the show.

Unusual Floral Designs

Unusual features included the floral designs, first prize going to the realistic of a Japanese garden, with its rustic bridge, its miniature lake, and the turreted summer house. Other designs were an airplane, a garden harrow made of the blossoms and a little house of flowers.

The landscape gardening display were splendid, much time and pains evidently having been taken by the exhibitors. Window and verandah boxes showed the development in their variety and arrangement.

Gladioli Poor

The fact that the drop has ravaged the eastern section of the country has made gladioli a little hard to find. In view of the coming National Show this has been a sad blow to local gladioli growers whose gardens have not escaped the ravages. The best spray for combatting thrips according to a prominent local florist, is a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of paris green, two pounds of brown sugar, and three gallons of water to be applied twice a week, taking care that it gets in the centre of the plant.

Children's Display

Children's bouquets made a pretty display, many little tots showing skill in this by the girls than the boys. Flower covered doll carriages made a colourful note in this display.

The display of Belleville Nursery which showed beautiful potted plants, the Bon-Ghai Garden which had a gorgeous collection of gladioli, Glivia and Sage with lovely cut flowers, and Mr. Bamford with an enticing array of vegetables arranged in a most artistic manner, all added to the attractiveness of the show.

LIBERAL CONCLAVE MAY BRING CO-OPERATION OF ALL UNITS

Members of Legislature and Members of Management Committee of Liberal Association Met in Separate Buildings Co-operation Promised by Dominion Organization. Leader Will Ask for Judicial Probe into Hydro Affairs Also Purchase of Power Sites.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14 (By The Canadian Press)—Liberal members of the Legislature and members of the management committee of the Provincial Liberal Association held separate conferences here yesterday. The former group gathered at a caucus in the parliament buildings while the committee discussed questions of the day at the downtown headquarters.

Both groups issued statements at the conclusion of the meetings in which demands were made for a judicial probe of Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission affairs. The demand was laid by the members of the Legislature on the purchase of power sites on the Moira, Waaka and Mississippi Rivers from the O'Brien interests of Ottawa.

Healing of the breach between the two groups is believed to be close at hand following yesterday's meetings. It is known members of the committee attended the discussions at the parliament buildings and conferred the parliamentary journeyed to the downtown conclave. Results, it may, however, were not entirely secret.

Almost synchronizing with the attempts at reconciliation was the issuance of an open letter to the Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., M.P., leader of the Liberal opposition in the Legislature. It was in the nature of a reply to a letter sent by Premier G. Howard Ferguson, President of the Ontario Liberal Association to Mr. Sinclair.

Contents of Letter

In his letter Mr. Sinclair declares that Senator Hardy declined to discuss the matter of lack of energy and in regard to the policy of the Liberal Association fall entirely. Proceeding, he says, "Just why my declaration of Hydro affairs and the Beauharnois matter should so arouse the ire of the powers that be make such an unjust attack on me, I am at loss to know. If you attacked my views, I could understand, but when you take my statements and devote your whole effort against me personally, it is necessary discussion of the issue raised by me, it seems to me the public must be somewhat wiser than you have done so."

Referring again to Beauharnois Mr. Sinclair continues: "And while writing you I propose to ask you one pertinent question which can be answered by 'Yes' or 'no' and the answer is this: "Have you at any time had any part in any manner whatsoever in any discussion of the negotiations with anyone leading up to or in relation to the Beauharnois order-in-council passed by the late Ontario administration and which was recently revoked and replaced by legislation by the present government?"

Declines to Discuss

Senator Hardy declined to discuss Mr. Sinclair's letter when interviewed here. He has not yet received the reply, he said, and in the circumstances he would not care to be added.

Despite these clashes of opinion between the two prominent members of the party and while no official statements have been forthcoming regarding progress of a settlement of differences however, the two groups reports persisted matters were being cleared up. It was stated Mr. Sinclair would not resign the chairmanship of the party as was announcement that the newly formed Dominion Organization of Ontario Liberals would be run entirely in harmony" with the provincial association was taken to mean steps toward effecting repairs in the party breach now under way.

F. G. Anderson, M.P., Federal Liberal Whip, conveyed to the association word that the Dominion Committee was anxious to co-operate in every line as be done with the provincial organization.

NATIONS SICK OF WAR

"War hurts everybody and helps nobody — except the profiteers — and settles nothing."

That crisp and eloquent characterization of war was uttered, strangely enough, by a military man, Field-Marshal Sir William Robertson, the only man who ever rose from private to field-marshal in the British Army. He is declared by Viscount Cecil of Chelwood to be England's greatest living soldier.

It was the keynote of a great public meeting in London at which, as we are told by the correspondent of the New York Times, "Great Britain committed herself to continue her efforts for that disarmament which Mr. Hoover declares to be vital factor in the whole question of international debts and the world's economic ills."

But other great leaders struck the same note, and it is all the more significant that they are men of diverse political views—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, his predecessor, Stanley Baldwin, and the war time Premier, David Lloyd George, Ex. pressing the common view, Mr. MacDonald said:

"Unless we reduce ren, unless we reduce armies, unless we reduce ships, unless we reduce the means of destruction from the air, and all other destruction, unless we can produce programs with armament figures less than the figures the various nations have now, we shall not have done our duty at Geneva. Geneva must give results."

This, the correspondent adds, "was the launching of England's campaign to put an aroused public opinion back of the Government's determination to make a success of the general disarmament conference at Geneva, next February."

From Italy, too, comes quick assurance that that country, is anxious to stand with President Hoover in his contention that arms reduction should follow upon his debt moratorium. After a talk with Secretary of State Stimson, Premier Mussolini said, as quoted in the press, that "Italy is prepared to accept the lowest figure of armament, even a limit of 10,000 rifles for Italy—provided no other nation has more."

Now that Uncle Sam shows a deficit, we feel more like the old gentleman is really a relative.—Greensboro (Ga.) Herald-Journal.

THE GLEAM ALONE
By Aline Michaels

The friends whom I most love
Are like the stars to me,
As those in bodies move
Along immensity.

The stars are worlds, we know,
And worlds hold joy and pain,
Hold ecstasy and woe
And purity and strain.

But of those worlds afar
We see the gleam alone;
The glory of the star
That on our path has shone.

And so in friends most dear
I see no fault, no blight,
But only joyous bloom
And opulence of light!

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT, runs the old prospector's slogan, and it is sometimes found in queer places, generally in the place where it is not expected to be found. Latest gold sensation story comes from Red Lake with Jack Munroe the central figure. This brings Red Lake back into the limelight again after an absence of considerable time, and also turns the spotlight again on that picturesque figure, known to mining camps the world over, Jack Munroe. Jack says there's plenty gold on his claims at Red Lake, right up to the grass roots and it sure is a hum dinger of a find, according to Jack. Of course, there has been a rush to Red Lake and everything is staked for miles, with armed guards protecting some of the richest looking claims. Jack Munroe first came into prominence years ago at Butte, Montana, where as a husky miner lad he dared to go up against the redoubtable Jim Jeffries, then champion pugilist of the world. Jeffries was barn-storming and offering fifty dollars to anyone who could stand up before him for four rounds. Jack wanted that fifty and got it. Indeed, he nearly got the champion who was not in good shape and the fiery assaults of the husky young miner kept him busy. Afterwards Munro challenged Jeffries for the championship of the world and was put away by the big fellow. Munro left came into prominence in the Cobalt boom days and for a time was Mayor of Elk Lake. He went overseas with the Princess Pats and had a good war record. All through the war his collie dog stayed with him and both were wounded. Both got a blighty and both came home to Canada where Munro held down a position in the legislative buildings in Toronto for a time. Recently his old love, the prospecting game, has called him and for some time he has been swallowed up in the wilds, only to reappear with the usual dramatic frills on the front page as the hero of the alleged Big Strike at Red Lake. We hope Jack has got hold of something really good this time for he is not getting any younger and some of these days will feel like settling down before the fire in comfort, with a family round him to tell tall stories of mining and military camps and the big scrap over yonder.

GANGSTERS IN NEW YORK mowed down several little children while waging war against their enemies in a crowded tenement section. This wanton murder of innocents has aroused New York police dom and officials as nothing else has done and there seems to be a prospect of the murderers being caught and given punishment to fit the crime, if that is possible. Jack "Legs" Diamond, notorious gangster who has defied the law for many years, was sentenced to four years in Atlanta Penitentiary from a New York court room by a Kansas Judge this week. Looks like a few more Judges from the great open spaces might help clean up New York.

Insanity in Youth

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.,
FAMOUS AUTHORITY ON HEALTH AND PSYCHOLOGY

The insanity which we associate with youth is called dementia praecox. The name is derived from the Greek "praecox" meaning young. The earliest beginnings of this disorder start in adolescence. Even at twelve, suspicious signs may often be noted by an expert in mental diseases. At fourteen and fifteen, certain peculiarities of behavior may be fairly well marked.

As the disorder progresses, symptoms may be slow in appearing. All in all, dementia praecox is an insidious disease and, because of this, diagnoses are often made altogether too late.

Praecox cases usually show odd behavior, idiosyncrasies and peculiarities for a long time before parents suspect that anything really serious is to blame. A child's seclusive type of personality is the rule. Such children are poor students. Often they appear thoughtful and profound, for they will sit by themselves apparently lost in deep thought. School ability may not be affected by this developing disease in its early stages.

The chief difficulty with a dementia praecox individual is that he is unable to think correctly, clearly and to the point. This has been aptly described as an "intrapsychic ataxia," that is, such a person thinks as a ataxic one walks, the latter being unable to put his foot where he wants to.

The thinking is really very superficial despite the grave and thoughtful expression, so commonly seen. Ideas are fragmentary, detached and often absurd. They do not square with things as they are. Such patients indulge in all sorts of fantastical and absurd conceptions. Often their thoughts seem to be "blocked" and they can't proceed in their thinking.

As the disease progresses, delusions make their appearance. Praecox patients often have delusions about the state of their bodies. They may believe that the blood has dried up, that the heart has stopped beating, that their bones are broken etc. Pointing out to them that they are still alive and able to walk makes not the slightest impression.

Hallucinations are common. They may hear strange noises that do not exist, or see people who are not there, or taste "poison" in the food and so on. Again, an appeal to the patient's reasoning and logic is of no avail.

General relativeness and stubbornness is very common. They may even strike when told to do something. Often a definite "negativism" is to be noted and the patient will do the opposite of what is required.

Emotionally these patients do not respond as normal persons do. Their feelings seem to be deadened. They become indifferent to their loved ones and to their surroundings. More and more, they tend to live what might be termed a vegetative existence.

Certain special types of the disease are recognizable such as the catatonic, the hebephrenic, etc. In the paranoid type the delusions are concerned with persecutions and such patients may become anti-social and even violent.

In the earlier stages of this mental disorder in youth it is believed by some that there is hope of improvement and possibly of cure. Many forms of treatment are employed. But once the disease is definitely established the prognosis is predication as to the patient's future is favorable.

BOND CONVERSION STARTING WELL

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 14 — Premier Scullin said today that an excellent beginning in the conversion of Australian bonds in Melbourne indicated the scheme would be one of the greatest financial achievements in the history of Australia.

Treasury officials estimated that 1,845 bondholders had converted a sum amounting to 37,733,220 pounds sterling, excluding pounds sterling, excluding pounds of the third loan.

"I'll paddle in the four on Saturday"

When the firm sent Eric out of town the Canoe Club felt that the doom of the crack "four" was sealed. Without him in the canoe, the cup would surely go to some other club.

The night before the big regatta. Excitement in the clubhouse. Then came the telephone call and Eric's joyous voice.

"It's alright fellows; the chief gave me the week-end and I'll be home tomorrow ready to paddle in the four."

So, Eric kept his place in the canoe, and of course the four won. And the cost of the call was only a little more than the price of a programme.

Low evening rates for "anyone" calls are in force from 7.00 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. local time. Night rates (cheaper still) from 8.30 p.m. to 4.30 a.m.

TEN HOURS FOR FLIGHT

Took Longer Time Than Regularly from Australia to England

Kagoshima, Japan, Aug. 14 (AP)—C. C. Chichester, New Zealand flyer attempting to make a new air trail from Australia to England by way of the Aleutian Islands, arrived here 10day from Shanghai.

Because Chichester required ten hours to make the flight, which ordinarily is done in about five hours, local authorities questioned him to determine whether he had landed en route.

DRUG STORE GIVES SPLENDID SERVICE

Geen's Drug Store Carries a Full Line of Hunt's Candies

Geen's Drug Store is one of the best known establishments in this city. In addition to a very comprehensive line of toilet articles and supplies, they carry an enormous stock of pure standard drugs, the kind that can always be depended upon and which they pride in dispensing to the public. The business itself is a profession, requiring scientific knowledge of medicine, chemistry, law, and compounding, and the uses and functions of many thousands of articles for the security of health. When one knows that a certain drug frequently prescribed produces wakefulness in doses of one eighth of a grain, one may understand the necessity of using pure standardized drugs.

This establishment realized that fresh goods and fair prices are the foundation of genuine service and have gained repute through giving the combination of both. Its line of drugs are pure and fresh, the service unexcelled, and it will not substitute.

A popular feature of this drug store is the fact that they are distributors in this section for the well known and popular Hunt's Candies. They also have a full line of stationery and supplies and here one may secure their favorite magazine or newspaper. By way of completeness they also have a complete stock of Kodaks and photographic supplies.

This reliable drug concern is a vested interest, a necessity in these articles. Call the above line to assist you. (Sic in today's issue).

Fun Making These Things

By Hannah Wing

The pleasure of good food is only partly in the eating. Part of the delight in the making. It's fun to cook and this time advertise to try out new dishes such as these:

Strawberry Puddings

Stew a quart of blueberries with one cupful of water, one cupful of sugar, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and if desired a dash of cinnamon. Mix and sift one cupful of ten inch thick, butter, trim away the crusts and cut in cubes. Butter small molds or custard cups and pour in two tablespoonfuls of hot berries and juice into each, fill with these cubes and press down well. And more berries with their juice, then more bread, pressing down and packing all in well. Place a weight on each and set away to chill. At serving time invert and garnish with whipped cream.

Butterscp Biscuits

Sift together two cupfuls of pastry flour and four teaspoonfuls of baking powder with three-quarters of a teaspoon of salt. Rub in a quarter of a cupful of milk to which one well beaten egg has been added. Roll out in tiny rounds, brush with milk, and bake in a hot oven.

Hot Spiced Gingerbread

Cream together a third of a cupful of butter and half a cupful of sugar, add a third of a cupful of molasses and one well beaten egg. Sift together one and one-eighth cupfuls of flour, two-quarters of a teaspoonful of soda, half a teaspoonful each of ginger and cinnamon and nutmeg and a pinch of salt. Add to the butter and sugar mixture alternately with half a cupful of sour milk. Bake in small muffin tins and serve hot with whipped cream.

Old-Fashioned Sliced Tomatoes

Scald and chill firm, ripe tomatoes, allow a quarter of an inch thick and arrange in a serving dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and sugar, cover with vinegar and leave to chill for an hour before serving.

Stuffed Pear Salad

Select small ripe pears, peel and core them, marinate in lemon juice diluted with ice water, when preparing the stuffing. For this use two cakes of cream cheese, mash well and mix with quarter of a cupful of chopped pimento or walnuts. Season with salt and paprika. Drain the pears and fill, top each with a rosette of cream cheese pressed through a pastry tube, garnish with a flech of pimento. Sprinkle the pears lightly with paprika and arrange on slices of pineapple with lettuce.

Recently her last friend cast her aside, and the girl without home, or friends began wandering. She had gone to Niagara Falls, and was returning via London, when she thought go no farther. Her finances had dwindled down to a few cents insufficient to purchase food or shelter, when she found her way to police steps, and sat down. She was afraid to go in. The girl is in a delicate condition, police said.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14.—(By The Canadian Press)—Lloyd Cook was not committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter as erroneously stated in a Canadian Press Despatch Wednesday. Cook was not charged with manslaughter. Witness Fred W. B. C. FIRE WARMS SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatoon, Sask., Aug. 14.—People in Saskatchewan were warmer yesterday by a fire in British Columbia. Oppressive warmth, physics authorities at the University of Saskatchewan say, was due partly to the haze from forest fires in the coast province which darkened the sky here.

Heat of the sun's rays is able to pass through a haze because of a short wave length, but heat radiated from warmed ground travels in rays of longer wave lengths which cannot penetrate the haze, experts said.

Will Follow Near Route Across Atlantic Ocean

Saint John, N.Y., Aug. 13—Ruth Nichols, New York aviatrix will fly over Saint John in the near future, en route to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, from where she will attempt to retrace Lindbergh's route across the Atlantic. The intended flight of the aviatrix is to make a non-stop flight from New York to Harbor Grace, thence across the Atlantic. Miss Jones said today. Her proposed route to New foundland will follow the same lines as her first ill-fated attempt, the local news reported, though it will not make any landings en route.

LOCATED EPICENTER OF AN EARTHQUAKE

Tokyo, Aug. 14—(AP)—Dr. Akitsune Imamura, noted seismologist, announced today he had located, in Sinkiang, Eastern Turkestan, the epicenter of an earthquake last Tuesday.

Dr. Imamura said the shock was most severe somewhere between the North Tienshan and the Bogdo Ola Mountain ranges and that its intensity was as great as that of the shock in Nanai Province, China, four years ago which caused the death of more than 100,000 persons.

As Sinkiang lacks telegraph facilities, weeks probably will pass before direct reports can be received from that area.

THE SAMPLER

It hangs upon the wall, beside my bed—
A curious pattern in embroidery
Wrought by my great-grandmother's silken thread,
And come all down through the years to me.
A blend of pink and purple, gold and green,
In sprays where the strangest brown bees lurk;
Verses of hymns with arabesques between,
And in the centre "Sarah Jane: Her Work"
And every morning when those eyes of mine
That slender, sober child in Quaker-dress—
Intent upon her task to make it fine
And as I doff my tufted counterpane
I lean to whisper, "Thank you, Sarah Jane!"

Danger to Health

in risking doubtful substitutes for Kotex

IT'S a temptation, sometimes, to save a few pennies by accepting a substitute for Kotex.

But what a costly saving it may be! What guarantee have you of the hygienic safety of that substitute, if you know nothing of its makers? Is it fit for this personal use? How was it made? Where?

When your choice is Kotex, you're backed by medical approval. The best hospitals use it. They appreciate its gentle purity in Kotex, the exacting care with which it is made.

You should never consider sanitary protection of lower standards. Insist on Kotex. Genuine Kotex.

PINCH HITTERS DELIVER WITH HOME RUNS

Tom Jenkins and Hack Wilson Smacked Four Basers

ON RAMPAGE

Tony Cuccinello of Reds Hit Safely Six Times in One Game

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

About the most that can be expected of a ball player who comes into a game as a pinch batsman is that he hit a home run. It is a rare occurrence, so rare that no player expects it more than three times in one season and any man, who can do it three times in a year in the baseball leagues gets his name into the record books. Now that the phenomenon of pinch homer took place twice yesterday to provide in a pair of high spots in the big league campaign.

Tom Jenkins of the St. Louis Browns pinch hit a four bagger against Boston Red Sox with one on base, providing half the runs of the three-run rally which gave the Browns a 9 to 8 victory. Hack Wilson, last year's home run king of the National League, stepped in as a pinch batsman in the Chicago Cubs' battle with the Phillies and nicked Phil Collins for a homer.

Collins, however, gained revenge for that blow in the same inning, when he rapped out a single and drove in two runs as the Phillies a 4 to 3 triumph. Philadelphia made only four hits off Malone in the two of Collins, but every one of them was good for a run.

Cubs Now Third

The defeat dropped the Cubs once more into third place as the New York Giants divided their second straight doubleheader with Pittsburgh. The Cubs made up one point ahead and the teams are tied in the battle for the fourth place of costly Giant errors, Pittsburgh piled up four runs in the first inning to win the opener 7 to 5. Old Clarence Mitchell proved too much for the Pirate batters in the second game, while the Giants scored five times off Larry French in the first frame to win 6 to 1.

The change in the standings once more benefitted the St. Louis Cardinals, who increased their margin of leadership to 9 1-2 games by trouncing Brooklyn for the third straight time 8 to 5. The duel between Dazzy Vance and Bill Hallahan turned out to be something of a hitting match, but Hallahan had all the better of it and received some strong backing. Sparky Adams made five straight hits and Frank Frisch hit a timely homer. Pirates Split

Pittsburgh's even break put the Pirates into a virtual tie for fifth place with Boston as the Cincinnati Reds once more slammed a double defeat onto the Braves. An assault that netted 20 hits, six by Tony Cuccinello, gave Cincinnati the first the first game 17 to 3. In the second Johnson and Frey gave the Braves to four hits, while Cincinnati broke loose again, hitting a homer with two on base in the eighth for the runs that brought a 4 to 2 victory.

A's Increase Lead

Philadelphia's Athletics, aided considerably by the Chicago White Sox, made their American League lead eleven games over Washington. A four hit pitching performance by Rube Walberg gave the A's a 5 to 2 triumph over Detroit while Chicago downed Washington 10 to 8. The Senators made seven hits but remained in the battle through Chicago's five errors.

New York and Cleveland just get their second inning started when rain came along and washed out the programme.

STARS

Tom Jenkins, Browns—Came up as pinch batsman in third inning and clouted homer with two on against Red Sox.

Rube Walberg, Athletics—Chalked up 11th victory, holding Tigers to four hits.

Sparky Adams, Cardinals—Doubled Robin sizzling for four singles and a double.

Bob Creger, Pirates—His eighth inning homer with one on enabled Pirate to beat Giants in first game of double-header.

Clarence Mitchell, Giants—Pitched steady ball to beat Pirates in second game.

Tony Cuccinello, Reds—Collected two doubles, triple and three singles against Pirates to help Reds defeat Braves and add home run punch to Cincinnati attack.

Phil Collins, Phillies—Drove in two runs with pinch single in eighth inning to defeat Cubs 4 to 3.

Hack Wilson, Cubs—Pinch batted for Bush in eighth inning and hit home run with two on base.

Joe Judge, Washington—Batted in two runs with single in eighth inning to help Senators defeat White Sox 10 to 8.

A RECORD AND HOW

According to the latest baseball dope and data there are only five men on record that have pitched no run, no hit, and no-nae-greatering first base games in the history of baseball in the major leagues. Two of these were made in the National League and the remainder in the American League. The first time that the feat was performed was away back in 1880, when J. Lee Richmond of the Worcester team did it. The second was five days later, by John M. Ward of the Providence team. Almost twenty years lapsed before Denton T. (Cy) Young of Boston, on May 5, 1904, performed the feat. Adrian C. Joss of Cleveland in 1908, and Charles G. Robertson of Chicago in 1922 complete the official list of the big leaguers who have performed the miracle of baseball. The other day a new name was added to the list, which he isn't a big leaguer (in fact, "was in a recreation league") but he has a record for this season. He is known as "Turk" Reynolds of the Cook county team, Detroit. The final score was 5-0. Peyton struck out 13 of the 15 batters. Not a ball was hit to the outfield.

PREMIUM FOR BABY DAUGHTERS

Bringgar, India, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Owing to an alarming decrease in the number of female children in the state, the Maharaja of Kashmir today offered an acre of land to every father of a new-born baby girl.

He also had pamphlets and posters circulated through the villages around the populace against the killing of female children. In years past, northern Indian aces have made it a practice to destroy female offspring at birth because they potentially were less valuable as workers than male children.

NEWARK BEARS REGAIN SECOND PLACE IN LOOP

Readings Double Defeat of Rochester Helps the Bear's Cause

LEAPS NOSED OUT

Baltimore holds Top Rung by Their Win Over Toronto

(By The Associated Press)

With a little co-operation from the Reading Keys, Paul Mannaire's Newark Bears had regained second place in the International League race today and trailed the pace-setting Baltimore Orioles by only one game and a half.

The Rochester Red Wings dropped from second place to third, two and one half games behind the Orioles, when they accepted a double beating from the Keys in a night twin bill. The double triumph advanced Reading's sensational winning streak to 11 games in a row.

The Keys won the opener, 6 to 5 in 11 innings as Barnhart stepped in and halted the Red Wings' attack after they staged a rally in the sixth, that tied the score. Barnhart gave Rochester only two hits over the last five innings. The Keys pounded four red Wing hurlers for 14 hits in the second game to win 8-5. Neither starting pitcher, Kirsch of Reading and Smith of Rochester, was effective but Hemsley was the effective relief ivy Kirsch while Hyring, Formash and Irvin all failed to stop Reading's batsmen. Reading now trails Baltimore by two games. Leafs by only two games and a half. Orioles just lead Leafs.

Baltimore just lasted to nose out Toronto 5-4. The Orioles took a three run lead in the first innings but Toronto pecked away at that and tied the score in the eighth and ninth to come within one of victory.

Heinie Sand made a leaping catch of a liner off Black's bat in the ninth to start a fast double play that ended the game.

Newark won by scores of 1-0 and 4-3. Hub Pruett outpitched Herb Hasenmayer in the opener, allowing only four hits as against seven permitted by the Oakland hurler although the one run of the game was unearned. In the sixth Jim Boone walked, was sacrificed to second and scored on an infield out and scored on a passed ball. The Bears also had to fight hard for the second game, Dusty Cooke scoring the winning run in the sixth, when he dashed home safely from third base on a short fly to Jersey City's Jake Manaux and speece held the Royals to five hits in this game. Brown and Sherid permitted only six.

Jersey City and Buffalo split a double header, Jersey Citty winning the opener 6-2 while Buffalo took the nightcap by the same score. Walter Brown was in form in the first game, holding the Bisons to eight scattered hits while the Skeeters were making good use of nine of the Crash Davis and Doulz. Ralph Shinners clouted his 22nd homer of the season with the bases filled in the tenth inning to give the Bisons the second game, Jack blow broke up a great pitcher's battle between Michael of Buffalo and Perkins and Hartmann of Jersey City. Michaels gave up only six hits while the two Skeeter hurlers allowed eight.

This evening the local Victorias have their backs to the wall when they meet Belleville in the second game of the league playoff. The Vics won last a hard one by 7-6 in Tweed on Wednesday but expect to be outplayed.

Ralph Ivey pitched about the best game of his career only to have his team mates throw a lovely chance to win in the sixth innings. Eggi does the honors and Ivey got beat when Casey turned on his "speed ball."

The Intermediates have been playing a very good brand of ball all season and are ahead facing them tonight, perhaps they will rise to the occasion and make a third game necessary.

After taking a back seat all season the B.A.A.A. juniors won the local junior league last week. The Association kids deserve a lot of credit for the way they battle to win the league.

Manager Vern Weir has the kids on their toes all the time. It was the fighting spirit that won for them last night by the score of 5 to 2. "Ernie Smith for the losers pitched a smart game, but the fielding behind him was ragged. Tonight's game for the B.A.A.A. kids. (May they go far.)

Winners Meet Fosters of Peterboro in Next Round

Winning both games of the Hastings County Junior League play-off the B.A.A.A. juniors meet the "Posters" of Peterboro in the first round of the O.B.A.A. play-downs. The Association kids went into the play-offs with the league leading Moose Juniors to their two straight games from the leaders and cop the pennant. This is the first year that the Association kids have played together and under the careful eye of Manager Vern Weir they won the league title.

The first game of the play-off was played on Monday evening, when the B.A.A.A. kids came out with a win. Again last evening they battled the Moose Juniors for nine innings and came out the victorious by the score of 5 to 2. The Association juniors hit the ball in the pinches to win the game by the score of 5 to 2. The Association juniors hit the ball in the pinches to win the game by the score of 5 to 2. The Association juniors hit the ball and had no less than three double plays to stop the rallies of the Moose. "Bud" Wilkins on the mound for the winners hurled consistent ball and was given airtight support from his team mates. While "Ernie" Smith pitched a masterful game but his team mates let him down in the pinches.

The kids played excellent baseball and the few fans, that attended the game were rewarded with an exhibition that warranted a better attendance. A double by Culhane in the fifth innings put the game away for the B.A.A.A. juniors when he drove two runs over the plate to take the lead and the team never lost it. The game was well contested and fielding ran high between the opposing players, but after the game the losing Moose kids were the first to wish the winners luck in the Provincial play-downs.

The Association juniors have two real smart pitchers in "Chuck" Smith and "Bud" Wilkins. These two hurlers are very capably handled by "Jimmie" McDurfe, on the receiving end. The infield is a smart bunch of ball tossers in the persons of Culhane at first, Murray at second, Dimmie at third and Barriage in the short field. They are well fortified in the outfield with Carter, Graham, Dimmie, Saunders and Gibbs. Batting all into consideration, Vern Weir has a real smart little team and they will be in the fight from now on.

CIACO GIRLS HAVE CHANCE

Winners in League Dependent on Next Three Games

With their backs to the wall the Ciaco girls came to life and won from the Belleville Fruit league by the score of 12 to 8 last evening. The Corbyville girls had to win the game in order to stay in the league race and now are in a tie with the Ciaco girls for third place being but one game behind and a possibility for fourth spot.

The game was clearly a slugging contest with batters swinging at the most extra base hits. Both teams used two pitchers to try and stem the tide of base hits but with no avail. Tonight the Belleville Fruit play the National Maids, who have first place well in command. The Fruit leaders have to win both tonight's and tomorrow evening's games to assure themselves of second place. Tomorrow night they battle the last placing Maple Leafs at Corbyville.

Berg and Conzoneri To Meet in London

New York, N.Y., Aug. 14—Jack (Kid) Berg may get another shot at Tony Canzoneri's welterweight championship, this time in his native London. Negotiations for the match, at 15 rounds, have virtually been completed with London as the site and September 14 as the date. Apparently the only difficulty yet to be removed is the question of whether George Ward of Los Angeles will accept the role of referee. Sammy Goldman, manager of Canzoneri, refuses to accept the match unless Blake is the third man in the ring. Sol Gold, manager of Berg, says Blake is satisfactory to him.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 5 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Now that the horror of absolute solitude was upon them, Lady Greystoke's overwrought nerves gave way, and the reaction came. "Oh, John, the horror of it. What are we to do? If it were only you and I," she sobbed, "we could endure it, I know; but, the baby—" His great heart yearned to comfort her.

After calming her, he opened the box containing his rifles and ammunition, that they might both be armed against possible attack. His first thought was to arrange a sleeping shelter for the night; something which might serve to protect them from prowling beasts. Together they sought a favorable location.

Four trees were selected which formed a rectangle, and cutting long branches from other trees he constructed a framework around them, fastening the ends of the branches securely to the trees by means of rope, a quantity of which Black Michael fortunately had furnished him from the hold of the Fuwalda.

During the day the forest about them had been filled with excited birds of brilliant plumage, and dancing, chattering monkeys, who watched these new arrivals and their wonderful nest-building operations with every mark of keenest interest and fascination. By dusk the snug shelter was completed.

A sharp lookout was kept while they worked, and once they saw their little simian neighbors come scurrying over the nearby ridge, and casting affrighted glances over their shoulders, extinct as plainly as though by speech that they were fleeing some terrible thing which lay concealed there. What was it?

Returning to the home of her birth after an absence of 65 years, Mrs. E. N. Rusbaum of Pomona, Cal., grand-daughter of the late Sheriff Moodie, visited Belleville yesterday afternoon. She was born in Belleville, the daughter of the late Alexander Moodie, but the family moved to Delaware in 1866 remaining there for four years. The family then moved out west taking up their residence in Greeley, Colo., a short time after the close of Belleville, where the family resided until the death of Mr. Moodie some four years ago.

Mrs. Rusbaum is the grand-daughter of the late Sheriff Moodie, who was the first sheriff of Hastings county. They resided at one time in the house now as the Moodie Cottage, at the corner of Sinclair and West streets. Mrs. Rusbaum is the Rev. A. L. Geen, Mrs. Rusbaum is at present living with her daughter in Pomona, since the tragic death of her husband some years ago.

Later she motored out with her parents at the age of three, where she had had the opportunity of visiting the town on several occasions. She is at present returning from a European tour by motor, having travelled over the better part of Europe. While yesterday afternoon she made a visit to the home of Jerry A. Geen the house in which she was born. At the latter's home her grandfather, Sheriff Moodie, built the cottage in the garden where he died out in the suburbs of what was then known as Moodie Creek.

SOCCER

Two football teams, Picton and Bellerville, met in an exhibition game Wednesday evening at the old fair grounds and Belleville winning 1-0. It was the first time a football team from Picton had visited Belleville. A large crowd was in attendance. Belleville won the toss and chose to play with the wind blowing behind them. Red Crossley kicked off for the visitors the pasaed to Bell, who passed the ball over to Pettit and Titterson Hamel. Titterson centred from the left, then took up the attack and Brooks raced away on the right wing but shot by mid-field Hall followed, Titterson handed and Wilkinson took the ball down the field and Hall, Bolcroft and Norridge worked the ball down to the centre headed away.

Next to end play followed then Crossley, Ray and Perkins by good combination broke away, Ray shot and the Belleville goalie went down for a goal, but the ball got to the ball and the referee awarded Belleville a free kick which brought relief to the home team. Johnson and Norridge got through and Campbell cleared. Hedger headed mouth.

Picton gained a free kick for a foul throw in and Harrington placed over to Pettit, who forced a corner kick. Brain headed the ball away and Norridge was hurt and the game stopped for a few minutes.

Half time came afterwards with no scoring. After the interval Belleville kicked off and took up the attack, both heads forced then Parks headed away and tricked his opponent and passed to Norridge. The goal keeper Campbell, partly cleared and Johnson, following up banged the ball in for a goal to open the scoring for the home team.

Picton tried hard to equalize but Hatfield cleared into touch, the game was very even first one team and then the other having chances. Colcroft put in a hard shot but just a little too high. Hood cleared to Picton and Wilkinson dribbled through, he was practically through with Hatfield obstructing him off and Titterson cleared. Red Crossley and Ray in a hard drive which went over the bar and the whistle blew for time leaving Belleville winners of a hard and even game — one goal to nothing. SWIFT JUSTICE FOR 3 SLAYERS SOUGHT BY MOB

Negro, Two Whites, Who Murdered Four, Get Life Terms Day of Arrest

LYNCHING AVERTED

Guards Use Tear Bombs, Clubs, to Keep Back Angry Mob

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 14.—(UP) —Life imprisonment was the speedy punishment given a negro and his two white companions last night for the brutal murder and cremation of two boys and girls of high school age.

Brought into circuit court less than three hours after they had confessed to the crime, the negro, Ossian Sweet, 30, and the two white youths, Frank Oliver and Fred Smith, 19, were sentenced by old convict, heard Judge George W. Sample, who has sat on the bench quette prison for each of the four murders. Sentences will run concurrently, thus making it virtually impossible that they ever will be released.

As Judge Sample pronounced judgment, the grim court house was crowd of 4,000 or 5,000 men sitting on the streets and on the court house lawns. The shuddered as they thought of the terrible crime they had experienced at the hands of fellow citizens during the afternoon and evening.

Speedy as justice was, it was accelerated by the presence of the mob demanding a chance to lynch the killers and by the fact the prisoners were anxious to reach a haven behind prison bars.

Rushed to Prison

Exploding tear gas bombs to keep back the crowd, and clubs to keep on lynching the murderers, officers fought their way to an automobile with their prisoners and escorted them quickly to prison.

Harry Bennett, chief of the Ford Motor Company police, drove down his car to the foot of the steps of the courthouse. Officers jammed the entrance to the court house, and a moment later it roared away with the prisoners. Two other police cars joined it. It was unrobbed the party would go to Marquette State prison, 30 miles away, for the night, and proceed on to Marquette branch prison today.

The tear gas was effective in holding back the crowd long enough to get the prisoners away, but it was ineffective in stopping the mob.

Motorcycle officers aided in clearing the streets after shots were fired, but it was impossible to tell if they were from the crowd or by police.

Negroes Gang Raped Girl

Deputy sheriffs, town police, state troopers and National Guardsmen patrolled the streets and guarded the entrances to the court house, while the brief statements of the negro and his companions were taken by Judge Sample. Tear gas bombs had been used early in the police had to fight their way into the court-house with their prisoners.

Action was rapid in the final phases of the trial. Only a brief progress was made in solving the mystery of the burned Dodge, Wheatley and their girl chums, Victoria Ovid and Anna Mae Harrison, whose bodies were found cremated near Dunlap last Saturday morning, until yesterday. Then police got a clue.

Negroes Gave Clue

From a negro, Press Johnson, who had a "alibi" accompanied by high-up suspicions, came the clue. Johnson, questioned by police, stone, said he dreamed he saw three negroes committing the murders.

"Next day," said Johnson, "I met Tom Daniels and he told me he had cut on his hand. 'How come that cut, Tom Daniels,' I asked him. He said it was an accident and I said, 'Tom, you are in bad. Somebody got murdered,' and he began shaking all over."

Johnson's tip was accompanied by clues from George Nelis, another negro, to whom the boys told how the killing was given. He turned the clues over to the prosecutor and one of the rich rewards offered for the slayers.

Blackstone and Smith withstood the questioning of officers until late in the afternoon, when Blackstone broke. He implicated Smith, who later confessed, and both named Oliver, who had fled toward Detroit. He also admitted his part in the whipping.

Why They Killed Them

which really suggested the murders. As boys they lived near each other and accompanied each other on their expeditions.

Smith worried about Lore knowing him," Blackstone said. "He told Smith he could get rid of him for $50." Then Smith said 'what about the girls' and we lined them all up to question them. Smith grabbed one of them and started shooting at Lore. Then we had to kill them all.

The negro's cold-blooded confession detailed how the victims were carried about for hours in the car, once the drivers stopped for Lore's home. Then the lonely road was found. The bodies were stripped with gasoline and a match applied.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith saves San Francisco by airplane to escape arrest in connection with a murder in which her sweetheart, Tony, is implicated. She had not known that he was a gunman. Evelyn Howard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii, is abroad. She is enroute to New York to live with her wealthy aunt, Mrs. Allison Carstairs, whom she has never seen. The plane crashes and all but Fanchon are killed. Grasping the opportunity to start life anew, Fanchon goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn. Mrs. Carstairs affection wins her heart. At Southampton, awaiting the arrival of her son, Collin, Mrs. Carstairs warns Fanchon not to take him seriously. He arrives and accuses Fanchon of being there under false pretenses. Collin objects to "Evelyn". Fanchon learns that Evelyn had indiscreet affairs with a naval officer and a native. Fanchon's sincerity in explaining that "her" indiscretion was only folly overcomes Collin's antagonism. A warm comradeship ensues and together they spend a happy summer.

CHAPTER XVI

"The first thing you know," said Dollie to Fanchon one day on the links, "first thing you know you'll be getting married and then where will we be?"

"Just where you were before," she laughed, "and not a thing to do according to your own early confession."

"I'd rather boped you'd forgotten that," he declared, and promptly snuffed his easy approach to the green.

"Well, so I have! No, I won't get married, ever," said Fanchon, and her eyes were very dark and sombre.

"Neither will I, then," he added cheerfully, "I couldn't bear to bring a fourth into our happy threesome. We'll just go about like a ripe old age together," he laughed.

But his eyes were shadowed, too. He had been aware, for some time, that he was looking for too fond of his cousin. And he looked with horror on do most people, upon the marriage of persons of the same blood, of relatives.

That his attitude was a little troubled, he knew also. He had seen it in her eyes; heard it in a tone—a voice which she had uttered in his hearing. But she called him and Evelyn. She loved them both. He thought, dazedly, feeling old and worn, how strange that we should have thrilled and wondered so much on first sight! Was that it in itself a "warning"—love to come. Hate, they say, is very near love.

"After," he remarked aloud, "after you make your debut and I see you safely through it and shoo all the unenlighten of the debutantes, I'm thinking of going round the world again. You'll be with mother, so I won't have any usual compunction about leaving her."

He looked at Fanchon. He couldn't help it. She gained, under tan, under the healthy, lovely glow. He saw her eyes fall; his lips tighten. She turned to her waiting caddy and selected a club from her bag with the utmost concern.

"Well miss you," she said, lightly. "Auntie spoke of taking the globe abroad in the spring for a long visit. France and England and perhaps elsewhere! Maybe we could meet you somewhere and come on home together."

"Thanks," he said, gloomily.

"Why, Collin, for what?" she asked, in some amazement.

"For taking me with you."

He couldn't help it. If his life depended on it because he would have been forced to sacrifice his life. Fund of brief time have now, as she walked beside him, troubled, not answering his challenge, that he loved her. He loved her terribly.

"Of course, we'll miss you," she said, still trying to keep her words light and casual, "more than we can say."

There was no further speech between them of a personal nature, that day. They both played very bad golf.

Going home Fanchon went directly to her room and lay down on her bed while Emma got her some clothes for the dance she was going to with Collin that night. She lay very still and straight, having taken off her clothes to put on a thin silken blouse. It was very warm, the heat of early September. They would soon return to town. Collin would soon be leaving them. This was the first she had heard of it.

From cruelty and armed truce she and Collin Carstairs had grown to a very fine friendship. She was grateful to him for taking her at her word and for never, by word or sign, referring again to the original clash of their meeting and its cause. She and he had a mutual bond in their great love for Jennie Carstairs —they also liked the same things, laughed at the same jokes, were responsive to the same chords of beauty.

They were perfectly mated. And she knew, lying there, trying to prevent herself without him, even with Jennie, that she had fallen in love with him. Not suddenly, wildly, girlishly, as she had with Tony. Not, unthinkingly, not even romantically. Not perhaps fallen into love at all. She had rather grown into love, through friendship.

It was a long, hazy, sunny summer through. And it was a mature love which she knew, lying there on her bed as she lay listening to Emma's soft footsteps, listening to the noise outside of her windows, to the laughter of someone on the grounds.

It was unthinkable.

In the first place she was an impostor. She had not been honorable. And had she been Evelyn Howard the barrier of blood would have stood between her and the consummation of her love.

Only by telling him who she was, only by confessing to him that she was not Evelyn, could that barrier be removed. And that step she was not prepared to take and could not face taking.

The enormity of her offense came to her more and more clearly. If, she thought, wildly, she could have only go away as he had said he would do, and go away quickly, she could perhaps win back to peace again, with Jennie, with Collin's gentleness and love to protect her. But now every step she took seemed charged with peril, at any moment the ground might open and swallow her up.

She knew that Collin loved her. She was a normal young woman and men had loved her before; she knew the symptoms. But Collin, she knew, she would not hide behind a pretense of friendship. It would be cowardly.

She made it, for the rest of their stay at Southampton, as difficult as possible for him to be alone with her. There always were others. She was very popular in the colony with the girls her own age as well as with the men. Mrs. Carstairs watched the evidences of this popularity with great pride and satisfaction.

Evelyn could have any man in Southampton," Jennie said one day to her son.

"I suppose so. And no one's good enough for her," he growled, unthinkingly.

His mother smiled, quizzically. He looked down at her, the expression.

"Oh, I know what you're thinking," he confessed, smiling wryly in his turn. "I don't know whether I love her, no one could believe all that well. A lot of it is old adamantine. I suppose, putting the wrong interpretation on everything—"

"That's what I thought . . . from the beginning," his mother said, quickly, but now his tone caught belatedly at her heart and she said, quickly, the pain gone: "Oh, Collin—dear!"

His heart then. Knew that she knew. He said, with hals a groan; "I know. I—don't—I say it—do? I'm sorry, mother."

STOLE CIGARETTES

London, Ont., Aug. 14.—Robbers last night broke into Coleman's Confectionery at Ridout Street, and stole tobacco and smokers' accessories valued at about $200 as well as a small amount of money.

'Tis always morning somewhere in the world.—Richard Horne.

For warm weather appetites... these enticing cereals

Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice, super-crisp because of the NEW Seal-Krisp package, give tempting variety and rich nourishment.

WHEN warm weather makes appetites finicky, serve Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice . . . crisp, toasty grains that melt in your mouths. They satisfy, even when appetites are most hard to please.

Plenty of wholesome nourishment, too, in these toothsome morsels. Because of "puffing," a unique process which explodes each grain to eight times normal size. Every tiny food cell is exploded. Every particle becomes more easily digestible, more quickly nourishing. Every grain is cooked through and through.

The grains are sealed hot and dry in the package. The new Seal-Krisp package keeps them just as crisp, just as flavoury as the moment they were shot from the gun. Absolutely sun-fresh . . . they actually taste from the package when it is opened.

For variety, always keep both Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice in your pantry. Serve with milk or cream or with fruit, fresh or cooked. Then you will be sure of enticing meals for warm weather days.

With all the pomp and stagnificence shall-le a feature of European official activities, the ceremony of opening the Hungarian Parliament was celebrated recently after the general election. Old Fashioned Lady

by Alice K. Hammerslough

She had been christened Dorothy Florence but she was such a fluffy little thing that no one ever thought of her as anything but "Dotsie". She grew up with that name and she grew old with it. Even that great big boy of hers, Gerald, never called her anything but "Dotsie." She was still "Dotsie" to the family, what there was left of it, but the strangers spoke of her as "that queer mother of Gerald Deming's," or "poor dear Helen Deming's affection —that mother-in-law, you know."

When Mr. Deming died, she moved from her old home to the larger city where Gerald had made such a success. She occupied a sunny back room in Gerald's house. "We can't have guests," Helen Deming insisted to say, "Mother Deming has the guest room."

Mr. Deming died at a most inopportune time for his family leaving very little, but Gerald gave his mother an allowance. She spent most of it in "fixing up" her room and she did not care to sit around when "the children" had company. She said people should be alone at times, so she spent most of her time there and loved her room.

On the bed was a spread of point d'esprit with a big blue bow in the centre. Ruffled shams covered the pillows and at the windows were ruffled curtains tied back with big blue bows. A large piece of wire netting adorned one wall and placed in corner was in the round holes were placed old photos. The pictures were always falling out but Dotsie just laughed—and put them back. "All old friends," she would say. There was an old walnut dressing table, a long mirror, to the sides of which were attached brackets holding the vases of paper flowers. She had brought this from home. Helen hated it but Gerald said it looked natural.

Two rocking chairs were in the room. Dotsie rocked incessantly. It was Gerald's pet idea who could bear the creak as she worked in the kitchen.

"As if it weren't hard enough to keep a cook," Helen said to Gerald but Gerald only laughed.

Sometimes Dotsie would ask Helen's friends to come in for just a moment. She was very hospitable and would offer them pink taffy candy which she kept in a painted box on the table. She entertained them with anecdotes of Gerald's childhood.

She never interfered with Helen's household, never went even in the millinery department, though she longed passionately to make Gerald's favorite cakes or to use the old recipes that family tradition had handed down. It would have given her a feeling of some importance in her household. But Helen said the cook would not like it.

She did not know many people but often went to meetings and concerts and was with Helen. At such times she dressed with great care. Her taffeta dress with tiny ruffles covered her slim figure, her feet were shod in little satin slippers, her hair done in crimpy waves. She spent hours with the curling iron, and her head was a large lacy hat with one pink rose depending from it. Her eyes always looked strained and red. Helen tried to make her change—myopic or dress, but there the usually plaint Dotsie was adamant.

"I may be old fashioned," she would say, "but I know what is becoming and dear Mr. Deming used to say—Dotsie, never wear anything but large hats and ruffled dresses. If he were here he wouldn't want me to change."

At teas Dotsie would hang on to the edge of conversations. No one talked directly to her. She was always smiling, nervously, and pretending to enjoy herself. She was very lonely. Finally Helen would come to take her home.

At dinner that night Dotsie would tell Gerald about "the party", and to Helen. "Didn't Mrs. Waite look lovely," and "it was a beautiful tea though of course, there were lots of people there." Glad you had a nice time, Dotsie," Gerald would say. Helen knew Dotsie was in her room and the next day her eyes would be redder than ever.

Gerald and Helen were to give a party. It was to be in honor of the

KELVINATOR IS HEALTHY FINANCIALLY

Call In All Gold Notes At A Price Of 105

SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Rates Assests Over Six Liabilities Are Nine To One

Kelvinator Corporation has called its outstanding six percent convertible gold notes at the call price of 105, it was announced today by O. W. Kelvey, President. The redemption of these debentures, which will take place on September 30th at the end of a sixty-day required notice of period, will leave the Kelvinator Corporation without any outstanding bonded indebtness except building loan and mortgage association.

In commenting on the action of the board of Directors, Mr. Mason pointed out that the corporation shows a working capital of $7,432,-000 and a ratio of current assets over current liabilities of 9.8 to 1.

Discussing further the conditions which made possible the action of the board Mr. Mason said, "Each year since 1928 has shown a substantial increase in net profits over the preceding year despite a decidedly opposite trend in general business conditions. During the quarter ending June 30th, the third of our fiscal year, we saw the full, effect of production which has not retarded buying season in 1931.

"Shipments for June were 40 percent in excess of the same month last year and July will show even greater improvement over July, 1930. A recent appraisal of sterling net valuations for the quarter ended June 20th, 1931 to be $1,-714,607 or $1.64 per share after all charges except Preferr I Income Taxes as against $1.26 per share for the same period in 1930, clearly indicates the steady gain."

Firewood may be obtained in exchange for potato peelings or other food refuse which is later used, through an automatic machine recently installed in Berlin.

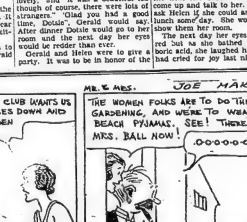
GOING FISHING!

What a Wonderful Province for Fish!

STOP AT THE SIGN OF THE SHELL

DO the people of Ontario and adjacent states realise what wonderful fishing is available within a few hours' or a day's drive of almost any point in Ontario?

In his journeyings over the fishing routes of 'the province, The Shell Road Scout has been surprised to learn that people living in certain "anglers' paradises," were skeptical as to the existence of good fishing in their own localities. It is easy to say "the place is fished out", but hard to convince The Shell Road Scout until it has been tried.



He has visited hundreds of lakes and streams in Ontario, near cities and towns and also "back of beyond" at the cost of long portages and canoe trips. His bulletins describe both the accessible places which satisfy the average amateur and a few of the "unknown" places which are ever a challenge to the professional.

If you want good fishing inquire wherever the sign of the Shell appears.

Six "Do You Know" stories appear in this issue, each telling about some firm or business man, who is serving the people of this section with superior products and good service. The last sentence in each of the stories is a question, the answer to which can be obtained by calling the firm that the story describes.

A three dollar prize is given every day by the Ontario Intelligencer for the most correct answers to these questions. The object is to make it necessary for the readers to form a close contact with the firms, thus further acquainting themselves with our better business enterprises. The winner for the day is selected for the originality that their construction shows. Novel arrangements such as the clipping of the articles and pasting them, together with pictures, printed answers, touches of humor, or those with water colors or crayons, etc., are a few suggestions that may be helpful to contestants when writing their answers.

The "Do You know" articles are easy to find as they appear in the form of straight news stories, and at the bottom of each there is a footnote in small black-face type, which announces the $3.00 cash prize and tells the number of articles to be found in this issue.

Look through the paper and find the articles and read them. Call the firm that they tell you of and they will gladly give you the answer to the question in the story. When you have gotten the complete set of six answers, write them down in your own way and send them to the "Do You Know" Editor at The Ontario Intelligencer. Only a few moments time are required to compete and you may be the winner for today. You'll find the articles interesting and the work profitable fun.

Everyone is eligible, even those who have won a prize already. If you have won once you assuredly have an earnest desire to win again, and if you have tried unsuccessfully be not a bit more original and artistic and try again. No easier way to earn those few extra dollars of pin money can be found.

CALL CONFERENCE ONLY SOLUTION

Recommended Five Day Week and Six Hour Day

Atlantic City, N.J., Aug. 14—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor believes the only alternative to Unemployment Relief Insurance is immediate calling of a national conference of labor and industry representatives by President Hoover.

In a statement last night the committee called attention to distress, the "irresistible demand for work," said unemployment was increasing "to an astonishing degree" and maintained that the owners and managers of industry "stand impotent and helpless."

A five day week, a six hour day, with maintenance of the same wage scale, and immediate construction progress "without red tape" were recommended to meet the emergency.

Nurse is Dead and Doctor Severely Wounded in Apartment

THREE SHOTS FIRED

Find Revolver and Note but These Offer No Explanation

New York, Aug. 13.—Chloroform, a knife, a note, an engagement ring and finally a pistol provided mystery today in the affairs of Dr. Milton Thomashefsky, lying severely wounded in a hospital, and his pretty 26-year-od nurse, Agnes Birdseye, lying dead from bullet wounds.

It seemed at first glance to be a case of attempted murder and suicide.

Three shots were fired: one which struck the physician and two which struck the young woman. Police, however, were concerned as to how the three exploded shells had been ejected from the .32 calibre pistol. They said Miss Birdseye could not have performed this act after shooting herself.

Philip Pines, a friend of Dr. Thomashefsky, said that on Monday night Thomashefsky awoke during the night to find that he had been disenfranchised of his correspondence, a knife. A note was pinned nearby. It said:

"Harry, we have settled our account with you."

Dr. Thomashefsky has a brother named Harry.

Just before the shooting both Miss Birdseye and Dr. Thomashefsky made frantic telephone calls, the nurse calling her sister to say, "something wrong," and the physician calling Miss Birdseye's father telling him excitedly to "come right over, something terrible has happened."

The father, Louis Birdseye, believes a third person was present.

Important Recommendations Made To Survey Committee

Meeting Unanimous For RAISE WOLF BOUNTY

Also Asked For Closed Season for Partridge This Year

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 14—Several important recommendations were made to the game survey committee of the Ontario Legislature at a meeting at Richards Landing last night, described by the committee. The meeting was practically unanimous for the use of dogs in hunting deer, claiming the Algoma had been discriminated against. It urged that the big game season be clipped to one week and that deer be not killed in the water. The change in the buck law was disapproved but the protection of fawns was supported, as was also a regulation that big game be exposed in transit.

The gun license was approved when it was explained that under it farmers would be permitted to shoot without a license on their own lands. More wardens were suggested and a raising of the wolf bounty to $30 to $35 if possible.

A proposal that non-British subjects be banned from hunting or trapping was strongly supported, as was also a closed season on partridge this year. The committee meets tonight at Thessalon and tomorrow at Blind River.

W.M.S. WEST HUNTINGDON

Seventeen answered the roll call, the word "Light." Mrs. Bray then favored with a solo "Nearer Still Nearer." Several answered to the watchword.

Miss B. Wilson gave a reading full of inspiration and helpful idea entitled, "Our Garden."

Mrs. J. Burke (nee Evelyn Hawkins) of Edmonton was called on to tell of some of the work which she is engaged in, in her society and she gave a few interesting remarks different ways and ideas of raising money. ROLE OF PUBLIC AVENGER LATEST DIX PORTRAYAL STYLES

Tonight is Sugar gift night at the Belle Theatre, Twenty ladies will each be presented with The Pound packet of Redpath's Superior Granulated sugar, with the compliments of the Belle Management, and most housewives who will be busy preserving the latter part of this month will find this most acceptable gift useful at that time.

Richard Dix, always a Belleville favorite, has a special role in his latest punched packed story, "The Defender."

"The Public Defender."

He is a man of deep mystery, a public avenger sworn to right wrong no matter what the cost.

The innocent have cause to admire him because he is a modern impersonation of Robin Hood — romantically mysterious—the thief and absconder hate him murderously; and the police, jealous of his activities, are after him.

This is the novel characterization portrayed by Richard Dix in his new starring vehicle, "The Public Defender," at the Belle Tonight and Saturday, matinee daily.

Though the role is of a different type from the star's previous successes, "Cimarron" and "Young Donovan's Kid," Dix is again vigorously cast as a fighting, romantic man of ideals.

The film is based on the supposition that there are two kinds of laws, one for the poor man and another for the rich.

A thrilling romance has been woven through the story in which Dix rescues a girl from the clutches of her father who has been accused of a bank crime which he did not commit.

The Hall-plot Comedienne, Delphine Poland in "Dangerous Youth" a dainty and tuneful Musical Revue entitled "Angel Cake," and the popular Paramount Newsreel, which receives its premiere Ontario exhibition at the Belle every week-end are announced for presentation on the same program.

The living need charity more than the dead—George Arnold.

"GIFT TO WOMEN" HAS GOOD MUSIC AND STYLE SHOW

"Gift to Women" was well received last night at the Capitol Theatre by a large crowd, amongst which numerous ladies received the dainty 5 o'clock teaspoon of E.P.N.S. Silverwork.

In addition to Frank Fay and Laura La Plante in "Gift to Women," some wonderful shots of fashionable gowns were shown in "Let's Talk Turkey". This with a cartoon and an amusing comedy completes the programme which ends today.

Earl Luick, designer of fashions at the Warner Bros. Studios is responsible for the gorgeous creations worn by the many screen beauties to be seen now at the Capitol Theatre where Warner Bros. "Gift to Women" is now showing.

"A great many of my designs are based on rumors" he declares. "I hear that Paris is expecting to cut necks in a certain manner the next year, or are contemplating using trimming in certain places with certain furs, I do not wait until the fashion really comes in.

I sit once design them for pictures which are shortly to be in production. Thus, by the time Paris actually decrees such styles, our film is on the market.

Only the finest Mackintoshes were offered at 15 cents a basket today as compared to 40 cents last week ago. Other stuffs declined in proportion. The flower section was the only part of the market where prices were maintained at something like normal.

GOV'T STEAMER MAKES JOURNEY

Reaced Most Northerly Post Office And Delivered Mail

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 14 (By The Canadian Press)—Sailing its way through the seas of the Northern Arctic the steamer Canadian Government steamer Beothic has again succeeded in making its annual trip to Bache peninsula, most northerly police post in the world. After several days, when all radio, phone and wireless communication, four delayed messages have reached the Department of Interior from Major T. H. Burwash, assistant Canadian explorer, who is this year making his first journey on the Beothic as officer in charge of the patrol.

The weather condition enabled the ship to make the most northerly set trips on record from Godhavn, Greenland, to Bache, leaving Godhavn, on August 7, the vessel reached the Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers, who carry out patrols in the most northerly parts of the Arctic and who see members of their corps perhaps once a year, came down to the shore, exchanged greetings with members of the crew and received supplies.

The post, located only 11 degrees south of the North Pole, is also the world's most northerly post office. Letters were delivered to the officers and received from them to be delivered to their relatives.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 14—Pinis was written to prosecution of Isaac W. C. Solloway and Harvey M. Mills under the Securities Fraud Act of British Columbia, when five charges of conspiracy to defraud were withdrawn in police court here today.

Following the files by Solloway Mills and Co., Ltd., to a bucketing charge under S 7 in Court court before Judge J. D. Ellis, who imposed a $100 fine, today's development is not exactly unexpected.

F. D. Pratt, representing Hon. R. H. Pooley, Provincial Attorney-General, applied for permission today to drop the prosecution under the five charges, which have been pending against the two stock brokers since last December.

The application was granted with out comment by Magistrate T. O. Shaw.

Car Plunged in River Throwing Occupants Through Windshield

John Haycroft and Son, Joseph Haycroft, Pass Through Harassing Experience—Brakes Applied But Would Not Hold — Both Occupants Severely Cut and Badly Bruised.

"Hurry up—hurry up—car just went into river!" This was the alarming cry which greeted Fred Harman about one fifteen o'clock Saturday morning in a telephone call from Mrs. Delila Hyland, 162 Coleman street. In a second Constable Izzard was away in the police car to the scene of the accident at the intersection of Coleman and Colborne streets." Here he was greeted by the sight of a car about twenty feet from the shore with four wheels pointing skyward. The police officer could not see at first the victim of the accident; in a moment, however, he saw two men slowly and laboously crawling up the river bank. They proved to be John Haycroft, employed by the Carthage Machine Co., Water St., and his son Joseph Haycroft, 28 Henry street. Constable Izzard left the victims to the police car and rushed them to the office of Dr. Morgan, W.a.. Bridge street. They were badly bruised and cut but no fractures were found. They received a very severe and deep gash in the left arm.

Questioned by Police

After receiving medical aid the father and son were taken to the police station and after being questioned by Sergt. Harman they were taken to their home by Constable Izzard in the police car.

The story told to the older Haycroft to the police was that they had been for a ride, crossed the bay bridge to Rosemore, turned and drove to the home of Joseph Keegan, 34 Colborne street where their friends left them. The father and son then started for home and before they had passed the length of two blocks, they were on the bed of the river, car upside down. Haycroft states that he saw a car coming south on Coleman street, he applied the brakes to his car to let the striking a pedestrian crossing the street and the approaching car by. His brakes failed to hold sufficiently and the car bounded over the curb and leaped into the river.

Haycroft, senior, remembers being thrown through the windshield into the water. He opened his son calling for help, waded to the car and managed to open a door and liberate his son.

The police state that as the car lay on its back, the water came up to the radiator cap. The car is badly damaged.

This morning about six o'clock six men began to drag the river. It is said that residents across the river on Dundas street east, were awakened by the great crash when the car hit the river.

"WE WILL SOLVE PROBLEM" STATES PREMIER HENRY

Spoke At Morrisburg in Honor of Hon. Geo. Challies

LATELY ELEVATED

200,000 Unemployed Must Be Looked After

Morrisburg, Ont., Aug. 15.—"I think we are going to solve the unemployment problem," said Premier Henry, Premier of Ontario, told a gathering here yesterday. "Everyone must be adequately taken care of. The women and children in the home must not suffer because the breadwinner cannot get work."

"The Premier's address was the key-speech at the banquet tendered to Hon. George Challies, honored as the Minister who had lately been elevated to cabinet rank in the Henry administration. "But it is a big problem," the premier continued, "to secure work for the 200,000 unemployed through the industrial centres of Canada. Every dollar that was needed and used in an economical way to give employment should be provided, he said. Both the Federal and Provincial Governments contemplated assistance to the municipalities on the public projects might be undertaken and unemployment thus assuaged. The Premier expressed pride in the members of the Dominion Parliament for their action in giving the Bennett Government a blank cheque to meet the situation.

Homage to Rural Ontario

The Premier paid homage to rural Ontario. "I often look to that element to give us stability," he said. "The purpose and the courage to deal with difficulties as they present themselves." In the migration of the rural population to the cities the Premier saw the infusion into urban life of the purpose and brain of the country.

With regard to extravagance, the Premier took his own counsel to heart. He agreed that taxation should be lessened and that money should be spent sparingly; but he asked, where could economy be practiced? No one would suggest that expenditure on education should be curtailed. That could not be done without reducing the standard of today. Ontario was ambitious with regard to education. Ontario was happy said Mr. Challies, in having a provincial govern ment free from corruption. He believed no part of Canada would lift itself out of the present depression quicker than Ontario, and no section of the Province would recover any more rapidly than the eastern portion.

LINDBERGH'S RADIO SAYS ALL IS WELL

Still Flying on Way to Karagin Island, Kana Chatka, Russia.

LINDBERGH
Y Galik, Wash., Aug. 15.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were at Nome Island Saturday morning flown to Asia from Alaska across the sea.

Their landing on the island on the east coast of Siberia, 5,067 mile flight across the Bering Sea from Beiloff, near Nome, Alaska, was announced by the naval radio station on St. Paul Island.

Several radio stations on the Pacific coast received the message saying the flying vacationers reached the island at 3.52 o'clock, or 6.52 p. m. m. EST, 3.48 p.m. on Karagin Island.

Left Friday

The Lindbergh Safety Bay at 2 p.m. Friday (3 p.m. EST) and crossed the Northern Bay in 10 hours and 45 minutes. The story of the flight was told piecemeal in radio reports sent ahead of the progress.

With a 500 gallon supply of fuel, the Lindbergh plane left American waters shortly after the Lindberghs received word of clearing weather to the westward. Fifteen minutes after the take-off all Nome wished ed as the plane disappeared toward Asia.

The St. Paul island radio station made its final contact with the plane 20 minutes after the take-off and reported with it all transmissions until Mrs. Lindbergh advised she was preparing to send the weather story to landing.

Mrs. Lindbergh kept the speed of his ship close to 100 miles an hour—the plane averaged throughout about two hours of flying time. Mr. Lindbergh reported the wind of the flight an hour and a smooth sea. She was attempting to make a non-stop flight to the Siberian stations in Siberia.

Keeping to the north of the storm area, the plane continued its steady progress. Mrs. Lindbergh reported sighting Cape Navarin, 395 miles west of St. Lawrence Island, at 7.40 p.m. EST, saying the plane was flying high and the visibility good.

At 9.20 p.m. EST, alert ears heard Mrs. Lindbergh report her position as 78 miles south of Cape Navarin, 2,300 feet in the air and flying over broken fog along the Siberian coast.

WRECKED TRAIN TO ESTABLISH A BLOCKADE

Expected Order of Hibernians to Travel Over the Railroad

REPRISAL MEASURE

Engineer Order to Drive His Engine Into the Gap

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Aug. 15.—With a band of dour Orangemen wrecked a locomotive near Rich Hill early today and established a blockade against a special train on which delegates to the assembly of Hibernians in Northern Ireland were scheduled to travel.

The gang lifted the rails and stopped a train. They made the engineer drive his engine ahead and started it at full speed toward a gap. They smashed up along the right-of-way and established an effective if somewhat unorthodox blockade.

Their action was interpreted as a measure of reprisal against the "Irish Republican Army" which yesterday threatened action from holding a meeting at Cootehill in the Free State. Orangemen generally are thought that unless speedy repairs were made the Hibernian Assembly at Armagh would be seriously interfered with.

Rich Hill is in County Armagh, close to the border of the Free State and is a strong Orange centre.

Driver Bell, engineer of the wrecked locomotive said he had been ordered to drive at full speed and leaped frantically ahead of him. No sooner had he brought his engine into the gap in the track one of the men sent a bullet whizzing over his head.

"The next one's for you," the men warned him, and Bell did as he was told.

The wrecked locomotive struck the broken rails and overturned the gang workmen fled.

In the Market Hill district of County Armagh trees were felled across roads and telephone wires were cut. At Armagh City a lamp standard was ripped from its seat in the night.

Provincial Deficit Now $6,000,000, According to the Queen's Park Report a Drastic Economies Ordered and New Sources of Revenue Studied By Financial Experts — Heavy Assessments on Trucking and Increase in Liquor Prices Also Being Debated.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 15 (By the Canadian Press)—The Globe today publishes the following:

"Faced with an operating deficit for the current year that may run as high as $6,000,000, The Ontario Government is tightening up its retrenchment policy more than ever, is taking steps, it is understood, to eliminate wastage and duplication in departmental administration and is said to have its treasury experts now scouring the possibilities of new levies.

"The deficit estimates for this year in the budget speech of last session was $2,670,000.

"With nine months of the year gone, there is reported a deficit, however, of slightly more than $6,000,000.

SWIFT PLANT BUILT BY LOCAL CONTRACTOR

Belleville Workmen and Materials Used Almost Exclusively

W. H. PATTERSON

Has Had Many Fine Build ings to His Credit in Contracting Field

This is Belleville's growing time, a healthy growth which started some years back and has continued steadily ever since. During the past year there has been a significant expansion in Belleville industries, expansion in itself more remarkable when it is to be noted that this has been a quiet year for many communities. Belleville, by some standards is still while others have actually gone back.

The latest evidence of Belleville's continued progress is the opening of a large branch plant by the Swift Canadian Company here, a firm of international prestige, backed by great resources and magnitude, maintaining many plants in Canada and the United States. In connection with the opening of this plant it is a matter of interest and civic pride that the construction of the plant has been in the hands of a local contractor, that Belleville workmen have been employed and that Belleville material has been used almost entirely in construction.

Another Local Contractor

Patterson Construction Company, of which ex-Alderman Walter Patterson is head, is another addition to the long list of successful local contracting line. The Swift building was commenced early in the present year and was finished well ahead of the stipulated time. A considerable feature of all Patterson contracting is their completion.

Walter Patterson, head of the Patterson Construction Company has had a wide experience in the contracting field. For some years he occupied the responsible position in Northern Ontario, following this with several successful waterworks and sewer contracts in various towns, including Kingsville, Ontario; Smith's Falls, Napanee, Gananoque. His recent contracts can be mentioned the Belleville Filtration plant in connection with the local waterworks one of the finest and most modern plants in existence, constructed at an expense of over $300,000. Other recent contracts included plant additions for the American Hardware Corporation at Belleville, Canadian Bridge Co.; addition to the Stewart Warner Corporation, Belleville; Canadian Bank of Commerce addition; C.P.R. station, Belleville borough; Ontario Government Coldstorage Plant at Brighton, and many others.

Valued Citizen

Mr. Patterson is a valuable citizen, taking a keen interest in everything affecting the city, serving the best interests of the city. He has been active in the Rotary club where he rendered valuable service, and has been actively identified with every forward movement. His policy in building is first always in the management of the Patterson Construction Company seeks to employ local labor as far possible. The large and steady payroll of the company is a valuable asset to the city as a large number of skilled and unskilled workmen are being constantly employed, there being no slack times with this company. Belleville workmen and Belleville materials are utilized to the utmost in every contract undertaken by the Patterson Company, which means a large sum of money spent in local circulation.

In the fine Canadian Company buildings Belleville has notable additions to its industrial colony and Patterson Construction Company, by their fine record for prompt appearance and excellence or construction.

on "Jungle" Belleville

Like many another, through the interest industrial depression, I am "on the bum" and have perchance drifted into Belleville whilst "on my way." I am much struck by the atmosphere of your charming little city, and although viewed through the particular lights of the hobo transient, would say my stay here has been quite beautiful. My abode has been in the local caravan, more widely and commonly known as the "Jungle"—a graceful compliment to Darwin indeed! Our life isn't what one would describe a bed of roses and the smelly savors of the place not quite the fragrance of sweet swelling myrtle, but we are an interesting crowd and our Bohemyncracies would certainly intrigue the more placid dwellers of Uptown.

Among our particular coterie we have an individual aptly named the "Overland Pete" who has freighted the whole American continent and made stopovers for a Svalhond and on his way looks for all the world like Santa Claus, Santa Claus with his sack jauntily swinging and his face wreathed in his heterogenous mass of incongruities. Every "jungle" has its characters and ours her one is called the "Coca Cola Kid" who has the peculiarity for riding atop refrigerator cars, and although he has designs on the hash grass by the right of way he usually lightly exclaims, "I'd rather ride on the top—no doubt thinking of some much desired drink of a cooling manner do I.

The bibelligenista of our nomadic assemblage is an Irishman, and consequently a philosopher, viewing the chaotic condition of the world with equanimity and awaits the welcoming of a sanaer universe. Everything is O.K. with him. He is from West, we gather round the dying "Jungle" fires and are patient. He has been in the "Jungle" and land for he can speak charmingly on the subject. He is a confirmed optimist. Other however, he declares that he would not be so sanguine as to say it is unwholesome and full of uncertainties as to the source of the sustenance on the morrow. When Pat and Paddy had his fill, and was sufficient, we are inclined to disagree with such assertions. We often find him there by the old stockyards, close to the rail tracks, lone and contemplative, meditative soul, here in his element, his mind far away from the madding crowd, his ears in doubt, amongst the slys and peas and the lowing cattle.

My partner has been in many vocations. His last was that of a church lay-reader, and consequently resplendant in most gorgeous trappings "doing his bit" outside a whole movie theatre in the city. A newly arrived immigrant from some Eastern clime, with his hopeless and unconsciously stiffened, stood erect and saluted him. That was too much for my friend. He quit the job. He didn't look unlike a Turkish admiral, he prefers this roaming life it seems, not being able to get the "Jungle Life" out of his blood. A roving, perhaps truthful, that he has found no such conditions since Coding his way, he finds much serenity and satisfaction in life as he terms himself "an untrammelled, tambourineless hobo." He never "bums."

The remaining trio, sitting here as I write on a warm august day in an idyllic bower, includes an Aberdonian whose tales of raw sensuality would shock even the most broad minded of Belleville and who has for a partner an olive-skinned youth of Semetic origin, both gamey and inseparable, as if having been brought together by some economic affinity. Jock has earned the sourkrupt of the Jungle" by his unsavoury conversation and unashamed, straight forward manner. He has led a hard knock life all his days, and has a heart of gold, a generous one, although his beauty of character and we believe their surroundings are not of the keeping with his thoughts. His would speak of life in the "quarters" of Montreal and would rot at life as making with a vast and decided relish. Of his past existence which was once his wont, a vision of Jock in the role of an attendance of wine-mad Civet De Leiver, with his apron and tray of the garas, and the deliciousness of Ris de Veau a la Financiere, would be a dismal of sparkling burgundy and although we awakened to the pain of the fact that Jock's past was beyond repast, it has been appetizing and good and it is interesting to ideously remarks, "Aw, what does it matter, what's in the past anyway, can only hold so much whether it be food, drink or women, we've boggle, washed down by plenty of good water." There is much in that.

Thus we make the best of life today; in times of depression, in cawhich we are seeing three men who held up the Clydesdale Bank at Clydebank on Wednesday afternoon, killing two tellers and escaping with a considerable sum of money, believe that the crime was committed by United States bandits.

Their theory is supported by information received yesterday from the bank at about the time of the crime. The men had their waterproof clothes of American cut stood outside the bank wearing them before entering time and was accompanied by the same car. Immediately after, when rushed out of the bank one of them holding a bag containing the loot close to his cheek. They separated immediately and went in different directions in their car which they left behind the tellers dead in the bank. There were evidences of a struggle.

MAYOR G. REID COMMENDS NEW COMPANY

Believes Swift Canadian Co. Will Be Asset to Belleville

CITY'S CO-OPERATION

Always Willing to Assist Any Organization in Industrial Expansion

Satisfaction at the speed with which the new buildings of the Swift Canadian Company had been rushed to completion by the contractors and the assurance, that this new industry would prove a decided asset to Belleville in making a market for farm produce and in providing more money in local circulation was expressed by His Worship Mayor Reid, Congratulations to the company and the contractor were extended by Mayor Reid, who stated that the policy of the city council working in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce was to encourage industrial expansion in every way, reaching out for new industries and business but not forgetting to encourage those already here, which has been successful.

Belleville industries had been expanding in every direction and under the progressive policy of the Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, and even this year, when industrial difficulties have indicated industrial difficulties Belleville has continued to forge ahead, said the Mayor, expansion being particularly notable in the two large brick and builders' hardware companies here which are now associated with and under the management of two of the largest associated of capitalists in the United States, and are forging ahead with new and renewed vigor and a progressive expansion policy.

Mayor Reid welcomed in behalf of a cordial congratulations to the Swift Canadian Company and best wishes for prosperity, present and continuous, coupled with the hope that the present buildings would prove too small in a year's time and have to be doubled in size and capacity.

Miss Hazel Mashs and Miss Genevieve Hendrickson, Mrs. Sanderson.

Personal interest in each student has been maintained and last night demonstration was a proof of what has been accomplished in a short period of two weeks.

The main purpose of the School has been to teach the children the Word of God and to lead them to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ.

Speaking at the close of the programme last night the pastor Rev. W. M. Willoughby, stated there was a great need for Vacation Bible Schools to combat evil and stem the tide of sin in the world today. Eighty percent of the crime in the land today was committed by youths of eighteen or twenty years of age. The Vacation Bible School proclaims God's Word and presents a Glorious Christ who is able to save to the uttermost, solve problems and meet ever need.

Miss Hazel Mashs will preach at the Alliance Tabernacle morning and evening tomorrow. Miss Genevieve Dahl will render saxaphone sacred music.

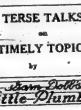
CARS COLLIDE NEAR NAPANEE

Mrs. George Koughnet of Pittsburg, Pa., Had Arm Broken

Napanee, Aug. 15.—As the result of a motor collision, which occurred about four o'clock Friday afternoon four people were injured, one quite seriously. The accident, which attracted a considerable number of people, occurred on the King's highway about one and one-half miles west of Napanee. At the time a car containing B. A. Reidie of Toronto, traveller for Adelaide Cream going west, and the other occupant of the car was Mrs. Richardson, also of Toronto. In the car ardson, also of Toronto. In the car which was coming east were Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Crawford of Troy, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Koughnet, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Dr. Crawford was at the wheel of the American car and was driving the girls which is about twelve feet deep at that point, left the road and crashed into the ditch rammed the posts and wire which served as a guard. The occupants of the American car were elderly people and all were hurt. Mrs. Koughnet had her left arm fractured and also received head injuries. Mr. Koughnet was cut considerably about the head, and required the services of a doctor. Mrs. Crawford sustained injuries to her limbs and Dr. Crawford received facial injuries. Dr. Galbraith was summoned from Odessa and gave the injured what first aid they required in the ambulance.



Just after the accident all were taken to a farm house close by and Dr. Galbraith gave medical assistance.

The Toronto car was not damaged to any extent, but the American car was wrecked to a considerable degree. From the depth of the ditch and the car rolled over in it is a miracle that some one was not killed.

Chief of Police Watts was summoned and made the necessary investigation.

US AND OTHER ANIMALS

Dear Sam:

I have always been interested in animals and animals have always been interested in me. On a fishing trip once I was treed by a bear. It was a big one. The bear turned out to be a farmer's Newfoundland dog, but that didn't take any of the thrill out of it. The pup just wanted to have a little fun with me and he did.

Dogs have always liked my company, and what the dogs had. One summer there was a cat that used to follow me around wherever I went. It was the year of the big drought, and there was hardly a green thing on the farm.

So I got something about animals. Even as a child my parents used to take me to the circus and show me the animals, or show the animals me.

I always liked the tigress and made one once stole a stray yellow cat. The tat didn't think much of it, and hid in the wood bin, but Dad found her, and then the fun began. Dad found her, and then found me. He said I would never make another tiger, and I decided I never would. I have never cared for them since, although I did have a fourteen hand colt in our fair city.

We had to say "please pass" at our house, and I used to wish I had the giraffe's reach. I have even envied him his neck at baseball games since.

Just while we are talking together let me remind you that now would be a good time to have the furnace thoroughly gone over and put in shape for the coming winter. Do it now. Perhaps you need an entire new heating system. Let us give you a price or business place and submit estimates.

Remember we specialize in modern plumbing—the Plumbing Shop on Wheels, obviates the necessity for any trips back to the shop for tools and lost time expensive to the customer. For plumbing or heating problems consult the expert.

Yours for service.

Letters to the Editor

Aug. 14, 1931.

Mr. Editor:—

On Tuesday and Wednesday, August 18th and 19th, there is to be an Exhibition of gladioli given by the Canadian Gladioli Society in the Belleville Armouries.

This will be the fourth annual exhibition and there will be arrayed those gods of blooms for the pleasure of Belleville and vicinity. There has been a marvelous development in gladioli in the past few years, and Canada has been specializing in new types and colorings of this wonderful flower. Many visits in distant cities have been working on the plans for this Exhibition since last fall. Belleville is very fortunate in being able to secure this Exhibition and in fact we believe it will be the finest flower show that has ever been put on in Eastern Ontario. The prizes offered are unusually attractive and in the windows of Mr. J. A. McPee's jewelry store. He will show to have everyone visit this show next week. On Tuesday evening the Hon. Mr. Martin, Minister of Labour in the Provincial Government, is to officially open the show and on Friday the Hon. W. F. Nickle, of Kingston, Minister of Education will entertain ment for a short while. We would like to see everyone interested in flowers come and see the wonderful exhibition that will be awaiting them. We trust the friends of Belleville will boost this Exhibition wherever possible.

W. B. DEACON,
Publicity Chairman of Committee.

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer—

Sir:—I read with much interest an inquiry from a correspondent in Thursday's issue of your paper urging that Belleville should give a home to an Airdale dog, which was in the keeping of the man in charge of the Island boarding house for the city and was about to be destroyed. As I have a dog myself and one that could not possibly take care of another, however, I did all I could to save the poor fellow's life. I telephoned numerous people begging them to take the dog and I felt badly when I failed to do so. Now Sir, I must say that's was more than eighteen hours after I had on Friday issue that the dog had been saved by a kind lady who will give him a good home. I am writing you on the humane interest you showed in the matter. I was also glad to see that so many people were anxious to rescue the poor fellow.

There are many people who claim to be lovers of dogs but they are not. They will take a puppy because it is cute and playful as amusement for the children; will run pell mell cars and tail, punch it and generally annoy themselves with it—but when it grows older and a tax is demanded by the city—then they do not want the dog any longer. They don't want to kill him themselves nor have it become lame for they have turned the dog over to the city officer appointed for that purpose—so they try to lose him or take him away in a car and abandon him. Such people should never have a dog. My dogs are almost human in their intelligence—loyal and affectionate, and so are all dogs loyal and affectionate if well right.

Now, as is always the case when something is wrong people go to someone else. I, like others, say, "Something could be done" but I am free to confess that I do not know what remedy can be found. Perhaps there are other lovers of dogs in Belleville who have a greater ability to use in trying to befriend ill-used and homeless dogs than I have. If so I hope they can accomplish something.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, "A FRIEND OF DOGS."

KINGSTON HIKERS TAKEN BY POLICE

Given Ride to Belleville Only to Fall in With Law

Bertha Taylor, 66 Ontario Street, Kingston, and Mabel Kemp, 11 Mill Court, same city, started out for a walk and neglected to leave word of their plans with any people. It is claimed that they have the habit of doing this, but only because really they do not know their destination, they "pick on" whatever road happens to be there and then soles of their frail shoes Thursday they were in luck, they got "a lift" and arrived in Belleville late Thursday night. They did not expect anyone to meet them and were surprised when about 1.30 Friday morning they were greeted by Constable Insell of the city police who fancied that they accept the hospitality of the city. Opportune also came in the form the register was placed the word "vagrant" which is sufficient cause for cover a multitude of sins. Late on Friday afternoon they were fined and sent back to Kingston where they were ordered to report to the authorities.

BIG PACKING COMPANY COMES TO BELLEVILLE

Branch of Large International Company Joins Diversified Industrial Colony of Belleville — Swift Canadian Company New Plant Completed — Formal Opening Today — Belleville Contractor and Belleville Workmen Construct Modern Industrial Plant — Asset to Belleville and the Farming Community Affording An Enlarged and Profitable Market For Farm Produce.

The new produce plant of Swift Canadian Company, Limited, which opened for business today in Belleville, means a great deal more than "just another industry" for this city.

In addition to being a pretentious addition to this city's industrial establishments, and an example of the most modern type of efficient and sanitary plants for the handling of food products, it provides a two-fold source of additional revenue for Belleville and Eastern Ontario. It will give employment to local men and women and will provide a local market for the farmers of Eastern Ontario for their cream, eggs and poultry, paying the highest market prices for produce received.

The new plant, located on Station street, adjacent to the C.N.R. Station, on which construction work was begun in May, was opened for business today and the management extends a cordial invitation to all to pay the plant a visit. Mr. W. D. Sinclair, the manager, of the new plant, states that while all visitors will be made welcome he particularly desires that the farmers of this vicinity will visit the plant at their earliest opportunity. Mr. Sinclair feels that the advantages which the opening of this produce plant brings to the farmers of Eastern Ontario, will be more thoroughly realized by them when they have had an opportunity to see the facilities provided for the handling of their produce by Swift Canadian Company, and to become acquainted with the company's fair-dealing policies.

The new buildings have a frontage of 200 feet and a depth of 66 feet, and the company's property provides for additional buildings that increased business may later recommend. The plant, which is the "mill type" of industrial building, was designed by Swift plant engineers and carries out ideas which are the result of experience gained in the construction and operation of 110 Swift plants.

The main building is of red brick, with stone trim, the right wing having frame walls to accommodate the installation of the specially designed ventilating shutters of the poultry-conditioning plant. Interior walls are of tile, covered with concrete plaster. Immediately at the rear is the company's private railway siding.

Two separate receiving entrances flank the office building, that on the right leading to the receiving room for eggs and poultry, and the entrance at the left leading to the cream receiving room.

Feed 10,000 Chickens

To the right of the receiving room for eggs and poultry is the "conditioning" department. Here, in specially designed "feeding batteries", or cages, provision has been made for conditioning 10,000 birds at one time. All poultry packed under the famous Swifts' Premium brand, as explained by Mr. Sinclair, is conditioned to meet the uniform high standard of this brand before killing.

It may be mentioned, incidentally, that proper ventilation is recognized to play an important part in the conditioning of poultry, both for sanitation in handling, and to assure the health of the fowl and to this is responsible the specially-designed shutters with which the walls of this department are equipped.

Kill 2500 Chickens Daily

Adjoining the conditioning department, at the rear is the killing room, with capacity for killing and dressing 2,500 birds a day. Here poultry is dressed under the "dry-scald" process, the work being carried on on the endless chain system.

The dressed poultry is then sent to a cooling room where it is packed under regulated temperature.

Brookfield Eggs

Another department is devoted to the testing and grading of eggs and in this department the well-known high-standard Brookfield eggs are packed and made ready for the market.

The Creamery

At the right of the creamery, in the left wing, is the test room where all cream received is tested for butter content.

This plant has a capacity of 25,000 pounds of butter a week. In it are installed two 600-gallon pasteurizers, a tubular cooler and a churn with a capacity of 1,000 pounds of butter per churning. The choice quality of this department's output will reach the market under the brand of Premium Quality Brookfield Butter.

The buttermilk is used in the conditioning of poultry or disposed of to farmers for their stock.

Refrigeration

The plant is equipped with a specially-designed refrigeration system and has what is somewhat of an in-

SWIFT'S PLANT APPRECIATED

Will Stimulate Poultry Industry Among Farmers of District

It is difficult to overestimate the importance to the city and to the district of the establishment here of a new produce plant and factory by Swift and Company of Chicago.

This corporation differs from the ordinary manufacturing industry in that it offers a local market to farmers for several lines of production. It therefore becomes more than a mere payer of wages or employer of labor but will further greatly develop the agricultural interest in the Bay of Quinte district.

The rearing of poultry is a branch of farming that is generally underestimated. As a matter of fact this interest is attaining to mammoth proportions and exceeds in aggregate value to the Canadian farmer many other lines of production that are more prominently before the public.

Swift & Company will insist upon quality in the goods delivered to them. This great corporation looks carefully into such matters as the rearing and feeding of all kinds of live stock so that when animals or poultry are delivered at their warehouse there is a certainty of excellent grade. In that way the company becomes a most important promoter of skilled agriculture and animal husbandry wherever one of its produce plants are located.

NEW OUTLET FOR PRODUCTS

Chamber of Commerce President Sees of Employment Opportunities

Mr. E. V. Illsey, President of the Chamber of Commerce, stated that that body was very much delighted to have the branch of the Swift Canadian Company, Limited, established in Belleville; indeed the Chambers had given a great deal of thought and effort to persuading the Company to locate in Belleville, and he said that the efforts of Alderman C. C. Walker, Chairman of the City's Industrial Committee, had been invaluable in this connection.

Mr. Illsey pointed out that this new plant would provide another outlet for dairy products, eggs and poultry, and that it would also be an appreciable employer of labor and executive officers.

The President stated that the membership of the Chamber of Commerce united to wish the Swift Canadian Company, Limited, all success in its new enterprise.

WARDEN WISHES PLANT SUCCESS

Logical Location for Purchase of Farm Products

Charles Thompson, Warden of Hastings County expressed to the Ontario Intelligencer his appreciation of the fact that Swift & Company had recognized the wisdom of locating a Produce plant in this city.

"Hastings County and the surrounding community has always been known as one of the best agricultural sections of Ontario," said Warden Thompson, "and it is a logical location for operation in the purchase of Canadian farm products.

"I am glad as Warden of Hastings County to welcome the Swift Company to Belleville, and to wish them every success in the operation of their Belleville plant.

"Farmers, of course, are interested in every development that promotes the movement of their consuming markets and the establishment of the Swift Branch here should be a real benefit to the farmers of this community."

TURNING THE OIL TIDE WITH RIFLES

Yellow-mustached "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Governor of Oklahoma, springs an economic novelty by closing more than three thousand oil-wells in his State to force the price of petroleum up to a minimum of one dollar a barrel.

And to a country sorely puzzled by food and fuel overproduction, unemployment, and other economic burdens, his move is all the more startling because he calls out the National Guard to enforce the order.

Three thousand, one hundred and six wells in twenty-seven fields are shut in by Mr. Murray's action, we read, only the stripper wells, which produce not more than twenty-five barrels a day, and wells in unprorated territory being unaffected. This, we are told, cuts off about 350,000 barrels of the 426,000 barrels produced daily in the State. Around each of the 3,106 wells, for a radius of fifty feet, material has been dynamited.

Now the country is waiting to see what the outcome will be—what effect this drastic action will have on prices, and whether or not the Governor can win in court in his fight against the big oil companies. Some of these companies he accuses of forcing down prices until the independent producers faced ruin.

The oil glutted to twenty cents a barrel, the lowest in the history of the State, Governor Murray threatened to close the fields unless the price went to a dollar, on the ground that the natural resources of the State were being wasted and that the schools were injured because of the removal of oil from school lands.

Up went the price to fifty cents a barrel—but it stopped there, and the Governor's closing order followed.

"Independent producers received the order gladly," we read in an Oklahoma City dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, "because the low price of crude has forced them to the verge of bankruptcy. However, two of the leading oil companies, the Sinclair and Champlin firms, were said to be preparing to go into court, seeking an injunction to prevent enforcement of the order. One company hinted that as a last resort it would appeal to President Hoover."

A NEW FOE OF LIGHTNING

Pittsburgh engineers recently shot enough electricity through an experimental tall lightning-rod to lift the Woolworth Building off its feet.

The giant "spark plug" at the new Westinghouse high-power laboratory blaz ed into action for the first time as over 132 million volt-amperes leapt across the terminals to the lightning-rod on test.

There was a burst of flame from each end of the rod and a report like a six-inch cannon as the experimental lightning-rod "knocked off" scientific lightning bolt in less than 1-500 of a second. J. J. Torok inventor of the rod, is thus quoted in a Westinghouse Bulletin:

"The results of the tests are so promising that we are working night and day to finish the apparatus. We hope it will effect greater economics in present forms of flashover protective devices now in service to protect insulators, switches and overhead transmission lines which supply cities with light and power. In addition it is intended to provide permanent protection against the ravages of lightning and save the country millions of dollars a year.

"Next, after a lightning stroke, protective devices of the fuse type must be replaced. This requires constant patrolling of the lines. Because of the limitations of a single line, duplicate lines must be constructed. The new lightning-rod does away with this expense.

The construction of the device is simple, we are told. It consists of a hollow tube about the size of a lady's umbrella. A piece of metal at each end serves as an electrode to entice the lightning inside for the "knock-out" blow. It is supposed to work so fast that the lights in a house will not even flicker. The bulletin concludes:

"This device, technically known as a 'De-Ion' lightning protector, is used to protect insulator strings on transmission lines against flashover. Engineers have estimated that if the Torok lightning-rod is successful and had been available ten years ago, the world would have saved a hundred million dollars."

BRITISH FILMS

Hamilton Spectator: The British films generally have two marked differences from those of the Hollywood studios. They go in for verisimilitude, realism, and are marked by the absence of those passionate love scenes without which no American film seems complete. The Hollywood scenes are idealistic; the British give one a sense of reality. Sex is underscored in the American films; in the British, love-making is natural.

MORTGAGING HOPE

Scholarship loans are a serious handicap to women, as they are to ministers.

They are, in effect, a mortgage on the future, in the opinion of Dr. Paul Popenoe, secretary of the Human Betterment Foundation, as he expressed it in an address to students at the summer session of Columbia University.

"Loaded with debt at graduation," he said, "the girl must turn her back on marriage until she pays it off. If a man proposes, she can not answer, 'I should be delighted to wed if you will assume my college indebtedness.' By the time she is ready to listen to proposals, the men in her group have married."

What Dr. Popenoe demands, comments—the Brooklyn Eagle, which quotes from his address, is that scholarship foundations should give the money outright instead of loaning it. The argument it believes, can not be laughed away. "The sweet graduate who is mortgaged by the loan has other duties to society besides earning money. If her mind was worth training, the gift of what was lent to her would have been a good investment."

Male students so mortgaged also lose much of their value to civilization, says The Eagle, which adds:

"Clergymen suffer most. Aided in college or in theological seminaries by denominational funds, they must stand in the pulpit with this debt hanging over their heads unless, until, the mortgage is paid off. Generally, we fear, it is never paid off. Salaries in the ministry are not liberal enough to cover much relief of obligations not collectable under civil law. The girl graduates are not alone in their loan disadvantages."

FARMERS OUT OF WORK

Winnipeg Tribune: The province and the Dominion could perform no better national service at the present time than by making it possible for such men to re-establish themselves on small farms. The farms are available. Men can buy them at prices which will not mean a heavy burden of debt. They are small farms, with some land broken and some buildings. About all it is necessary for the Government to do is to give assurance that help in the form of seed and clothing will be available through the coming winter as required. No more aid will be required to be given. That is all probability less than would be required to maintain these men and their families in the city through the winter. The Provincial and Federal Governments would actually save money by getting these farmers re-established on farms, and, as well, taking constructive steps to relieve unemployment conditions.

PLYMOUTH FLOATING POWER

THE WHOLE NATION WANTS TO KNOW MORE ABOUT IT

What is Floating Power?

Floating Power is a term applied to the new and revolutionary principle of mounting the engine in the car frame.

Just how is the engine mounted?

On live-rubber mountings nearly an inch thick. These mountings are so placed that a line drawn through them passes through the center of gravity of the engine.

What does Floating Power do?

The live-rubber mountings allow the engine to rock upon them, much as a boat, if in a cushioned cradle. Vibration is thus entirely eliminated from the car.

Why does Floating Power succeed when all other methods fail?

Because Chrysler Motors engineers have achieved an entirely new principle which eliminates the motor impulses.

Why and How is Power Increased?

Because the inclination of vibration allows higher compression, which gives greater horsepower without increasing cylinder size.

What else does Plymouth offer?

A score of things! Plymouth's Free Wheeling combines the advantages of the various types now in use. The Easy-Shift transmission enables you to shift at speeds up to 30 miles an hour. The new double-drop frame. Internal hydraulic brakes. Safety-lined body.

Perth To Kingston Journey

A map of the Ottawa-Kingston District has been compiled, drawn and printed on a scale of two inches to the mile, by the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, and issued at $1.50 to other departments, Federal and provincial.

This sheet comprises the Perth-Kingston portion which supplements the Ottawa-Perth publication. The two maps form a broad band 41 miles wide along the St. Lawrence from close above Kingston to Morrisburg.

The pronounced feature of the Perth-Kingston sheet is the Rideau Lakes system connecting Ottawa with Kingston by means of the Rideau Canal. Constructed by the British Government, acting on the advice of the Duke of Wellington, to provide an inland route from industrial to port, at a cost of about $4,000,000, Sir John Franklin, returning governor of the arctic expeditions in 1827 laid the corner stone of the locks at the north end of the waterway.

Although at one time of greater commercial importance than at present in facilitating the movement of produce, therefore, the canal nowadays is used by many pleasure crafts. Its route is also of attraction to tourists. It makes a beautiful water trip of 126 miles from Ottawa to Kingston, while No. 33 meanders, up to 410 feet above and 28 feet in width. Masts should not exceed 28 feet, above the water surface.

A famous tourist ground, Rideau Lake after an inspection of the map of the Thousand Islands, scene of which display a considerable but lesser portion of the map. Large bass and pike make it a haven for anglers and hunters. The Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence repeat themselves in the Rideau Lakes which crouch in these waters like so many drowsy houseboats. Such lakes as Charleston, Christie, Upper and Little Rideau and many others are a summer playground the fame of which has spread all over North America and even overseas.

Branches of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways make connections to any point in the region. Supplementing these are numerous highways. Provincial Highway No. 15, which connects Ottawa and Kingston, runs in on the west from Smiths Falls, while the latter on the Ottawa-Perth sheet. Highway No. 7, plainly marked in red, serves the St. Lawrence river section, while No. 33 connects Canadaque with the Rideau lakes to the west of No. 15. Feeding into these are numerous other roads of either fine used razor blades or its criminals.—Louisville Times. which passes through the typically pretty Ontario village of Westport and on to Brockville, 9 miles north on the Ottawa-Perth sheet.

Farmsteads and other buildings being shown with roads and bridges classified, the map is rendered distinctly useful as a tourist map at the price of 25 cents to any customer 50 cents in folder cover. Mounted on linen back for office wear, but without folder cover, the price is also 50 cents, or from 50 cents to one dollar for the set of two. Application thereafter should be made to the Surveyor General, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Four Centuries of History

Universally of interest to travellers are these places with historic associations. Being contiguous to the St. Lawrence, the door to Canada for 400 years, our mapped tract is rich in incident and story.

Under the foundation of Tricde-Pont barracks on the waterfront at Kingston are remains of the walls of old Fort Frontenac, built of wood by the redoubtable French Governor of that name in 1673. At first it was only an outpost in the wilderness established to overawe the Iroquois and for trade purposes. In 1676-8 La Salle acquired it as a gift from Louis the Fourteenth and rebuilt it into a formidable place strongly armed. In this fort he set out to explore the Mississippi. In 1689 the stronghold was evacuated and destroyed but Frontenac built it up again on a more imposing scale on the same site.

General Montcalm inspected it in 1756 on his way to capture Oswego. Soon after, in 1758, a British force under Colonel John Bradstreet captured and destroyed it. A Historic Site tablet erected by the Department of the Interior, on the southern gateway of the barracks commemorates these events.

In olden days there had been built a small dockyard for shipbuilding on Carleton Island, now in United States territory. In 1783, this was superseded by the government dockyard at Navy Bay. Navy bay is shown on the map as sep, arating the peninsula on which the Royal Military College is built from the one on which Fort Henry stands quietly on the hill.

Here a number of war-ships were constructed along the waterfront some decaying allyways still remain down which the old wooden war-ships were launched in the early years of the 19th century. On Point Frederick, close to the Military College, are old earthworks of 1812, antedating Fort Frederick built about 1846.

Such are the relics of the sanguine encounters of centuries in this area. Revelle sounding from the barracks and hill would seem to echo those lines of Rupert Brooke's "Blow out you bugles over the rich dead.

There's none of these so lowly or poor of old,

PURE MILK GREATEST NERVE BUILDER

Modern Equipment and Methods Big Asset of Local Producers

The Montrose Dairy is one of the best known in this section and it is clean and dairy in every detail. Their milk comes from their own herd of tuberculin tested cows, and pasteurized upon reaching the plant. For this they have the latest machinery and most modern equipment available. Pasteurization of milk means bestowing it to one hundred and forty-four degrees, holding it at that temperature for thirty minutes and then cooling quickly. Thus the yeast-producing bacteria is eliminated and the qualities of the milk are left unchanged. If one has never seen this method a visit to their plant will prove that it is the only way.

Many people can point to their pure, healthful milk and say that it "puts on flesh" is a glass of health." A glass of milk at ten in the morning and three in the afternoon would ward off that tired feeling, beautifies the skin and clears the complexion, and strengthens adult and health authorities are insisting that milk be served at schools to the children. Milk constantly used builds strength and vigor in the tissues bodies, colors pale cheeks, and makes nerves steady. Order more milk today from The Montrose Dairy or call them today not only to produce milkit raw milk and cream that will meet with specified requirements, but a health product that only modern elaborate machinery can produce. They realize that upon one's health depends one's ability to earn and enjoy. Milk is undoubtedly nature's greatest health and happiness insurance.

"The management of this concern is deserving of much commendation for the efficient methods employed in offering the public so valuable a service. To pay more the average daily out-put of milk of this dairy."

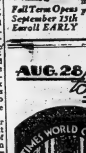
A tablet erected by the Department of Public Works, on the building house on Princess Street, Kingston, commemorates the first Premier of Canada.

It is now a centre of education and is devoted to Queen's University, chartered in 1841. Nor does Canada forget that the first Premier after Confederation, who spent his early life in th eold "Limestone City" sleeps in the quiet shade of the Cataraqui cemetery. Macdonald Park commemorates the site and surrounds a martello tower which now houses a museum.

Contributions to Industrialism



Kingston, Gananoque and Perth are the chief industrial centres in the area covered by the map.

Gananoque, with its beautiful town on the St. Lawrence at the mouth of the river of that name, is also on the terminus of highway No. 32. At the junction of the latter with Provincial lands, or 1,700 islands to be nearer the truth, it affords an opportunity for interesting expeditions in every direction. Golf clubs here, at Kingston and Perth, are welcome visiting enthusiasts.

The country around, rich intervales of the St. Lawrence front, picturesque villages and well cultivated farms charm the tourist. Old Ontario is at her best in rural scenes. In this valley are stone houses standing for a century. The harmonious blend of weathered brick farmhouses with the green of "immemorial elms," and the tall, ingness of orchard-embowered steadings built of good Canadian wood, bring a sense of peace to the city-worn traveller. ALL BUT ONE NOW IN CUSTODY

Seven Alleged Communists Under Arrest With Last Expected Hourly

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14 (CP)—With eight alleged Communists under arrests, only one of the "Red" leaders sought by police, when the drive against the Communist party in Canada, initiated this morning at eight still remained at large last night.

Arrest of Amos T. Hill, former editor of "Vapaus" (Liberty), a Finnish Communist organ published in Sudbury, yesterday at Cochrane, brought the total number in custody to five of the six originally sought by Ontario authorities. Three others were arrested in connection with raids on Communist meeting places and officers here are now held. They are A. Bruno, secretary of the Workers' Unity League, and not been apprehended last night.

Joseph Sedgewick, inspector of detail officer in the Criminal Investigation Department, and Vernon Jackman, Corporal of Detectives in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Ottawa, were active in directing arresting and reading the warrants. Charles Sanderson, Toronto, arrested in Tuesday's raids. On the basis of the evidence in the possession of much of the Crown case in the trial of the Communists will rest CHARGES UNDER CODE

All are charged under section 98 of the Criminal Code and in case of conviction will be necessary, Crown officials here declared. Department of Justice referred to the section as the Canadian police in obtaining information and evidence leading to the arrests. The prosecutions had nothing to do with deportation proceedings, said by the Dominion government, aimed at preventing Communism in Canada, said Premier George S. Henry.

No Truce Unless Government is Turned Over to Rebels

New York, N.Y., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Domingo Mendes Capote, head of the Cuban Revolutionary Party in New York today denied that rebel leaders were negotiating a truce with President Machado. The Sport Eye Column

Contributed By FAIR PLAY Sports and Fair Critiken

Well the entries for the Albemarle meet at Belleville are coming in in grand style. All they need is a few more local athletes to make a perfect card.

The following are a few of the Toronto track stars that have indicated their intentions of coming to Belleville Fair meet:

W. Christie, Ontario 220 yard champion. This boy can make the turf fly with any sprinter in the country. He is expected to be on the Canadian Olympic team.

Tom Ritchie, former 220 and 300 yard champion of Eastern Canada. Also E. Percy, Toronto's star half miler. These two boys are considered about the best in their class in Ontario.

Harold Galley (and can he play!) the smartest 880 y'ard and one mile king of Toronto's great stable. Also there will be Gray Brown the smart 440 yard dasher.

Cleo Fee, Canadian finalist, in the 100 and 220 yard sprints and he will be one of the stars at the meet. A. W. Lovett, the fast one-half miler is also coming.

All of these boys are on the belt of Eastern Canada and will no doubt be on the Canadian Olympic teams next year. It should be a great chance for the local citizens to see some of Canada's best athletes in action.

Galley, Lovett, Percy and Christie were the United States medley relay race two years ago. They also won the Canadian medley race that day.

These figures only go to show that Belleville is to be visited by some of the best athletes in the Dominion. So this is the chance of the fans from the local track and field aspirants to try their ability against the best in the country.

It is no disgrace to be beaten by men like the above named. But if some of the locals can beat these boys it is a wonderful achievement. So it is to be hoped that more local boys enter.

In the girls' events there are at least five real smart lady athletes coming down from Toronto, Margaret Cole, Margaret La Chapelle, Camille Caldon, Gladys Cunningham and Grace Rainey have all signified their intentions of coming to Belleville Fair.

Of course there will be plenty of other entries but as I have not mentioned these to show the sporting interest that the meet should be a huge success from any angle.

It is expected that contestants will be entered from Kingston and Ottawa in the east to as far west as Hamilton, and perhaps Windsor. All in all it looks like a big day of sport for Belleville.

The Senior ball game in King street ended a tie 7 to 7. The National pitched a make-shift team on the field, the only player to play in the Major League was Vern Weir, the rest of the team were out of position for the better part of the game.

Umpire Twigg may be bad, as an umpire, but he never could give the poor exhibition of pumping 12 balls over the ball park yesterday. Campman marred a perfectly good game by his wild calls at the bat.

The worse call he gave was the interference play that happened at second base, when a Kingston base-runner "body checked" Harry Morgan at short, as Harry was about to field the ball.

It was a clear case of interference.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Penelope Merrefith leaves San Francisco by airplane to escape arrest in connection with a murder in which her sweetheart, Tony, is implicated. She had not known that he was a gunman. Evelyn Howard, whom Penelope had met on a voyage from Hawaii, is aboard. She is enroute to New York to live with her wealthy aunt, Mrs. Allison Carstairs, whom she has never seen. Penelope crashes and all but Penelope are killed. Grasping the opportunity to start life anew, Penelope goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn. Mrs. Carstairs' affection wins her heart. Alan Southampton, awaiting the arrival of her son, Collin, Mrs. Carstairs' nephew, falls in love with him seriously. He arrives and accuses Pahchon of being there under false pretenses. Collin objects to Evelyn". Penelope learns that Evelyn had volunteered affairs with a naval officer and a native. Pahchon's identity is exposed. Evelyn "her" indiscretion was only fooly overcome. Collin's unreasonable remark comradeship ensues and together they spend a happy afternoon. Collin and Pahchon have one another. He is prevented from confessing his love for her by the color barrier, and she because of her masquerade. Collin is to be his mother.

CHAPTER XVII

For an instance Jennie Carstairs regretted that she had ever asked Evelyn Howard to come to them. Much as she loved Collin and she did love her very deeply, her son came first. Collin must always come first. That was the innocent act of generosity and duty, of sincerity—she admitted, had been the cause of unhappiness to him, was very bitter to her, but there was nothing she could do. She said, sorrowfully:

"Evelyn is my sister's child. Your cousin."

"I know." He rose from his chair in her small sitting room and paced about the floor restless as one of the wild graceful creatures he had killed on that hunting trips. "I know. Don't think I haven't thought of it. Don't worry, mother. I'll see it through. Never tell her. She'll never guess. And—I'll go away after you are settled in town."

Jennie said nothing although her heart sank to see him acquiesce. She had always suffered deeply, if silently, when he went from her on one of his vagabond trips. This time she would have Evelyn, she reminded herself. The daughter she had always wanted. But if she hadn't had Evelyn, she would have been able to keep Collin beside her. She couldn't send Evelyn away, moreover, she cared too much for her to contemplate it. But—Collin must go, for whom she cared far more. It was a hopeless tangle, a vicious circle.

For the rest of their stay Collin devoted himself lightly and casually to one or the pretty girls he had known for some time and who gave strong evidence of delight at his attentions.

"Sally," said Jennie-Carstairs to Pahchon, "and Collin seem to be very devoted."

"She's a pretty pretty," answered Pahchon, hating Sally Masters with all her soul.

Jennie looked at her sharply. But her face' betrayed nothing. Perhaps it was all on Collin's side, there? If so, so much the better. But—poor Collin!

They returned to town late in September. Jennie immersed himself in the business of his office, run for the most part by mail while by a very efficient partner. The partner came up to the apartment for dinner and promptly ranged himself with an increasing host of admirers for Miss Howard." Collin grumbled in his heart and was helpless. The apartment was lovely in those first days of fall. The move had been made without any upsetting or confusion of Mrs. Carstairs household problems were handled so quietly that things ran as if all were a well oiled machine. Pahchon went to the shops, with Jennie to advise and instruct. The gardens, caring for the very little, now that Collin would no longer be there to see, Jennie gave her a little trellwer cost of soft, dark Russian sable; gave her, too, an evening wrap. "You shouldn't," she explained, "do it on your allowance. And these things you must have."

In November "Evelyn Howard" made her bow to society. There was a tea for older people at the apartment and then a dinner dance at the Ritz for the youngsters. Her frocks were exquisite, one white, the other a faint flushed pink. Her flowers, orchids and gardenias, which Collin had sent. Other flowers filled the house. The debut was attended by yards of newspaper chatter, and by new photographs. Pahchon had fought against the photographs. But, fought helplessly as she could give no reason why her picture should not be in the paper.

Very late, the night of the dance, as the late guests were leaving, and was dancing with Collin. He held her closely, too closely. He said, hoarsely, half-drawing down at the radiant face, the golden skin and the soft, red mouth.

"I can't stand it, Evelyn . . . . Evelyn," she asked, on the breath of a whisper.

"I hadn't meant to speak. I swore I wouldn't," he muttered, "but I can't endure it. You're too lovely. You dear, I love you so much. I'll clear out of town as soon as I can—"

"No—Collin . . ." she said again on the breath of a sigh. Looking down at her, he knew. He had her to him with a low, short laugh of triumph. But it was short lived. He remembered. They both remembered.

"Happy?" asked Mrs. Carstairs, as at dawn, she came into Pahchon's room where Jennie was helping her to undress.

"Wonderful perfect," Pahchon told her, and kissed her in gratitude and love.

She lay after Mrs. Carstairs and Jennie had left her, wakeful and tense—not such a small string after all to the bow that drew to her from "Aunt Jennie and Collin." They slipped through her fingers, rapid and heavy. Pahchon very beautiful.

Tears are for tears, she thought.

She loved Collin; and he loved her, he had told her. Happiness was like a flame burning through her body and mind, a white shining flame. Between them she would be able to build a life which will stand stolen.

Three days later she was entering the apartment. A rather shabby looking man who had been waiting about near the doors, despite the doorman's injunctions, followed her into the entrance. He darted toward her, thrust a crumpled note in her hand and crossed Fifth Avenue against the lights, running, weaving his way in and out of traffic, a policeman shouting after him.

Pahchon, in the elevator, looked down at what her hand held. An envelope, addressed in pencil, the letters it open. Was it a begging letter?

"Come," said the note, without signature. "Be at the corner and I will wait all day tomorrow. Otherwise I will go to Mrs. Carstairs."

The address was in Brooklyn. The signature read . . . "Tony."

DIX CHALKS UP HIS THIRD HIT OF THE SEASON

Richard Dix comes 11 again. The manly star of "Cimarron" and "Young Donovan's Kid" reappears at the Belle Saturday to enforce a large audience —that evening in RKO-Radio Picture's thriller "A Defender" his third hit of the season.

The picture is a thrilling vehicle for this popular actor who started a cycle of robust characterizations in "Cimarron" and who has ridden his way to virility ever since.

In making an outstanding success of "The Public Defender" Dix has smashed a sacred Hollywood tradition which has it that no star is able to make good pictures three times running. Here is another one that this superstition is breaking but more important in the eyes of this reviewer is the fact that this film can stand up on its own merits regardless of precedent.

As in "Cimarron", Dix is thrust against a dramatic, believable story background in which his own good acting is completely overshadowed by the rather than an agency for legitimating it. Dix and his director show good sense in picking an interesting theme and developing it conscientiously and without curbing the individual importance of cast members.

The capable supporting cast in "A Defender" includes Shirley Grey, Purnell Pratt, Edmund Breese, Ruth Weston, Boris Karloff, Paul Hurst and Clarence Geldart.

"Angel Cake", a tuneful and colorful musical Revue with a cast of exceptional stage talent; Daphne Pollard in a funny comedy, "Delicious Youth", and the Paramount Newsreel, were exhibited during the evening.

The entire program will be repeated again tonight for the last time

THE "YELLOW MASK"

Coming to THE CAPITOL

"The Yellow Mask" arrives today at te Capitol Theatre for a two-day run, and without the least doubt, contains all the known and unknown ingredients essential in the making of an outstanding thrilling thriller. The cast of this All-British production is distinguished, the comedy lead being taken by the prince of comedy, Leslie Fuller, and the romantic being assigned to Dorothy Boyd, the British star of abundant talent and beauty. Warwick Ward is cast as the villainous Chinese, cast as His Excellence Li San, governor of the kingdom of Manchina, who desires power in European countries, but only succeeds in fire possessing of the Yang Sing Diamond. This diamond has the power of London among the Crown Jewels, and in consequence carefully guarded by a detachment of His Majesty's Grenadier Guards. By suave personality and charming manners Li San ingrains himself with the Colonel of the Guards, a Guardsman, Li San contrives to enter the Tower only minutes after the Duke of Richmond. His one weak spot is Mary Trayne, daughter of the Duke.

With the arrival of Li San in London the plot thickens. Intrepid reporter scents a "scoop" for his newspaper, and enlists the aid of his camera-man. Sunshine in his efforts to complete what he thinks will be a great story. He does not realize that Li San is all outward show, and when the bulls in on the Oriental's pet schemes, the trouble starts. Trouble is the very last word in fun, fast-moving, riotous, and in fact positively finishing funny. And the cause for all this fun is Lupino Lane as Sunshine the reporter.

The walls of the Capitol Theatre will just vibrate with laughter from this mystery, comedy, thriller, and patrons will be assured that the British film will be looked upon with great favour, and something above the average will be expected from the productions from across the Atlantic.

In addition to the feature, there is a comedy entitled "Stage Struck" which sounds good, and the ever popular Pathe Sound News.

KIDNEY DISEASE

Waste products are produced in the body as the result of the activities of the body. The body gets rid of these waste products through the eliminative organs, of which the kidneys are two important members. The blood passes through the kidneys and there the waste substances present in the blood and which are to be passed out of the body are eliminated.

The normal healthy kidney does this readily. There is a large margin of safety and as the kidneys are able to do their work properly as long as they are healthy. Indeed one healthy kidney is capable of doing the whole work unassisted if one kidney is diseased, it can be removed as long as the other one is healthy.

As is the case with other organs the kidneys may be affected by germ disease. The term nephritis means inflammation of the kidneys. The inflammation may be acute or chronic, and by the term Bright's disease, the tissues of the kidney, which carry on the kidney function are affected.

Acute nephritis or Bright's disease, the tissues of the kidney, which carry on the kidney function are affected.

NATS., PONIES TIE 7-7 IN LAST GAME

Game Called End of 9th On Account of Darkness

LISTLESS GAME

Make-Shift Team Fielded By Walter Gerow, But Performed Well

Playing a makeshift team, practically every player being out of position, Belleville Nationals were able to hold the Kingston Ponies to a 7-7 tie in the last scheduled game of the Central Ontario League, the game being called on account of darkness in the ninth. The playoffs will start on Wednesday next, the first game being played in Belleville and the return game in Kingston Friday at the fair grounds. The Nationals finished in first place in the league schedule and should take the Ponies in the playoff but it will be no cinch as the Ponies have a heavy hitting club and one never knows when they are beaten.

Dull and Uninteresting

The game was dull and listless and little interest was attached as the teams had already clinched the playoff berths and it was just the matter of filling a date. Walter Gerow to give his players a rest also to make provision for the absence of Bob Scott, who went to his home in Renfrew, shifted his players about and one accustomed to seeing the team in action would never imagine they were the Nationals, after he was finished. Crotty went over to first base, "Moose" Darrah held down the outfield corner, Lapointe put in the catching and "Percy" Mills went to second field, "Hoot" Gibson started on the mound and after hurling three innings went to the outfield and Alex Weir came in and finished the game. At one time the make shift team had a 6 to 0 run lead on the Ponies but they eased off and Kingston pulled up on even terms.

Four Pairs Umpiring

Again a quad comes out of the Limestone City by the Falls and against the umpiring, especially the work of Campbell on being all that it should be. The players state that he called some terrible decisions especially on interference plays, that were wide open. His decisions on balls and strikes were weird oz say the least. Of course it did not matter but in an important game, a wrong decision will sometimes turn the tide. McQuade was the heavy hitter for Kingston, he clouting a home run in the first frame with one on and in the ninth lashed a triple but died at the third cushion.

Belleville

outhit the Ponies 15-14.

Oy Young provided the fielding feature, when he made a sensational catch in the eighth frame, but "Percy" Mills and "Hoot" Gibson were not far behind as they also hauled some hard ones out of the clouds while performing in the outer garden. Godfrey buried the ball game for the Ponies when he called in the ninth on account of darkness. In the playoff games, it is to be hoped, that the President will make the teams start early enough so that the game may be played so there will be no fluke victories. The Nationals are ready for the playoffs and hope to get the right breaks by starting out on Wednesday. The game here will start at the regular time.

SULPHIDE TIED VICTORIAS 8-8, REPLAY TODAY

Game Called in the Ninth On Account of Darkness

PITCHERS' BATTLE

Vics Built Up Early Lead but Sulphide Came Back Strong

Belleville Victorias missed a glorious chance to even the series with Sulphide in the intermediate playoffs Friday night at the fair grounds, the two teams finishing 8-8, the game being called on account of darkness at the end of the ninth. The two teams will battle again this afternoon at the fair grounds and if the Victorias are winners, the third and deciding game will be played on Monday, the place as yet not having been fixed. Both Jeffrey and Matthewson on the run piling up a seven run lead before the fourth frame only to see it melt away as the Sulphide team kept peckling away at the offerings of they and Jeffrey.

Second Game Called

Manager Mc Lean and manager Morse in baseball and manager McLean made the wrong guess. In order to save time for the fourth game after the lead was built up, he sent "Chunky" Jeffrey to the mound, hoping that he would hold the lead but it was not Jeffrey's day and after three runs were scored before a man was retired. They was motioned to the hillock by the manager and he did splendid until he held the margin. The game was a battle of lefthanders and Coulter and Jeffrey pitched his rivals. This boy throws a little sweet curve and he knows how the game is all about. Two or three times a hit would have meant the ball game but Campbell, who specialty has been in tight spots before, took a reefer in the trousers of the score sheet.

He had plenty of smoke but his control was none too good, he walking seven and Coulter six but nevertheless he was aces with men on and that is the secret of hurling.

They Hurled Well

They came back to hurl another great game and Sulphide have never had his team mates accorded him any kind of support in the field or hit, when the bingles meant runs. The Vics could get men on the bases but they could not get them off and mixed with this was the their serial chamber, Lady Greystoke suddenly grasped her husband's arm. "Look!" she whispered. "What is it? A man!" Silhouetted dimly against the shadows, a great figure stood upright, as, head listening, then turned slowly and mailed into the shadows of the jungle.

"What was it?" she whispered. "I do not know." he answered, gravely. "It is too dark to see so far, perhaps only a shadow cast by the rising moon." "No one, if it was not a man, it was some huge and grotesque parody of man. Oh, I am afraid." He could feel her heart beat as she clung to him, trembling and terrified.

The night noises of a great jungle teeming with myriad animal lives kept their overwrought nerves on edge; many times they were startled by the stealthy movement of creatures beneath them. He lay facing the opening at the front of their serial, a rifle and revolvers at his hand.

Scarcely had they closed their eyes than the terrifying cry of a panther rang out from the jungle. Closer and closer it came until they could hear the great beast beneath them. For an hour or more it stalked and clawed at the trees which supported their platform.

At last it roamed, away across the beach, where Lord Greystoke could see it clearly in the brilliant moonlight—a great, handsome beast; the largest he had ever seen. From the dark shadow of the mighty forest came the wild call of savage beasts—the deep roar of a lion.

ON "GUEST ROOMS"

Our grandparents and great-grandparents had a "guest room." Cold, stiff rooms that were shut off from use except on Sunday afternoons or when guests were present.

The slippery horsehair upholstery, the knit "sidey," the little war figures of a bride and groom under glass, do you remember them?

Now we have no "parlors" but we do have a "guest room"—a "spare-bedroom." The most beautiful and expensive room in the house and usually the one with the poorest one of the family to sleep on those marvelous things under down comforters.

In fact the family is forbidden to enter that room.

Something might be misplaced or show finger marks.

Week after week and month after month, perhaps, the pleasantest room in the house is kept for guests that seldom come.

Certain members of the family sleep on hard beds, in bleak rooms under worn and faded quilts and blankets.

Naturally the desire of the wife is for an attractive guest room.

But what is the use of the really "guesty" things be put away and brought out only when guests come, the lovely bedding stored in the chest.

We ridicule the old fashioned "parlor" and substitute a "guest room."

Good from the Start—Infinitely Better Now

When the De Soto Six was introduced late in 1928, its builders adopted the slogan "Multum pro Parvo"—much for little. That first De Soto Six was a great value—it established an all-time sales record for a first-year car.

"Multum pro Parvo" was both a slogan and a creed. How well De Soto has lived up to this creed is best proved by a comparison of the original De Soto Six with today's.

The accompanying table tells the story. Scores of improvements and refinements have been made. And the base price has been reduced $1110!

Furthermore, today's De Soto has "CANADIAN-BUILT" Free Wheeling with a new, advanced Easy Shift Transmission as optional equipment for only $37.50 extra.

How Best to Sell Yourself

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.,

FAMOUS AUTHORITY ON HEALTH AND PSYCHOLOGY

Success in life does not depend much upon the goods you have to sell or upon the materials of your business—profession are even up on your knowledge. What counts is personality—and how you sell that. It is not so much what you say, but the way you say it that makes you please you, and making them do what you want becomes, comparatively speaking, an easy job.

On the other hand, if people do not like you, no matter how clever or capable you may be, no matter how meritorious your product, no matter how catchy your sales talk, you have the handicap of poor success in life will be a mighty hard, uphill fight.

It is personality that counts first, last and always. It is personality you sell before everything; else.

But how, you may ask, can one sell personality? What should we do to make ourselves acceptable and liked in all the various activities of life?

Well, take the matter of personal attractiveness as a start. Unbecoming clothes, soiled linen, dirty hands and nails—all such details count heavily against being liked.

Carelessness regarding speech—ungrammatical, coarse or vulgar speech—also hampers success. In fact, suppose the materials of your industry and thoroughness cannot overcome the handicaps of carelessness.

Again no storekeeper or clerk will succeed who is gruff to customers, or waits upon them "as an offhand way as though he didn't care whether they bought or not. Often there is good reason why a storekeeper or other employee who comes in contact with the general public should feel out of sorts or even irritable, but no one who buys accepts such reasons or even thinks of them. Nobody excuses the carelessness of bad manners.

Often, too, we find professional and business men thoughtlessly careless. They allow themselves to become superior and distant in their attitude toward others. They place themselves on pedestals and have the manner of looking down on others.

Yes, watch the little things such as I have outlined above. If such daily bread depends upon your contacts with people, it's your job to behave so that they will like you and be inspired with confidence in you.

Be courteous always. Be considerate always. Make your personality inviting by eliminating carelessness in all its varieties from your character make-up.

Women are not, as a rule, as curious about these matters as are men. Women do not often attain at the tiptoles of personal attainment that his offensive is drawn from miles around.

Mr. McPee has been serving the people of this community for some time and the ever-increasing demand is an indication that his service and individual requirements. So satisfactory has he met with the various situations that his clientele

British Government Will Support Pound Cabinet in Session

Way Through Difficulty Seen by British Chancellor

PREMIER HOPEFUL

Britain Strong and Solid as Bank of England

London, Aug. 17 (AP)—Britain was viewed by qualified observers today as facing one of the most fateful weeks in its recent history—possibly the most fateful since the world war.

Her problem now is not to defend a bastilline but to defend the 'pound.' Every financial expert agrees this can only be done by banishing the spectre of a six hundred million dollar deficit in next year's budget.

The "big five" of the cabinet is meeting today to decide what economies and what new sources of revenue must be evolved. There will be a meeting of the full cabinet on Wednesday and it is expected that a definite decision will be taken this afternoon or the end of the week or on the following day.

Rumors Abroad

Every sort of rumor as to the Government's plans is afloat in the ing the rounds for the last few days. These included a ten per cent duty on all imports, compulsory conversion of war bonds, a great call on Empire loans to Canada, a one per cent tax on all fixed income securities, drastic and sweeping economies in the administration of services. Some of these suppositions have been flatly denied by Mr. Thomas.

Meanwhile, Britain's key man of finance, Sir Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, has gone to Canada on a voyage for the sake of his health. The bulk of his duties is expected to devolve on Sir Ernest Musgrave Harvey, the bank's Deputy Governor, about whom the country knows even less than it does of his chief.

Sees War Threats

The Labourite Herald published an interview with Chancellor Philip Snowden, who is quoted as making the following remarks: "Let me at once discountenance anything in the nature of a panic because there is really no reason for one. We shall see this thing through.

"Fundamentally our financial position is perfectly sound. We have enormous capital resources which can be called upon to the extent which is necessary. Among them are our very large overseas investments.

"The momentary situation is due to quite unfounded nervousness on the part of foreign investors, and we must try to remove some of these fears by showing them Britain's condition is perfectly sound.

"At the same time it is an extremely serious situation. No economies will be drastic, I can tell you that."

Big Task Says Premier

London, Aug. 17 (AP)— Prime Minister MacDonald, looking fresh but alert after a night-long journey, arrived at Inverness beginning his summer home in Scotland to preside over the meeting of the cabinet economy sub-committee this afternoon.

"I cannot say very much about the cabinet's economy problem," he said as he alighted from the train. "It is a big task and cannot be dealt with in a few minutes."

This afternoon at four o'clock the sub-committee is meeting and

Jugoslav King's Affairs Cause Royal Curiosity

Zagreb, Jugoslavia, Aug. 17 (AP) —The people were wondering today whether King Alexander is going to visit Queen Marie, his Rumanian wife, were estranged.

Their curiosity was stimulated by the fact that the King and Queen spent apart the tenth anniversary of the accession to the throne, he in mourning on his summer estate at Pijesat and she attending a showing of parades at Constanza.

King Alexander was one of the few intimates of the Rumanian Royal family not to attend the wedding of Princess the Victor Emmanuel last month. Queen Marie has resented at that time to have been displeased by his absence but no official reason ever was given out.

We shall then consider exports' figures from the treasury regarding what saving can be made. It is not anticipated that any decision will be taken this afternoon but probably before the end of the week.

He regretted he had to return to London, because the weather was "simply glorious" in Inverness, but seems a pity to have to leave it," he said.

He traveled by train rather than by airplane because he considered the comfort of his present journey was too great to risk delay by forced descent in possibly adverse weather conditions.

Awaiting Forecast

London, Aug. 17 (Canadian Press Cable)—Chancellor Snowden said on Wednesday when concrete steps to meet Britain's financial crisis are taken $600,000,000 will be outlined. They will be put before the general council of the trades union congress on Thursday, and also before the leaders of the Conservative and Liberal parties, who will be asked to ensure passage of the necessary legislation in the House of Commons.

And still the country awaits some kind of a definite forecast from the chancellor. Indications are that this will not be forthcoming until after Thursday's conferences. Only then can the waiting public can do is study again the proposals of the sub-committee on economy which on Aug. 1 found budget deficit would probably amount to $600,000,000 and which made recommendations designed to save about $480,000,000.

Suggestions Made

How closely the government will follow the committee's recommendations is not known today. Cuts in salaries of teachers, increases in contributions by workers and employers to the "dole" fund and reductions in unemployment benefits are the leading features of the committee report.

It was during the early days of the war when the cabinet members assembled in Downing Street in the afternoon. Outside was a crowd so large that police were sent to keep it in order. Most of the throng was there to get the latest developments all attracted by the importance of the meeting.

Labour, Liberal and Conservative leaders were in conference today although the party chiefs have not come back to the city.

The economy measures was a general belief that there will be a special session of parliament probably early next month to draft the bills for the government's economy measures.

Forced to Sit in Chair While They Were Murdered

STILETTOS USED

New York, N.Y., Aug. 17.—Police today revealed details of what they called the most bizarre killing in Brooklyn crime annals, the killing of three men who were made targets for flung knives in a basement cellar.

LIQUOR RAID ENDS IN CHAIR

Four Men Executed at Rockview Pen. For Murder

Bellefonte, Pa., Aug. 17—Four men died in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary here today for a murder, they committed three years ago. A fifth member of the bootlegging gang, convicted of killing Louis Hoffman on his father's Centre County farm, is serving a life sentence.

In 38 minutes the State had executed its penalty and life was destroyed in Frank Piccolo, also the "Ace of Spades;" Frank Powell, Carl Crow, and Joseph Paris.

Paris was the first to go, followed by Powell, Canilla, and Crow.

Only Crow had anything to say. After receiving permission from the prison chaplain, Father Frank McGrady, Crow declared: "I am innocent. I am as innocent as a little babe. God bless my little boy."

Canilla had to be supported as he entered the death chamber.

Paris sat with his head in the chair reciting the Litany after the chaplain, without any emotion.

The four men, arrested almost two years after the killing of Hoffman on his father's farm, nine miles from Johnstown, were deserted at all times by the alleged illicit liquor ring operating through Cambria County.

The state charged them with going to the Hoffman farm in search of a hidden cache of liquor. Testimony was that Crow recognized Hoffman was murdered during a fight which followed his denial that any liquor was hidden on the premises.

NEW RUSSIAN POLICY SEEN

Co-operation Sought with Intelligentsia of Old Regime

Moscow, Aug. 17.—Elaborating the new Soviet policy toward the old technical intelligentsia, J. E. Rudzutak, Assistant Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars, declares that all who want to work honorably and respectably will be given the opportunity regardless of "yesterday."

Emphasizing the importance of "age technical backwardness," the Soviet leader called for wider cooperation between the new and old intelligentsia, declaring that while the nation must develop its own proletarian technical leadership Joseph Stalin advocated, it was foolish to rely on new engineers alone.

"The question now is, will the old engineers work with or against us," Rudzutak said, answering his own question by saying that most of the capitalistic elements of the country had been conquered and it now remained only to win over the specialists of the old order completely.

He pointed out that it would not be some difficulty in assimilating some of the old specialists into the state, however, because many were prone to view the working man as serfs and slaves instead of helping him to raise his capacities.

MOONSHINE RAID FOLLOW MURDERS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 17.—Wholesale raids on moonshine whiskey dispensaries here and elsewhere over the State constituted the aftermath of last week's quadruple torch murders near here.

Brucker, ordered a Statewide drive against drinking resorts and Oscar G. Olander, State Commissioner of Public Safety mobilized State police to put the order in effect. "The stuff makes maniacs of those who drink it." Commissioner Olander declared, "and that sad part of it is that young boys and girls are the addicts because moonshine is cheap and plentiful."

Transportation of Single and Transients to Work

Registration of Unemployed Men Proceeds Apace

WEST IS WORRY

Ottawa, Aug. 17 (CP)—Free railway transportation for single men and transients willing to accept work outside cities will be provided under the unemployment relief scheme of the Dominion Government, Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour, announced Sunday in a preliminary statement of the Government's policy. The Minister declared a considerable number of unemployed single men had accepted and special arrangements will be made to move them "almost overnight."

Emphasizing the importance of "age technical backwardness," the Soviet leader called for wider cooperation between the new and old intelligentsia, declaring that while the nation must develop its own proletarian technical leadership Joseph Stalin advocated, it was foolish to rely on new engineers alone.

"The question now is, will the old engineers work with or against us," Rudzutak said, answering his own question by saying that most of the capitalistic elements of the country had been conquered and it now remained only to win over the specialists of the old order completely.

He pointed out that it would not be some difficulty in assimilating some of the old specialists into the state, however, because many were prone to view the working man as serfs and slaves instead of helping him to raise his capacities.

A survey of the unemployed situation by provinces, he said, has almost completed, Senator Robertson declared, and the number of unemployed is not yet available. Registration of unemployed and correspondence of unemployed men with the Government and the greater portion of the Dominion Government program will be undertaken in the West.

The Government will urge the provinces, he said, to adopt duty to distribute employment opportunities equitably under conditions justify longer hours. All municipalities will be asked to undertake construction must be of Canadian materials produced in Canada wherever available. No attempt will be made to fix rates of wages but as far as the Dominion Government can direct the undertakings by the provinces municipalities will be carried on with wage rates prevailing in the various districts. Verbally Settled.

Provincial negotiations have been verbally settled," Senator Robertson said, "but have been reduced to some amendments made. The approval of the Department of Justice and the Governor-in-Council will be necessary before formal agreements can be signed on the details. This cannot be made before Parliament meets, but will be communicated with provincial premiers during the week. The Dominion Government now absent from Ottawa, as there will be no avoidable delay in getting relief work started.

through the department of public works, the Government will initiate undertakings including "public buildings, roads and bridges" and is being done to enable co-operative undertakings with the provinces to be proceeded with.

"Registration of the unemployed, the only thing upon which unemployment action can be based, is proceeding satisfactorily. The proportion of unemployed in different parts of Canada varies greatly and therefore additional efforts will be made in districts suffering more severely.

"Negotiations have been proceeding with railways by which the latter have agreed to reduce passenger rates so men may be assisted in moving to natural points where employment on a substantial scale is available.

"As the Government wishes to minimize the tendency toward transient movements of single men arrangements have been perfected to provide transportation to the West and single men willing to accept work in rural localities on Government expense. Some sustenance will be provided by the provinces in paying the cost.

"If such men remain on the work three months they will be entitled on production of a certificate from the Employment Service, to return fare within certain zones at a greatly reduced rate, probably one cent a mile.

"It is physically impossible to register all the unemployed single men and direct communications to the provinces will be made paying heavily for their license plates. It was claimed today that residents outside the city of Belleville pay $15 for a car license, as compared to $30 for residents of the city and if they trucked outside, they had to pay for a special license in the province, besides paying heavily for their license plates. It was claimed that residents outside the paying city wages to their employees. Aldermen Meagher and Ellis moved a motion that Alderman Woodley, Armstrong and Chief of Police be appointed to be a committee to meet a committee of the truckers and thoroughly investigate the city by law on trucking. This was the only solution to the matter, said by the deputation. This committee will meet in the Council Chamber.

Undulant Fever Cases Total 87

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 17.—Eighty-seven cases of undulant fever have been reported in Ontario so far this year, compared with 75 cases reported in the whole of 1930, Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, said today. Five deaths have so far been added, were diagnosed by the use of blood tests in laboratories and other cases might exist or have existed in the Province and have been unreported because the laboratory test had not been made.

This information the Deputy Minister of Health gave in reply to a question as to the prevalence of an ailment from which a farmer living near Belleville was reported to be suffering. A newspaper despatch stated that twenty-five head of cattle had been found to be infected with the disease and had been destroyed and that the owner of the city road had contracted the same malady.

Dr. Bell said that the disease from which the man was suffering was likely what was called undulant fever, which was first related to malta fever and was sometimes called by that name.

"It was caused," the Deputy Minister said, "by drinking milk that is unpasteurized milk from cows suffering from contagious abortion."

Undulant fever, Dr. Bell concluded, is a disease of long duration, is rare and it caused death in approximately two percent of cases.

REVOLT HEAD BEHIND BARS

Cuba's Insurrection Appears to Have Petered Out

Havana, Aug. 17.—(AP)—His principal aides left behind them, Cuba's week-old revolution was viewed by the Government today as nearing the stage of a lost cause.

President Gerardo Machado concentrated his attention and armed forces on Camaguey Province where vestiges of resistance lingered. He will spend two or three days with them using the time also to have the rebels lay down their arms. Brigadier General Mendieta, provisional President and reputed head of the movement, General Carlos Mendieta, veteran of the War of Independence of Cuba in the Spanish-American war.

While press and movie cameras clicked away, Machado's cautious cause ashore and entered automobiles awaiting. Then the party rode up the long hill, closely guarded by soldiers. Machado getting his cells awaited them until such time as President Machado on military courts pass judgment upon them.

The seven days in the field—they slipped away from Havana on Aug. 9 day and surrendered to the Quevedo forces after a bitter fight with some of the men. The slender figure of General Quevedo, his white uniform lines were in his face. The soldierly bearing of the commander was evident as though the weight of the skin of responsibility had not been very much. All were ragged, dirty, weary and unshaven.

In Santa Clara, the men who took the field at their call went on with their work. Only a few were under arms, but Colonel Aurelio Hernandez, Machado Minister of Senate, two other old soldiers of the War of Independence stood out still in the field. The insurgents say the revolution will not be over until all are dead or captured, or until Machado resigns.

Sea Cadets Home From Fine Cruise

Land Ho! was the cry in the crow's nest when the local sea cadets turned in the harbour Saturday night.

Aboard they yacht the Marion C, the local sea cadets left Belleville harbour at 12 p.m. on last Tuesday. Eight cadets made instructor A. C. Hawkins, R.N.V.R. While manned the ship on her first voyage for the sea cadets. During their trip down to Kingston the cadets were taught the art of "heaving lead" which is the sea expression for sounding. The boys were shown the ways and how to man the sails and under a favorable wind they were well on their way.

Upon entering the Nigger Narrows the wind died down and they were forced to use the auxiliary motors, under which they continued to Gravelly Bay where they landed and took an hour for a tour of inspection of Lake on the Mountain. At 5 p.m. they again weighed anchor and ran into a heavy gale from the west. The gale was pretty heavy so under orders they anchored along the shore for the night.

Bright and early Wednesday morning they weighed anchor and under a steady east wind sailed through the Upper Gaps. As the wind was against them at times they made very slow progress. A heavy sea welcomed them when they left Lake Ontario. Kingston and they docked at the Kingston Yacht Club where they were met by a launch which took them to the Penitentiary Island where they pushed off for the return trip they were met with a stiff west wind and made very slow progress as the breeze was of the head-on nature. They docked some in order to sail under their own canvas. They were forced to again rely upon the auxiliary motor for their power. During the return trip the boys were put on watch as they expected to arrive home Thursday night but on account of the calm they were forced to take command at any time the occasion arose. Anchor was dropped and they embarked for provisions. Upon returning they made a stiff south west wind sprung up and that they again hoisted their sails and under the breeze sailed gracefully through the Narrows.

Upon entering the Bay of Quinte the cadets found that they were met by a dead calm, so were once again forced to use their motor. Under the "midnight sun" the boys safely entered the Belleville Harbour at 2 a.m. Saturday, where they docked at 9.30 p.m. after having the time of their young lives.

Instructor Richens spoke very highly of the boys and was greatly pleased with their ability as sail ors. He also stated that none of the boys were sick during the trip although they did run into some real rough weather.

VETERANS PAY DEAD HONORS

Annual Memorial Day Service Held at Cemetery

"They rest in peace but their name liveth for evermore."

On Sunday members of Post 99 Canadian Legion augmented by members of the Ladies Auxiliary and other organization held their decoration service at Belleville cemetery, conducted by the Chaplain, Rev. A. L. Geen, the address being given by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., V.D., and W. E. Tunman, M.P.P. After the service the veterans in the parade marched about the cemetery placing flowers on the graves of their departed comrades and veterans. The service was non-denominational and graves in both St. James and Belleville cemetery were decorated.

Lament is Played

The parade commenced at the Memorial Hall led by the Johnstone Pipe Band, after the service Army Band, followed by the veterans in motor cars and a military escort in cars. The Salvation Army band played the funeral march as they left, thinking the Pipe Band carried on with a tune by the latter. The cortege continued to the top of Murney Hill where the members were transferred to the hearse which took them to the cemetery. The cenotaph was set up in the cemetery, the Salvation Army bands and spectators of which there was a large number, grouping themselves in the foreground.

The service was opened by Rev. A. L. Geen by prayer after which the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee" Calvert of the Salvation Army. Hymns well known were often sung, while the boys were on active service and in barracks, were used, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," "Abide with the Good Flight" and "Forever With the Lord." The Salvation Army Band accompanied the singing.

Was Changed Thought

W. E. Tunmuon eulogized those who had paid the supreme sacrifice, in the Great War and also those, who were fortunate to come home to carry on. "The war," said the speaker, "has changed the whole course of thinking but Canada was big enough and strong enough to work its way out of the mesh that was entangling the other countries of Europe. So much has been said of Red Communism in the last few days but we have to thank the Almighty Father that it is confined only to sections of this Dominion. The people of Canada do not want the Red influence to spread and if it does become dominant, there is no doubt that the same boys that fought for liberty on foreign soil will again rally to rid this fair country of its influence."

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. L. Geen, after which Pipe Major Albert Johnstone played as a Scotch lament as he marched in front of the Cenotaph. The Last Post was blown by Bandsman Green of the Salvation Army. The singing of God Save the King in unison brought another memorable day in the lives of veterans to an appropriate close.

All members of the city police force are much relieved. A mystery which has been perplexing them since the early part of this year has been solved, and the system of operating used by the alleged culprit, in perpetrating many offences, in which he has been able to avoid detection, has been discovered.

The clearing up of the annoying matter commenced Sunday morning about six forty-five o'clock when a telephone call summoned the police to the Capitol Cafe, located on Front street, near the Capitol Theatre. Constable Isaard hastened to the cafe and found one of the proprietors greatly excited. He stated that he had arrived at the cafe early and had not yet unlocked the front door. The back entrance door was reported to be secure. He was enjoying a little "dope" when there came to his ears a startled in seeing a young boy in the cafe busily engaged in the cash register. He picked up a large knife and rushed through the kitchen and into the room. The boy was quick and dodged his pursuer. Reaching the front door he quickly unlocked the door and then set up the cafe was able to give a fairly good description of the culprit.

Constable Isaard commenced at once to search and did not have to past ten in the forenoon he located a lad answering to the description given him. The boy denied all knowledge of the affair; said he had been out all night and when questioned it is said was vouched for by his father who said that he took him aside and when asked "You know what I am here for" replied that he did know, that he had been told by Constable Kidd and had narrowly escaped from being butchered. Later he made this same acknowledgment to his foster mother and was taken to the police station where he was given over to Sergeant Harman which clears up many mysterious thefts.

Had Been on Parole

The boy is but fifteen years old and not large for his age. He is on parole from St. John Industrial School, Toronto, and has been at his home since the last Christmas. His foster parents, who took him from this institution through the goodness of their hearts and have striven to reform him, are respectable and well thought of citizens.

The boy's favorite time to operate has invariably been early Sunday morning during the time police change shifts. After carrying out his plans he would go to church and thereby have an alibi as he had in this instance. He is a keen money monitor and articles which he could carry and conceal easily, it is believed.

Many Offences Admitted

The police state that he has confessed to having committed the according to an utterance made the first of this year: Breaking into White Rose Glass Company, Front; Outar to Intelligencer Office; Thompson's Ladies Store (twice); Dominion Clothing Store which was located next door to Scantlebury's; Brickman Bros. Store, stealing candy and refreshment booth (twice); took gift certificate from in front of Geen's Drug Store to the rear, broke it open, took money and gum, then tossed the empty envelope into the street where it was later found. This same treatment he gave to matches from in front of Kellaway's Dundas St. store. This machine was thrown into the bay and it was thought covered.

The police state that he has a favorite practice of searching parked cars for anything valuable. He commenced quite a few years ago to depart from the path of rectitude. When very young it is said he took "off" about $1 a time from the bank from the teller's counter in the Bank of Montreal while the latter was busy with a Children's Shelter. He gave the police a lively run but they caught him.

The boy appeared before His Honour Judge Hall, Monday morning acting in the stead of Magistrate Mills and admitted guilt on the one charge preferred, that of entering the Capitol restaurant. He was ordered returned to the industrial school to be there kept until he reaches the age of 21 years.

A new radiator for heating rooms is so compact that it will stand only a few inches from a wall and it is designed to be installed close to floor, where it will be most efficient.

VETERANS PAY DEAD HONORS

Annual Memorial Day Service Held at Cemetery

"They rest in peace but their name liveth for evermore."

On Sunday members of Post 96 Canadian Legion augmented by members of the Women's Auxiliary of the same organization held their decoration service at Belleville cemetery, conducted by the Chaplain, Rev. A. L. Geen, the address being given by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., V.D., and W. E. Campbell, M.P. After the service the veterans in the parade marched about the cemetery placing flowers on the graves of their departed comrades and veterans. The service was non-denominational and graves in both St. James and Belleville cemeteries were decorated.

Lament Is Played

The parade commenced at the Memorial Hall led by the Johnstone Park Band and the Salvation Army Band, followed by the veterans in uniform and the Auxiliary members in cars. The Salvation Army band played the funeral march and after finishing, the Pipe Band carried on with a funeral march and the parade continued to the top of Murney Hill where the members of the parade filed into rank to proceed to the cemetery. The cenotaph was set up in the doorway of the mausoleum, the bands and spectators of which there was a large number, arranging themselves in the foreground.

The service was conducted by Rev. A. L. Geen by prayer after which the Scripture was read by Reader Calvert of the Salvation Army. Hymns well known and dear to all while the boys were on active service and in barracks, was used, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," "Fight the Good Fight" and "Forever With the Lord." The Salvation Army band accompanied the singing.

Stabilization

Col. Roscoe Vanderwater spoke briefly but he said, "Memorial Day to the veterans and interested listeners, what could well be covered in these lines of stress. "I lies with the boys who enlisted in the defence of country," said the Colonel. "The boom days or period of inflation, which ended in 1929 was the worst thing that could have happened to Canada's conditions will work themselves out." Colonel Vanderwater believed that permanent peace would not come until all armaments are abolished and he also believed that the powers would meet at the Disarmament Conference in February with that thought in view.

War Changed Thought

W. E. Tummon eulogized those who had paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War and also those, who were fortunate to come home to carry on. "The war," said the speaker, "has changed the whole course of thinking but Canada was big enough and strong enough to work its way out of the mesh that was entangling the other countries of Europe. So much has been said of Red Communism in the last few days but we have to thank the Almighty Father that it is confined only to sections of this Dominion. The people of Canada do not want the Red influence to spread and if it does become dominant, there is no doubt that the same boys that fought for liberty on foreign soil will again rally to rid this fair country of its influence."

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. L. Geen, after which Pipe Major Albert Johnstone played a Scotch lament as he marched in front of the Cenotaph. The Last Post was given by Bandsman Green of the Salvation Army. The singing of God Save the King in unison brought another memorable day in the lives of veterans to an appropriate close.

Many Thefts Confessed by Boy After Attempt at Cafe

Restaurant Proprietor Pursues Lad Who Escapes

CLUE SUCCEEDS

All members at the city police force are much relieved. A mystery which has been puzzling them since the early part of this year has been solved, and the system of operating used by the silent culprit, in perpetrating many offences, in which he has been able to avoid detection, has been discovered.

The clearing up of the annoying mystery commenced Sunday morning about six forty-five o'clock when a telephone call summoned the police to the Capitol Cafe, located on Front street, near the Capitol Theatre. Constable Insard hastened to the cafe and found one of the proprietors greatly excited. He stated that he had arrived at the cafe early and had put the key in the locked the front door. The back entrance door was reported to be secure. He was enjoying a little "dope" when suddenly he was startled in seeing a young boy in the act of taking money from the cash register. He picked up a large knife and a chair and pursued around the room. The boy was quick and dodged the pursuer. Reaching the back door he turned the lock, ran into street and was out of sight. The police officer on the cafe was able to give a fairly good description of the culprit.

Constable Insard commenced at once to investigate and about half past ten in the forenoon he located a lad answering the description at his home. The boy denied all knowledge of the affair, but after a short but early church which assertion it is said was vouched for by his mother, who was also present took him aside and when asked "You know I am not the boy" replied that he did know, that he had been in trouble before and had narrowly escaped from being incarcerated. He made this statement acknowledgement to his foster mother and was then taken to the station where he made a confession to Sergeant Harman which clears up a mystery existing for months.

This same treat he took from the machine in front of Kellaway's Dundas St. store. This machine was broken into the bay and 2 was not recovered.

The police state that he has a favorite practice of searching pant ed cars for any loose change. He commenced quite a few years ago to depart from the path of rectitude. When very young it is said he took off with a glass bowl and bank from the teller's counter in the Bank of Montreal, then open for the support of the Children's Shelter. He gave the police a lively run but they got him.

The boy appeared before His Honor Judge Hicks, Monday morning acting in the stead of Magistrate Moffatt and remanded until the one charge preferred, that of entering the Capitol restaurant. He was ordered returned to the industrial school to be there kept until he reaches the age of 21 years.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Infantile paralysis, while more or less epidemic in New York area, has made its appearance in only a few isolated cases in Ontario during the present season, something for which everybody has cause to be profoundly grateful.

Study of cases which have been discovered in the city of Toronto furnishes ground for believing that in some instances the disease has been carried out of New York by children visiting that city, and it is well, therefore, that parents and others should be upon their guard to prevent any spread of the disease.

Dr. S. Boucher, director of the Montreal health department, has issued a bulletin listing a number of precautions which should be taken by the public to prevent the spread of this dread disease. Here they are:

"Infantile paralysis is more prevalent amongst children and frequently the healthiest are those attacked.

"The disease is caused by a germ; the identity of which is still unknown, and can be transmitted by direct contact from person to person, and probably through different objects.

"To prevent this infection, you must:

"Isolate the children as much as possible, avoiding public places or crowds.

"Prevent the taking of children into sick rooms.

"Have your house well ventilated.

"Watch their diet.

"Have your house well screened.

"Send for a physician when the child shows the slightest sign of illness, such as fever, vomiting, diarrhoea, convulsions, headache.

"If you suspect that your child suffers from the disease, remember that it is contagious. The discharge from the nose and the mouth (saliva and all excreta) are especially dangerous for its spreading. You must then isolate the patient, keep other children away from the room, and scrupulously follow the physician's advices regarding the disinfection of all articles which could have been contaminated."

Prompt treatment on the part of a physician is of the utmost importance in dealing with infantile paralysis. Every diagnosis may mean saving the life of the child or freedom from the crippling effects which so often follow an attack, for the use of the serum which has been prepared for distribution throughout Ontario is of the greatest value only when introduced in the early stages of the disease.

Infantile paralysis is a disease of the origin of which little or nothing is known. It claims victims annually and cripples many others. Parents will scarcely be doing their duty if they fail to heed the suggestions which the health authorities have compiled for their guidance.

BACK TO THE FARM

A hole in the economic trap sprung by the depression is being found by tens of thousands of Americans.

And they are pouring through it — away from the city and back to the farm.

For they have learned a bitter lesson while wearing out shoe leather in a vain, heartbreaking hunt for jobs; the domain of pavements, trolley-cars, corner drugstores, and the movies is also the place where the economic blight strikes most viciously.

"The bread line and the free-soup kitchen," as The Manufacturers Record sums it up with forceful simplicity, "are not features of farm life."

And so "they are turning back to the soil from all walks of life," points out the Illinois Free Employment Office, "sure at least of a place to sleep, food, and a small salary. Some have been off the farm for twenty years."

In the South, the Southwest, and the Northwest the back-to-the-farm swing is said to be most pronounced.

"The trend is indicated in government records, which show that during 1930 a total of 1,392,000 persons left the towns and cities for the farm," writes Harold Winters, in a copyrighted article in the Chicago Journal of Commerce. "This is the largest movement in this direction since the Government first began assembling these statistics in 1922.

"At the same time, the movement from the farms to the cities has declined as consistently as its counter-movement has increased. In 1922 the exodus from the farms amounted to 1,120,000; the largest total of the period, while last year it aggregated only 151,000."

Thus it appears that the farmer, of whose economic plight we have been hearing so much, is actually a great deal better off than the thousands of city workers who have lost their jobs.

"The great industrial expansion that pulled thousands from the country to fill the gaps at workers' benches in towns has about slimmered down to a routine job of producing more than the country can buy," asserts Stanley Andrews, editor of The Arkansas Farmer. "While machinery was replacing man-power in many manufacturing enterprises, it required man power to make the machines. Now that the machines are made and the workers displaced, there are fewer jobs in town." Reading on:

"Conditions have been made worse by the depression, and the result of that is many of the country boys who used to work in town are trekking back to dad's farm or a piece of ground somewhere, knowing that they will probably get very rich, but will have the three squares a day."

COMET
By Aline Michaelis

Man like a comet soars
Hurtling through life;
Swiftly-glimpsed, friends and foes,
Concord and strife.

Plunging through deeps of night,
Vastness of dawn,
Arc of the comet's flight
Faultless is drawn.

Man like a comet sails
On through the days,
And the great Plan prevails
In all his ways.

Viewless the comet's goal,
Bright, its desire;
And in man, too, a soul,
Stardust and fire!

FATHER OF "NICKEL" THEATRES in Canada was John J. Griffin, of Toronto, whose death has just been announced at the age of seventy-seven. Belleville interest in the passing of this veteran showman is considerable he was a well-known figure during the hey-day of the Griffin Opera House here, formerly the Carman Opera House. Mr. Griffin made frequent visits here and made many warm friends. His two particular pals, however, were the late Crown Attorney Carnew and Jack Mackie, the three being familiar figures at performances in the Griffin Opera House. A pioneer in the motion picture entertainment field Mr. Griffin started what was then called "nickel" theatres in Toronto and then branched out all over Canada, acquiring theatres for road shows and moving pictures. He was an old show man having in his younger days been identified with circus propositions, in the days when rough-house tactics characterized circus life every day was a potential battle with the town folks or among the circus personnel which was always a fighting unit, including roustecks of all kinds, the proverbial razorbacks, as circus laborers are still called, the grafters, pockpockets and crooks generally, who followed the old-time circus. John J. Griffin was a he-man and survived this hectic period of circus history to see the gradual development of business methods in circus life and the banishing of grafters from the circus lot. George J. Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre, was for many years closely associated with John J. Griffin in the management of his various theatre enterprises, and states that he was the most generous of men and the finest possible executive to work with. A large man, physically, his generosity was larger than himself, and included not only his employees but many outside the theatre circle, and in the words of another it is fitting that his good deeds of which little was said in his lifetime should live after him, and other deeds of possible doubtful value should be buried with him. Thus another Belleville man, prominent in the world of entertainment, passes out of the current picture, back of the curtain of mystery which veils the unknown.

DRIVING IN THE HIGHWAYS

The Ontario department of highways intends to use motion pictures in an effort to bring home to the motorists of the province the necessity of exercising the greatest care in driving on the highways of Ontario. A film has already been prepared along that line, as one of the education plans adopted by the department in its campaign to reduce the number of automobile accidents on the highways and it will soon be in distribution, and will be shown in motion picture theatres all over the province.

It is anticipated that this film will attract considerable interest, and it ought to, for if there is any subject in which people should be interested it is that of highway accidents. The film itself is a most realistic and depicts several types of motor accidents. Perhaps some motorists who see it may recognize some faults of which they themselves are guilty in their driving, and may thereby be induced to adopt safer methods. Anything that will make the highways of Ontario safer for the public is worth while, and as a vivid portrayal of the results of careless and reckless driving may be a very effective method of correcting the evils which are all too common at the present time.—Oshawa Times.

LOOKING BACKWARD

The farmer today has plenty of hard problems to solve, and at least there are no breadlines or soup kitchens in the country. A man can always wear his old clothes and get along without a new suit somehow, but he cannot live on yesterday's dinner. We should be thankful food is so cheap and plentiful at this time, because all our other problems can be solved so long as food remains plentiful. Only famine or fear of famine breeds civil revolution.

These reflections appear in the letest of a series of articles in Printer's Ink by Roy Dickinson, who believes the farmer will shrink out of deflation sooner than most, and supports his opinion with quotations and statistics in support thereof. That is especially encouraging because Mr. Dickinson's Uncle Joe, a possibly mythical character who takes a hand in these articles, seems to have an idea that farmers on themselves are a race apart.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

CANADIAN GEOGRAPHY

The awarding of a medal to Mr. Lawrence J. Burpee, LL.D. distinguished Canadian author and editorian, by the French academy directs attention to one of the editorial activities which is of national importance, namely, the Canadian Geographical Journal, of which he is the editor. We have just received for review the August number of the journal, and take this opportunity of commending the society to our readers. Membership in the Canadian Geographical society means a contribution to a movement of the highest worth to the people of this country. The annual fee is only $3 and this includes the free delivery of the monthly journal, a most interesting and instructive publication, artistically produced. In the August edition, besides book reviews, are articles on Gaspe peninsula by Marius Barbeau; Water Pictures, by Marion MacMillan, being a charming description of holiday time in Georgian bay area, and the beautiful effects of rock and tree reflections as revealed in this gifted observer; a timely article on Port Churchill by Donald Ridout, in which much interesting information, accompanied by numerous photographs, charts, etc., is given concerning this newly developed northern port; and Travels but Unknown Spain, by Made Macbeth. The inclusion of the last mentioned article shows that the magazine is not entirely confined to Canadian subjects. As a matter of fact, the magazine is "dedicated to the interpretation, in authentic and popular form, with exhaustive illustration, of geography in its widest sense, first of Canada, then of the rest of the British commonwealth and other parts of the world in which Canada has special interest."—Hamilton Times.

EXAMINATION TESTS

Here are some statements made by children in their written school examinations. They were collected by The London Times: "There happened something for which James II could not be held responsible. His wife bore him a son," "Solomon had 300 wives and 700 porcupines"; "A monsoonium is what you give a person when they are leaving"; "A monologue is a conversation between two people, such as husband and wife." "What part did the U.S. navy play in the war?" "It played," answered an ingenious child jauntily an American, "the Star Spangled Banner." Of the story of King Alfred, when the pupils were forbidden to mention anything so hackneyed as the cakes, there emerged the follow ing: "King Alfred walked on, until he came to a cottage and, going in, he found a lonely woman, but of the rest the less said the better." —Mail and Empire, Toronto.

Lord Besverbrook In Interview Deals With Finance Panic

Halifax, Aug. 17.—Startling figures totaling hundreds of millions of dollars and representing shortterm credits extended to Germany by Great Britain and the United States from the crux of today's world financial crisis, stated Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born British newspaper peer, in an interview with the Halifax Herald. Satisfactory disposal of these gigantic and immediate obligations, a matter which up to the present has baffled the efforts of international experts, is the problem around which often hope of a solution, he said.

That efforts in Great Britain to deal with this situation would likely result in the formation of a national government, was the prediction to be read into Lord Beaverbrook's comment on methods which probably would be pursued in the Old Country.

"It is a short money panic, not a long-term panic," declared Lord Beaverbrook, the dashing world aristocrat. "If someone could devise a method to meet these day-by-day obligations of Germany's, there would be no panic.

"Everything depends on the situation in Germany," continued Lord Beaverbrook. "England has so extensively committed herself to German financing that she is in the position of the creditor being ordered about by the debtor. The same situation applies to the United States. Germany's debt to Great Britain amounts to £100,000,000 in short-term obligations and £50,000,000 in long-term obligations. Most of the latter represent shares in the Deutsche Bank, in which England was so foolish as to buy a majority interest. Fortunately it happens to be one of Germany's strongest banks at the moment.

"The United States," he pointed out, has $16,000,000 of short-term money and £800,000,000 of long-term money lent to Germany. No man would conceive that such huge figures could be reached. They were a revelation to the world. It is fortunate for Great Britain that New York is more heavily involved. France, on the other hand, has practically no money out in Germany. £1,000,000,000 will cover all her short-term credits.

"The great trouble today is that these short-term credits are not being paid. London and New York are staggering under the load. They are finding it very difficult to bear. That is why such immense efforts have been made to place Germany in a position where she can meet her short-term obligations. The Oor man plan is to turn these short-term credits into long-term bonds. But there is no one to buy the bonds. The world has lost confidence in Germany."

WALKER PROVES STRONG CARD, WINS 5 GAMES

Giants' Position Would Be Stronger Had Team Like Heavers

33rd BY RUTH

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

If the New York Giants had an entire pitching staff of men as successful as Manager William Walker, they might now hold the place of the St. Louis Cardinals at the top of the National League standing instead of being virtually tied with the Chicago Cubs, 1 1-2 games behind the Cards and one slim point ahead of Chicago.

Walker, the leading Giant pitcher, has won his last five starts and in two games against the Card rivals has let the league champions and prospective pennant winners down with a hit. He turned in a second two-hit game against St. Louis in the first half of yesterday's double header to win by a 7 to 1 decision after beating them 4-0 July 18.

He had another shutout in sight yesterday until a walk and two errors in the ninth inning gave the Cards their run.

Carl Hubbell, Walker's equally left handed running mate was not so successful in the second half of the double header. He let the Cards a run in the first inning and the Giants of the two retreated that margin against Flint Rhem's fine mound work. They scored twice after an injury forced Rhem out, but Frank Frisch clouted a homer with one aboard in the eighth to provide the margin of victory in the Card's triumph.

Meanwhile Chicago's Cubs took two games from the Boston Braves by scores of 7-1 and 5-1 to regain some of the ground they had lost in the race for second place. Charley Root and Guy Bush gave the Cubs some fine hurling, the former giving the Braves seven hits and the latter five.

The Brooklyn Robins completed the National League programme by winning their first double header since they took the July 4 bill from the Giants. The victims were the Cincinnati Reds and the count were 9 to 2 and 8 to 7. The Reds outhit the winners in the first game by a comfortable margin but in the second were held scoreless in the first nine innings.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia had an off day. Except in the Boston-Chicago double bill, interest in pitching had little to do with yesterday's American League programme. Washington's Senators scored the day's big triumph by downing the St. Louis Browns 6 to 5 in the first of a double header, but the losers collected 15 hits and Washington 27. Aided by his own home run and one by Jack Russell, Fred Marberry went the route to take the first game 9 to 2.

Babe Ruth's 33rd home run, which gave him the major league lead, one up on Lou Gehrig, was the big clout of the New York Yankees 9 to 6 victory over the Detroit Tigers, but it took a three run rally in the ninth to provide the winning counters.

The Philadelphia Athletics got the benefit of two homers, one by Cochrane and one by Cramer in defeating Cleveland 6 to 4 as the three man pitching combination of Mahaffey, Hoyt and Walberg, limited the Indians to seven hits; and Boston each displayed one good pitching performance and divided their double header, Ernie Thomas held the Red Sox to six hits in the first clash to 2 to 1 while Eddie Durham had the better of the second contest with Vic Frazier, allowing five hits to win 5-1.

Believe it or not, the softball situation MAY be cleared up by Wednesday. Tonight the Kingston Capitals come to town to play CIACO and the two teams meet again in Kingston tomorrow night.

Then on Tuesday evening the Belleville Fruit play the Maple Leafs. And will I miss that game? (I will not.)

By the time they get the play-offs finished we should be about into the hockey season. They do say that competition is the life of trade.

The stage is all set for the Central League play-offs. The first game will be played in Belleville Wednesday afternoon and the second game in Kingston at 5.00 p.m. Friday.

Manager Walter Gerow is grooming both Pointer and Gibson for the big game here Wednesday. If these two boys get down to work there is no reason why the series should not be won by Belleville in two straight games.

But they must not think that it will be any cinch, for those "Ponies" are dangerous hitters when they start. But they do not look so strong in their pitching staff, that a senior club should have.

Hutchings, Murney Green and Bob Scott will be back on the job Wednesday. So after the rest of the boys had their little "outing" down at the Kingston Cricket Field the other night they should be ready to go to work now.

Neutral umpires will be used for the play-offs. This is a blessing from every stand point. The system of home-umpires has not been the huge success that it was cracked up to be.

I understand that "Axe" Kay and "Curley" LeBarr will be the officials in charge. Well there are no better umpires in this province and the team that does will know that they got a square deal from these boys.

I saw Harold Buck up at the ball game the other day. I guess that "Smoky" kind of wishes that he had stayed here and trailed along with the Nation. Yes, They look good to him now, that it is too late.

Some of the local soldiers tell me that they got the biggest laugh of their life in Kingston last Friday at the game. It seems that Alex Weir stole on Hewitt Smith out on four pitched balls in the eighth inning.

Smith threw him but away in disgust and strode toward the Kingston bench. In front of which was a pail nearly full of water and to the utter that Smith arrived opposite the pail his chagrin WAS greater.

It was aroused to the extent that he gave the pail a forearm kick and the contents landed fairly into lap of Official Scorer "Freddy" Beaudry.

Those who saw the affair tell me that the look on "Freddy's" face was worth the price of admission alone. Oh well, as boys must have our fun.

The local Victorias did well (?)

The B.A.A.A. juniors play in Peterboro tomorrow at 5.30 p.m. and the return game will be played here next Saturday.

Two Lacrosse Teams Refused

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Refusal of two lacrosse teams to play to a finish here Saturday in an Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association semi-final contest aroused spectators. The teams were St. Simons of Toronto and Brampton Excelsiors. Both clubs have been suspended.

A previous game had given St. Simons a 4-3 lead. Goal were to count in the two game series. With time up, Excelsiors had scored once while St. Simons were blanked. Then, in contradiction of adverted announcement, it was announced there would be no overtime and that a third game would be played next Wednesday.

Surrounding W. J. Blaiper, President of the O.L.A.A., a number of fans demanded the game be resumed. He ordered the game to continue for ten minut.t but neither team obeyed.

9 VICTORIES PUT NEWARK BACK IN LEAD

But Margin on Orioles is Measured By Percentage

BUFFALO LAST

(By The Canadian Press)

A nine-game winning streak has carried the Newark Bears back into the lead in the International League although their margin over the Baltimore Orioles has to be measured by percentage points.

Games No. 8 and 9 in the Newark string were both won against the hapless Buffalo Bisons yesterday and sent the Bears into the lead by a margin of two percentage points over the Orioles who were beaten by Rochester Red wings in games won and lost the two clubs are in a virtual tie Newark having won two games fewer and lost two fewer than the Orioles.

One other change in the standing yesterday saw the Buffalo Bisons put place as the Jersey City Skeeters downed the Montreal Royals in both ends of a double-header, Toronto, by splitting even with the Reading Keys, not only protected its hold on fifth place but moved to within a half-game of the fourth place Reads.

Good pitching and timely hitting gave Newark its double win over the Bisons, 7-2 and 7-4. The Bears early assaulted Alex Ferguson for five runs in the first inning and that opening game Alex went away from there before anybody was retired. Michael Meola relieved Ferguson in relief roles but the damage had been done. Meola pitched well with Bisons to five hits He Boone hit two home runs, each time with Andy Cohen on base, to give the Bears the second contest. Scored in second drive came in the last half of the seventh. The final inning after Buffalo had tied the count in the first half.

Rochester beat Baltimore, 7-6, collecting 14 hits of which Sisler collected four. Baltimore kept in the game only through its home-run hitters. Joe Hauser hit No. 18 and 19 and Gill connected for No. 19.

Toronto's victories over Reading came by 4-3 and 3-2 counts. Johnny Allen held Keys to five hits in the opener while Liebhardt permitted only seven in the nightcap, scheduled for seven innings. This battle also went into nine innings when the Keys knotted the score at 2-2 in the last half of the seventh. The Leafs collected 13 hits in the second game but wasted many chances.

Exceptional pitching by George Miner and Steve Nekola, accounted for two Jersey City victories over Montreal, 3-2 and 4-2. Miner gave up only four hits in the opener while Nekola gave nine but scattered in the nightcap.

The Royals have lost 11 games in a row while Buffalo has won only one game in its last 14.

Miss Barriage Holds Winning Sweepstakes Ticket

Hamilton, Aug. 17.—Miss Mary E. Barringer of 317 Aberdeen Avenue, winner of the Dominion Rifle Association sweepstake carrying a cash value of $12,500 is enjoying a weekend sail on the Great Lakes, and will not learn of her good fortune until hours today, when she reaches land.

Miss Barringer, who drew the name of Sergt. Harold Ashling of Toronto, is a salesman. She resides with her brother, Harry Barringer.

"I don't know anything about the ticket," said Mr. Barringer when interviewed yesterday. "I don't know where or when she bought it and I have no official news that she won the prize. Miss Barringer left Hamilton yesterday, a short time before news of her success was flash ed from Ottawa. The boat touched Owen Sound but no word was forwarded there, her brother said.

Mr. Barringer said his sister had not discussed the ticket purchase other than to state that she had invested in one. So far as he knows officials of the sweepstake had not communicated with her.

"You can see her when she returns tomorrow and she will be able to speak for herself," said Mr. Barringer.

It is understood that Henry H. Hackman, Montreal, held the ticket for Lieut. O. T. Wood, of the Dispatch team, and won second prize of five runs in the match. Sergeant Seattle, Wash., won third prize of $2,463 for holding the ticket of Lieut. R. A. Sweet, Hamilton, who won third place.

CORRECT CLOTHES FOR MEN

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 7 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

They soon realized they could hope for no safety or peace of mind until four strong walls effectually barred the jungle life from them. Next morning, after their meager breakfast, Lord Greystoke commenced work upon their house. The task was an arduous one, though he built but one small room.

Two months after, they were well settled and, but for the constant dread of attack by wild beasts and the ever-increasing loneliness, they were not unhappy. At night great beasts snarled and roared around their tiny cabin, but they soon became accustomed to these oft-repeated, weird noises.

Thrice had they caught fleeting glimpses of great man-like figures, but never at sufficiently close range to know whether these forms were men or brutes. One afternoon while Greystoke was working upon an addition to their cabin, a number of little frightened monkeys came shrieking and scolding through the trees.

Even as they fled, they cast fearful glances back of them and finally they stopped near Greystoke, jabbering excitedly as if to warn him of approaching danger. At last he saw it—the thing the little monkeys so feared—the horrible mantrote of which the Greystokes had caught occasional fleeting glimpses.

It was approaching through the jungle—a great anthropoid ape—and as it advanced it emitted deep guttural growls and an occasional low barking sound. Greystoke, who was at some distance from the cabin, was armed only with an axe, and the ferocious monster had cut him off from escape to his retreat.

FIRE CHIEFS' CONVENTION

The Fire Chiefs Convention was held this year in Shawinigan Falls, Quebec and was attended by the Chief of the Belleville Department, William Lynch. The Ontario Intelligencer is indebted to Chief Lynch for the following account of the convention:

The Delegates to the 32rd Annual Convention of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, held in our city on August 4, 5 and 6, have come and gone, and they have no doubt been well pleased with the reception that was accorded them in our midst.

Many delegates had arrived on Monday evening, some by train, others by automobile, and it had been a big task for the local committee in final accommodation for all the guests. By Tuesday morning 178 delegates including some 70 ladies had registered with the Secretary, Chief Armstrong, and at 10.30 a.m. in the Convention Hall the Convention was officially opened by the President, Chief F. E. Thompson, of New Liskeard, Ont., with Invocation by Father J. E. Trudel of St. Peter's Church and the Reverend J. W. Harrison, His Worship Mayor Gignac presented the key of the City to Chief Thompson, extending to the visitors a very hearty welcome; other speakers were Mr. D. S. Wilson, President of the Chamber of Commerce; aldermanic J. A. Richard, Chairman of Fire Committee and the City Manager M. N. J. A. Vermette.

Chief H. S. O. Harrington, of McGill Provincial Oil Refineries, Montreal, past President of the Association and Chairman of Committees on Exhibits replied to the addresses of welcome in both French and English.

At the conclusion of this ceremony, all delegates attended a Memorial Service for the deceased members in St. Peter's Church.

The same afternoon was taken up with a business session of the Convention and at 6.30 p.m. all assembled up in front of the Convention Hall Headquarters to proceed on a trip to Grand'Mere, where the delegates were officially welcomed at the City Hall by His Worship Mayor Gagnon and members of the City Council. The Mayor, speaking in French, expressed his great pleasure at being able to receive the delegates who were holding their Convention in Shawinigan Falls and he hoped that all the visitors would enjoy their short stay in Grand'Mere.

Alderman Lampron, speaking in English on behalf of his colleagues of the City Hall, extended to the visitors a most hearty and cordial welcome.

Mr. J. A. Bernier, City Manager, Mayor Gigaire of Shawinigan Falls, and Chief Raoul Gauthier of the Montreal Fire Department, Vice-President of the Association, also spoke briefly. Chief Thompson on behalf of the Association extended his heartfelt thanks, on behalf of the Association, to the Mayor and the City of Grand'Mere for the cordial reception that had been accorded to the visitors.

The party then proceeded to Proulxville, where, after a visit of the Numerical Co. of the Protection Service of the Laurentide Division, Chief Power and Fire Protection, the delegates and their ladies sat down to a regular habitant bean supper, which was enjoyed by everyone present.

A dance at the Country Club during the evening was attended by a large number of delegates and their ladies, while others attended a special performance at the "Auditorium" by courtesy of the Management.

At the Country Club the hall was tastefully decorated, Chief Pillon's orchestra in attendance and refreshments were served. Everyone present pronounced this to be the most successful dance held at the Country Club this season.

On Wednesday morning, after the business session of the Convention, the visitors adjourned to the Auditorium Theatre where a film on the Municipal Safety Campaign was screened, with addresses by Director R. Gauthier of the Montreal Fire Department, as part of the Educational Programme of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

At 11 o'clock the Ladies were driven to the Golf Club where they held the annual meeting of the Ladies Auxiliars, which resulted in the election of the following officers: President: Mrs. Edrea Lepine, wife of Chief Lepine of the Angle de Bellevue; First

POLICE TRACING FUGITIVE DRIVER

The district office of the Ontario Provincial Police has been instructed to keep a sharp look-out for a "hit and run" driver that even collision with a large load of hay could not stop. On Tuesday night, August 11, about 9.30 o'clock a team and wagon drawing a load of hay was making leisurely progress along Highway No. 20, near Hannan Inn Westworth County, when an automobile travelling in the same direction at a great speed struck the rear right wheel of the wagon, breaking it off and upsetting the hay onto the horses. The men travelling on the load were thrown about fifty feet to the pavement, one of them being seriously injured. The car continued on its wild career, leaving a trail of broken glass along the highway. The police think that the right front wheel of the car must have been damaged and are watching all garages and auto wrecking shops for a car which appears as though it might have passed through such an encounter. The driver of the car will certainly be forced to have his car overhauled. The number and the make of the car are unknown.

Many Thefts Confessed by Boy After Attempt at Cafe

Restaurant Proprietor Pursues Lad Who Escapes

CLUE SUCCEEDS

All members of the city police force are much relieved. A mystery which has been perplexing them since the early part of this year has been solved, and as a system of operating used by the alleged culprit, in perpetrating many offences, in which he has been able to avoid detection, has been discovered.

The clearing up of the annoying mystery commenced Sunday morning about six forty-five o'clock when a telephone call summoned the police to the Capitol Cafe, located on Front street, near the Capitol Theatre. Constable Isaard hastened to the cafe and found one of the proprietors greatly excited. He stated that he had arrived at the cafe early and had not put the locked the front door. The back entrance also was supposed to be secure. He was enjoying a little "doze" when suddenly he was startled in seeing a young boy in the cafe hastily making for the cash register. He picked up a large knife and a lively chase commenced around the room. The boy was quick and dodged in like a flash, reaching the front door he turned the lock, ran into street and was "on his way". The proprietor of the cafe was able to give a fairly good description of the intruder.

Constable Isaard commenced at once to investigate and found that past ten in the forenoon he located a lad answering to the description at his home. The boy denied all knowledge of the affair, said he had been to early church which assertion it is said was vouched for by his mother. The officer then took him aside and when asked "You know what I am here for" replied that he did know, that he had been in the Capitol also and had narrowly escaped from being hatchetted. Later he made this same acknowledgment to his foster mother and was taken to the police station where he made a confession to Sergeant Harman which clears up many mysterious thefts.

Had Been on Parole

The lad is about fifteen years old and not large for his age. He is on parole from Sir John Industrial School, Toronto, and has been at his home here since last Christmas. His foster parents, who took him from this institution through the good offices of Inspector Beamish have striven to reform him, are respectable and well thought of citizens.

The boy's favorite time to operate has invariably been early Sunday morning during the time police change shifts. After carrying out his plans he would go Saturday and thereby have an alibi as he had in this instance. He was after money mostly and articles which he could carry and conceal easily. It is believed that the officer

The police state that he has confessed to having committed the following offences since the first of this year: Breaking into White Rose Gasoline Station; The Chalet in Intelligencer Office; Thompson's Ladies Store (twice); Top Notch Clothing Store which was located next door to Scanlon-Wyn; Bridgmans Feed Store; Victoria Park Store and refreshment booth (twice); took slot gum machine from in front of Geen's Drug Store Front street, broke it open, took money and gum, then tossed the empty machine into the river where it was later found. This same treat was done to a machine from in front of Kelaway's Dundas St. store. This machine was thrown into the bay and it was not recovered.

The police state that he has a favorite practice of searching parked cars for small articles. The lad commenced quite a few years ago to depart from the path of rectitude. When very young it is said he made off with a glass bowl coin bank from the teller's counter in the Bank of Montreal, which was for the support of the Children's Aid Society. The police a lively run but they got him.

CRIME CAUSE IS EXPLAINED

Wickersham Commission Gives Three Main Factors of Evidoing

Washington, Aug. 17.—City industrial districts, land tiined and the collapse of family life are the leading causes of crime, the Wickersham Commission investigators said in a report transmitted to President Hoover.

The commissioners themselves forwarding a two-volume, 701-page report of their experts, said the causes of crime could not be discussed comprehensively.

But Commissioner Henry W. Anderson, in a separate report, said "our social organization" should:

(1) Discover and remedy or remove physical or mental defects/cies or lack of balance.

(2) Remove city slums or rural "underprivileged areas" which are "clearly shown to be breeding areas of crime and not crime."

(3) Re-examine our social, political, legal and economic systems with a view to their orderly adaptation to the rapidly changing social, political and economic life.

To carry on these experiments, Anderson urged the Government to set up a "bureau of criminal research," to collect, co-ordinate, and disseminate accurate information on the subjects involved.

Political Corruption a Factor.

Anderson in his review of the experts' reports asserted that political corruption was "a regrettable factor" in causing crime. He also declared that many criminal careers can be traced to a starting point in school life, and urged that schools be studied from this standpoint. He also declared that crime in large cities comes from certain "spots of infection" and not from certain areas of a certain nationality. He noted that the "boys' gang" was another crime cause, one of the experts finding that most of the criminal mentality occurs in the company of other children, and not when confined to one child alone.

As a highly significant point brought out by the survey by Clifford R. Shaw and Henry D. McKay, two commissioners' experts, Anderson told of "areas of crime infection" in the "zone of transition" in Chicago but in six other leading American cities.

"Areas exist in which the incidence of delinquency, truancy and adult delinquency are very high," Anderson said. "These areas follow in their investigation for the commission, have been found to be contained that such areas exist not only in Chicago, but also in Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati, Birmingham, Denver and Seattle, Shaw and McKay declare.

"Despite the differences in character of these cities, the consistency areas display similar characteristics of economic condition, home, shifting and decreasing population; and mixture of racial prevalence; a marked absence of the home-owning class; a supply foreign population at inferior racial status; unwholesome types of recreation; inadequate community facilities. The responsibility of the social organization for the existence of these conditions is manifest."

A special report on the negro part in crime by Clifford Kirkpatrick of Sing Sing negro convicts, emphasized the handicaps of poverty and low economic position of the race in most communities. Here as among the whites, poverty was closely connected with the cause of crime.

The Shaw-McKay report reprinted chronological charts and maps, and stories of many youthful criminals and delinquents, showing how the broken families, defiant youths pay greasing from politics, money to and for crimes, and learning crime from other youths on the streets and in the schools.

Crime Area Classical.

But the effect of crime "areas of infection" in every large city surveyed was the isolation and involvement of the survey. This discovery was made by Shaw and McKay classifying the addresses of criminals and delinquents according to certain period, and then, with the aid of a map of the city, finding where most of the criminals lived.

In general they came from the industrial or central sections of the city, and from the areas immediately adjacent to the business districts. Crime rates in these areas decreased in the suburbs, where air, yards, and more room and spaces were held partly responsible for the lowest crime-record of each city.

WOMAN IS SENT TO THE MERCER

Mrs. Grace Brisley, who resides in Sidney township, but outside the city, appeared before Magistrate Millar's office court house on Saturday and was found guilty to having received stolen goods and was sentenced to a term of six months determinate and an indeterminate sentence of not more than two years less one day in the Mercer Reformatory. The goods she received were stolen from the Blue Bird Tea Room, Front street, Belleville, and Robert Willis, who made their home with her and who are now serving a sentence of similar duration at the Ontario prison farm, Guelph.

Constables Hammer and Campbell investigated the charge in both cases.

'RED' BUTTER GIVEN CHECK

Dominion's Products Take Soviet Butter's Place

London, Aug. 17 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—The first instalment of Soviet butter on the British market has arrived in cheese. Biggest supplies from the Dominions, especially Australia and New Zealand have taken its place.

"The Russian dream of staging under the five-year plan a comeback on the British market appears to have been shattered as far as this season is concerned," says the Empire Dairy Gazette. "Of 20,000 tons valued at more than $10,000,000 which it was confidently forecast would be Russia's contribution to the British butter market this year so far only 7,700 tons have been landed.

The Empire Dairy Council attributes the failure of the Soviet butter invasion to "the refusal of British growers to trade in this commodity." Russians also persist here the Soviet government is planning abolition of its food rationing card system. Abolition of rationing would mean a reduction in Russia's exportable surplus of grain, especially wheat.

Shock brigades, it is stated, are working day and night among the collective farms of the Northern Caucasus and the Urals to speed up harvesting. It is charged the collective farmers are not handing over sufficient grain to the Soviet government.

PRINTING OFFICE FIRE DAMAGED

Montreal, Que., Aug. 17— The printing plant from which are issued Le Miroir, Le Soleil and Le Canada weekly magazine, was destroyed by fire early Sunday.

On the complaint of J. Arcand, joint proprietor and editor of Le Miroir, members of the arson squad of the city police under Capt. Sarsfield Cotterill, Detectives Thomas McManus began an investigation.

Reports given the police indicated the building was entered from the rear, the interior ransacked, bookkeeping records being carried out and piled in a heap. Another flight presses and four linotype machines had been smashed by a hammer prior to the fire. Mr. Arcand said. A binder, cutter and stitcher were badly smashed, while the composition type of next week's issue of Le Cogily was scattered over the floor, he further states.

Mr. Arcand added that regular issues of Le Miroir would not probably be published during the week on other presses.

Honesty Test Proves Failure

Chicago, Aug. 17—Mrs. Alma Ludwig, maid who said she got so tired of "honesty tests" imposed upon her at the Wilmington, Del., home of Ernest Du Pont, that she finally stole $50,000 worth of gems will be returned to Wilmington immediately police said tonight.

Mrs. Ludwig was arrested here Sat urday when she attempted to sell $40,000 of the gems she took from her millionaire employer to a pawnshop owner. She said she already had disposed of $10,000 in jewels in eastern cities, netting a total of $215.

"I went to work for the Du Ponts on Aug. 6," she said. "The first day I was with them I found a $5 bill on the floor. The next day I found a $10 bill, which made me think they were trying to find out if I was honest. I turned the money over to them but when they took out on their yacht on the third day I gambled up all the money I could find. I went first to New York where a pawnbroker gave me $50 for one piece. A stranger gave me $100 on another piece and I went to Philadelphia where I got $65 for a ring."

Mrs. Ludwig waived extradition.

SAY BODIES OF FLIERS FOUND

Espanola, Aug. 17.—Tourists who returned last night from Birch Island, about twenty-five miles from here, reported that an amateur wireless operator located there had intercepted a message yesterday which told of the finding of the bodies of Parker Cranzo, United States aviator, and his radio operator, Oliver Paquette, a native of Espanola. The message was flashed back only the meagre information that the operator, whose name was not disclosed, had picked up the bodies of the flyers and added he had been "found on the coast of Norway."

WESTERN SERVICES RETAINED

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Air mail services between Ontario and the Western provinces retained, but the flights east of Toronto have been abandoned by the Dominion Government through lack of economy. Contracts with flying companies expired yesterday and a new schedule announced last night by postal officials indicates a considerable curtailment of services from those of last year.

WOULD CHANGE GANDHI'S MIND

Every Effort Made to Have Him Attend London Meeting

Bombay, India, Aug. 17 (AP) — Redoubled efforts were being made today by unbiased intermediaries to persuade Mahatma Gandhi to follow the first contingent of delegates to London for the second round table conference on Indian affairs.

The prospect of his ultimate departure from Bombay on March 14 when it was learned he was willing to withdraw the demand for the appointment either of an arbitrator because of a high court judge to investigate alleged breaches in the Delhi pact provided the government announced the civil or government official to hear his complaints.

Message to Viceroy

This fact has been communicated both to Viceroy Willingdon at Simla and the cabinet in London. It was believed that the Viceroy may be instructed by Sir Hon. Wedgwood Benn, secretary for India, to act favorably on Gandhi's latest suggestion, which is said understood that the Labor government as well as Gandhi himself is anxious that all political groups in India be represented at the conference.

It is argued by neutral observers here that all the fruits of the Delhi pact, one of the main purposes of which was to insure Nationalist participation in the conference, will be thrown away if Gandhi does not go to London.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION MEET CLOSED

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Connaught Ranges, Ont., Aug. 17. —With two of the greatest shooting events in Wimbledon and Canada, the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association closed its annual meeting here today.

A week featured by shooting which bordered on the phenomenal of record-breaking scores, and by matches which in every case required tie-shoots to decide the meeting was finished successfully the rifle association had ever known.

The Kolapore Cup—the Governor-General's greatest individual meet in the Dominion and Empire match—found the scales held by employed carpenter and "dark horse" winners in nearly all parts of the Dominion.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Panchon Meredith leaves San Francisco by airplane to escape arrest in connection with a murder in which her sweetheart, Tony, is implicated. She had not known that he was a gunman. Evelyn Howard, whom Panchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii, is aboard. She is enroute to New York to live with her wealthy aunt, Mrs. Allison Carstairs, whom she has never seen. The plane crashes and all but Panchon are killed. Grasping the opportunity to start life anew, Panchon goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn's Mrs. Carstairs' affection wins her heart. At Southampton, awaiting the arrival of her son, Collin, Mrs. Carstairs warns Panchon not to take him seriously. He arrives and accuses Panchon of luring Evelyn under false pretence. Collin objects to "Evelyn". Panchon learns that Evelyn had indiscreet affairs with a naval officer and a native. Panchon's sincerity in explaining that "her" indiscretion was only folly overcomes Collin's antagonism. A warm comradeship ensues and together they spend a happy summer. Collin and Panchon love one another. He is grieved when Panchon confessing his love because of the blood barrier, and also because of her masquerade. He admits it to his mother. At Panchon's debut, he cannot conceal his love. For a moment they are happy, then both remember. Later, a threatening note from Tony is slipped into Panchon's purse.

CHAPTER XVIII

Panchon stood in the pleasant, quiet apartment house lobby and read the scrawled note again; and again. Then she put it in her left hand and walked steadily toward the elevator.

Tony had found her at last. Tony had traced her to this little haven of peace, and security. Tony had traced back to claim her.

How had he found out where she was . . .? under whose name she was living, enchanted and unsuspecting existence?

Suddenly, now that he had struck, now that she knew she could no longer go on, she was not afraid. She was not afraid, though, with some curious icy determination that as yet she could not name, she could face Tony, she could fight him, she could, if his terrible threat could try to meet them as long as they included no return to a life that no longer existed.

Mechanically Panchon Carstairs, having fallen in love with Collin, having lived, by day and night with the realization that she was utterly knowledge of her deception would mean to lose him, had slept sleepless, tortured with the thought of Collin's love for her, driven for him into its utter hopelessness, she was no longer afraid of Tony.

With this in her heart she went to the Brooklyn address on the following afternoon.

It was easy to provide herself with means of escape for this minor deception. The Carstairs had several cars; and two chauffeurs. Therefore a car and a driver were always at Panchon's disposal. Collin drove himself, as a rule, in a sticky shining, long-bodied roadster. Panchon, too, had her own car and had learned to drive it, for the country. It was now laid up for the winter.

To go out was easy enough. She had made a number of friends, she was inundated with invitations to day-time affairs, matinees, teas, luncheons, bridge, and she went shopping often. She told Jennie, therefore, having ascertained that Mrs. Carstairs had an engagement for the afternoon, that she would like to go shopping. The maid, she added, could drive her to a central shop and then, because the day was pleasant she would like to walk. She hadn't, she said laughing, and marvelling at her own aptitude for acting, learned the car habit as yet.

She wore her simplest walking suit. She wore a little fur piece, pretty but not particularly expensive, which she had bought herself. She put the remainder of Tony's money into an envelope and placed it in her handbag. She laid her pearls aside, her diamond and platinum watch. Nor because she feared for Tony's honesty in minor matters, but because she had no idea of the section into which she was going.

She stopped at the bank and drew out enough money from her current account to make up the sum which Tony had given her. Little had been spent of it save for the airplane passage . . . a small sum to the people who had cared for her—more than much augmented by her check, sent at Miss Carstairs suggestion—and the sum she had left with the doctor to take care of—Evelyn.

Then she climbed into a taxi at a shop. She waited till the man had driven away, she then entered the shop, came out and took a taxi and went to the Brooklyn address. There she dismissed the last and stood a moment before the quiet, rather shabby-looking brownstone house which advertised rooms to rent.

The neighborhood had once been very good. She street was in a backwater, a small, blind street. It was run down now, the very trees, growing forlornly from the asphalt, had a neglected and pathetic appearance. Children played mildly enough in the gutter. Women went by, market baskets on their arms. Some were slatternly, some were neat and well-respecting in appearance. Before one house a very fine, expensive car stood, a chauffeur waiting. As Panchon hesitated 'in elderly woman wrapped in an ancient mink coat, came down the steps of the house. Evidently she had always lived in the neighborhood and nothing would make her move away, not even the gradual degradation and decay.

Panchon went up the brownstone steps. They crumbled a little. The handrail of stone was worn. Shabby, dusty Brussels lace curtains hung at the front windows. She did not know what she would say.

She could not know. Her mind was almost blank but of her courage she was certain. Tony had loved her. Perhaps still loved her. Possibly within his love for her she might find some core of understanding for her position, some excuse for what she had done, some on the other hand, of angry understanding and that same love might soften Tony's fury, his desperate ace of all.

She put out her slender gloved hand and rang the old-fashioned bell.

Tony opened to her. He had been waiting, hidden behind one of those limp curtains.

"Tony—" she said, on a small and breath.

Looking at him, she remembered how short he was. She had forgotten. She had cared. Looking at him with the eyes which she had given but reluctantly into the house. "Come," he said, with a flash of his white teeth, "into this—parlor. We shall be undisturbed. Quite quiet."

He followed him. The room was long, it was dark, there was velour furniture and a few pictures. The ing walls were Victorian era prints. There was over her rather dismal cooking . . . Slags at bay and curly haired golden haired children at prayer. The furniture was plush, a dingy red. There was a gilt mirror set. Candlesticks of wood and two conch shells reposed upon the mantel. It was dark, it was lighted.

In one corner, a whatnot, loaded with dusty plush knickknacks. In other, a really lovely secretary . . . a beautiful piece, and the room from another room. There was a Chinese ruler and inevitably peculiar Pox News will be exhibited with the above feature offering.

"THE YELLOW MASK"

A large crowd attended each performance of "The Yellow Mask," the Edgar Wallace musical thriller at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday. The antics of Lupino Lane in his endeavour to free his lady love from the hands of a powerful Chinese ruler and inevitably provide his newspaper with a great story were the funniest imaginable. Fast moving fun wherever Lupino Lane appeared on the screen was expected and the audience got it.

Army manoeuvres, complete with tanks and large captive balloons, scenes within the Tower of London, as authentic, in all appearances, as if they formed part of a tropical film; a treacherous, suave villain "Ormuzd," with a palatial yacht, bent on stealing a jewel from the Crown collection; a Chinese headman preparing to decapitate an unfortunate English officer in case the fair English lady whom the potentate has carried off to his distant home persists in her refusal to marry him; and, at the last moment, the timely arrival from out of the blue of a small detachment of British troops before whom the entire population of "Manchina" flies in terror—these are but a few of the stirring incidents with which British International's talking picture version of Edgar Wallace's "The Yellow Mask" is crammed.

"The Yellow Mask" ends tonight and is supported by "Skirts Struck," a very funny comedy and the Pathe Sound News.

BERYL MERCER DOESN'T LIKE HERSELF ON SCREEN

Although she has a world of film fans, Beryl Mercer is no movie enthusiast, having only seen two of some thirty pictures in which she appeared in featured roles.

"I don't like to see myself on the screen," the famous character said explained. "I went to see 'Seven Days' Leave,' the film version of 'An Old Lady Shows Her Medals,' only to compare it with the stage play in which I appeared on many tours. Then I saw another picture but I have forgotten the name of it."

Miss Mercer's latest role is in "The Man In Possession" in which she appears as Robert Montgomery's mother.

Long, lean and lanky Charlotte Greenwood plays the part of an English maid in this hilarious comedy.

One of the stage's best known comediennes has portrayed every type of role, but has appeared on the Belle in "Stepping Out" is well remembered by local screen lovers.

Included in the sterling cast of "The Man In Possession," which opens at the Belle, Wednesday are C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen and Alan Mowbray.

27 STUNNING GOWNS WORN BY MISS TOBIN IN "THE MODERN WIFE"

Forget-me-not blue for bloodsts! Right. It always has been right. So Genevieve Tobin, playing the lead, Ivy Hamline rich in "The Modern Wife," which opens Tuesday (Opening) at Silver Slights at the Capitol Theatre and stays over Wednesday (these this remarkable picture in velvet for one of the 27 lovely gowns she wears in this picture.

Howard Greer, Hollywood's famous costume designer, adapted the Tobin gown from a print of Miss Tobin's golden hair and sparkling eyes gave him the idea for trying for new and different effects with the color, for this is a season during which contrasting materials are decidedly the vogue. With a pastel velvet Greer combined gold cloth and ornamented it with topaz, cut square. And the result? A gown of distinction, a garment of rare beauty and grace.

The design was another achievement, for here is both simplicity and sophistication harmoniously blended. A front view of Miss Tobin as she moves graceously through the sequences in which the gown is worn, discloses a bodice that tends toward the Empire. The neck-line is not very decolette. A large topaz is fastened in the centre and two bands of gold cloth accentuate the slightly raised waistline, giving the gown a charmingly youthful appearance.

But as she turns, the back view presents a decided contrast. The bodice is backless and the two narrow shoulder straps of blue velvet merely emphasize its extreme sophistication.

The skirt is another surprise, for the narrow golden bands decorate the front of the bodice, but ends on suddenly and flow down on either side of the skirt to the floor where it helps form two trains, one on each side. The front of the skirt touches the floor and the back train slightly, but the side trails are quite long.

Blue shoes with square-cut toes are embellished by a finger ring set with another topaz, help carry out the unusual color scheme of this fascinating creation.

SUCCESSFUL BOOK MAKES THRILLING PICTURE ROMANCE

Pearl Dresserware Free Tonight

Even in this day of easy divorce, the old adage "marry in haste, repent in leisure" still holds its own. Roberta Sinclair's actionful love story, on which "I Take This Woman," feature attraction at the Belle tonight and Tuesday, matinee daily, brings this out very up to date and proves that divorce is not always the easy out for heedless marriage ties.

Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard, the blonde beauty whose rapid rise to screen fame is one of Hollywood's current wonders, carry the leading roles in "I Take This Woman." The story originally appeared in book form under the title "Lost Estate" and attained outstanding success.

Miss Lombard is seen as the girl, spoiled and selfish darling of wealth whose society and night-club escapades enmesh her in a dangerous scandal. Her father ships her off to his Wyoming ranch to vacation while the furor is subsiding. There she meets a man, strange to her, Gary Cooper, and, intrigued by his handsome, carless swagger, she flirts with him, teases his interest, and marries him. Disinherited by her father she struggles for life and love on a barren Wyoming ranch, until finally disgusted, she returns to her father's offer of forgiveness and returns to her former light-hearted world.

At this point the real drama of the story is revealed, as the gay society girl fights with herself to escape the bonds of love which entangle her. Two lives open before her, one glittering and luxurious and bare of love; the other stark, stripped of all life's beauties, offering love as the only reward for a life of hardship. A strange twist of fate decides her.

The idol of millions, Rudy Vallee in a small tuneful and melodious treat, Mack Sennett's funmakers in "The Raining Lover" and the popular Pox News will be exhibited with the above feature offering.

End Piles Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the rectum. Many pain—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting don't do that. An internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescribed by Dr. J. S. Hemorrhoid, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has proved itself a record sight in this city, that J. S. McKeen's Drug Store says on one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

LOST FLIERS' NOTE FOUND IN BOTTLE

New York, Aug. 17.—(UP)—What may be the last message written by Nungesser and Coli, Frenchmen who perished on an attempted east-west flight across the Atlantic, was brought to Roosevelt Field Sunday by two men who found it floating in a corpse bottle near Pire Island.

The note, written in French, was signed "Nungesser and Coli" and read:

"We are sinking at this moment near Labrador."

The fliers left Le Bourget Field on May 8, 1927, and were never heard from.

IF MODERN CLEANS — IT'S C-L-E-A-N-S

The Opening Night
by H. Louis Raybold

Danny Warren, clever mechanic, handy service man and sole manager of the Fourways Garage, was so used to movie stars that the sight of one of them was no more thrilling to him than a letter to a postman. In their shining, modern-slung sport models, they pulled into his gas station and pulled out again a dozen times a day.

Therefore, no one was more surprised than Danny himself to discover that he was madly in love with one of them.

At first he had not know her for a screen beauty. She had stopped frequently in her maroon roadster and, for some reason or other, he had aimed her up as a well-to-do Hollywood business man's pretty daughter.

Many a happy little conversation they had together. About the weather, the condition of distant roads, the fluctuating price of gas. Underneath all the casual give and take of remarks had been on his part, an awareness of two heavenly blue eyes, curly tendrils of hair sprayling out from under a slanted beret, a perfect nose and an adorable chin. On hers—well, perhaps just the interest any normal young girl has in a well set-up, level-eyed chap.

Then one afternoon she handed him a $20 of pasteboard. "I don't care to come. Our first night showing of Carver's Variety Girls."

Danny looked suddenly sober. "I guess I'm dumb," he said. "I never suspected you were a part of this show business."

"Oh, yes, indeed. I'm part of it. And the old bus, too; I'm Penelope Phillips."

After she had gone, Danny wondered whether she had given him her real name or her screen name and decided it must have been the former for never had he heard of a Penelope Phillips.

"I'll have to put her out of my life!" he announced grimly to the long-nosed oil container he found himself gripping tightly. "I was a fool not to have guessed it." and to Whirlwind,' indeed!"

But he went to the opening night. Yes, indeed, and in the tall, slim young man in evening clothes one would have had a hard time to recognize the overalled person who said, fifty times a day, "Fill 'er up, sir?"

Danny sat gripping the arms of his seat throughout most of the performance. "Gosh, I wish I could get a line on what's coming off in this 'Whirlwind.' Every time the heroine, Lydia Lane, O'Neill returned she sang shot through him. Why, even if he worked like a dog all his life he could scarcely pay for one of the gowns she wore so gracefully and which must be only a replica, after all, of those she donned in private life. For Lydia Lane was no mean star.

As the picture advanced and the plot deepened, Danny had further heartaches as he saw the hero desperate love to those lovely eyes and adorable chin. When the villain had his innings and threatened her very life, Danny almost rose and walked out.

Later he wished he had!

The big scene of the play involved a neck-ricking ride on the heroine's part to save the life of the man she loved. With wide eyes, Danny watched the runaway be had often cared for, bearing his charming Penelope at the wheel; saw the heavy car into the desert swerving from side to side along clay-rutted roads. How the girl could drive, but what danger there was for her in every turn of that reckless pace!

The next few days Danny hoped Miss Penelope Phillips or Miss Lydia Lane, would come to the garage. He told himself he wanted to try out the strength of his new combination in the motor of his blue eyes.

When at last she did drive in, she leaned out of the roadster eagerly. "Did you like it?"

"Very much," he said bowing slightly, in a most dignified sort of way. "You were perfectly marvelous Miss Phillips. What can I do for you?"

The girl seemed puzzled at his manner. Then, "Nothing," she said. My rear wheel gives a funny scrape when I round corners, but I haven't time to stop and have it looked at. I'm due on location at Mt. Jacinta in exactly fifteen minutes!" With a little nod, she was gone.

She had not been out of sight ten seconds when Danny suddenly fell afraid. Suppose something actually was the matter with that rear wheel! At the speed she would have to maintain to reach Mt. Jacinta in fifteen minutes, a wheel coming off would mean certain death.

Forgetting his resolution and even his garb of stained overalls, Danny leapt into his car.

Not for several miles did he catch a glimpse of that for which he held his eyes glued to the road ahead. Then a mere speck on the white ribbon of road, but one he could see. Even as he watched it, he saw it swerve sickeningly towards an embankment, but turn over, right itself and come to a stop.

When he reached the spot, the girl was looking ruefully, not at a detached wheel, but a deflated tire.

"Did worrying about that scraping sound in your rear wheel," said Danny, explaining his presence, "if you wish, I'll take you on to your location, Miss Lane, and then come back and—"

"Just what did you call me then?" "Miss Lane. Aren't you Miss Lane?"

The girl laughed. A lovely, silvery little laugh like sweet bells. "Well, I'll say I'm not! I'm Lydia, double. I can't act worth a cent, but I can drive—and the director would rather risk a seventy-five dollar a week neck than a two thousand dollar one! Of course, you may drive me out, but how can you leave your gas station?"

"In my own stead," said Danny proudly, who felt as if somebody had handed him Paradise on a platter, "I could shut it up if I wanted to for a month. But as, I own six of them and each new one I open I run personally until it's on its feet. But let's forget about me. O Penelope, not being Lydia Lane, will you marry me?"

Penelope threw him a lovely, surrendering glance. "Not being Lydia Lane," she said. "I—I think I will!"

Second Budget Within Five Months Promised By Chancellor

Must Gain Support of Opposition to Carry Out Budget Scheme

MacDonald Ministry Cannot Afford Split in Labor Group

ECONOMIC PLAN

Grave Risks Face Ministry At Thursday's Meeting

London, Aug. 18 (By George Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—No special services are to be abolished, Parliament will probably be reassembled in the second week of September in the second week of September to pass emergency legislation.

So far, this information is all that has leaked from the deliberations of the special sub-committee of the Labor cabinet—the "big five." The sub-committee under Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is again sitting through today, putting the finishing touches on their scheme to meet the threatened serious Budget deficit. Their recommendations on how the Budget should be balanced go before a full cabinet meeting tomorrow.

In effect, Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, chancellor of the Exchequer, will submit a second budget within five months of the first.

Speculation Rife

And as the ministers deliberate in the great silences of Downing Street, speculation turns to Thursday's joint meeting of the general council of the trades union congress, and the national executive of the Labor party. The great trades unions are still the backbone of the Labor party. The problem before the government is, that it must not only secure a parliamentary majority for its proposals, including support of the bulk of the Opposition groups, but it must have the support of its own following in the country.

The Labor Government cannot afford to risk a serious split in its own party at this period of the support of the Opposition in Parliament. It is generally indeed that

Earl Bessborough's Young Son Will Soon be Christened

CHILD IS WELL

Montreal, Que., Aug. 18.—(CP)—The son and heir of Lady Bessborough last Thursday will be christened "George St. Lawrence Neville," according to an official announcement issued from Ravenscraig, temporary home of the Governor General of Canada, this morning. The christening will take place at Ottawa after the middle of September. Lord and Lady Bessborough intend to return to their Hall during the second week in September providing Lady Bessborough's health is sufficiently restored at that time.

It was further announced today that because Lord Bessborough has undertaken an official tour of the Maritime Provinces commencing September 9 time will not now permit of his going into residence in the Citadel, Quebec, during September as he had hoped to do.

Among the list of the congratulatory messages reaching Ravenscraig following the announcement of the birth of a son to the vice-regal couple early on the morning of August 3, was a telegram from King George, in which the King expressed the wish that he might be godfather to the boy.

Lady Bessborough, whose maiden name was Lord Bessborough took place in 1913 at Rideau Hall, daughter of the Baron Newlise of Paris, France. Her husband, Viscount Duncannon, now 18, also was given the family name of Lady Bessborough, which is still the backbone of the Labor party. 30 Million are Homeless In Chinese Flood Area

Ten Million Destitute in Four Provinces of China

WATERS RECEDE

Hankow, China, Aug. 18 (AP)—A carefully compiled survey in the hands of Chinese authorities indicated today that at least 30,000,000 persons were homeless and about 10,000,000 of those utterly destitute in the four provinces hard est hit by the current Yangtze River flood.

After rising steadily for the past week, the waters of the Yangtze River last night apparently had reached a stationary level at a mark of 53 feet, two feet seven inches above the record of the great flood in 1870, the most disastrous on record until now.

Upriver points reported the water was falling, giving rise to hope the crest had at least been reached.

This was small comfort, however, for Hankow's refugee hordes, most of whom were forced to flee from their low points of safety, the railway embankments. The flood waters finally topped even these, resulting in terrible scenes of panic, abject misery, and the further loss of scores of lives.

Two Chinese gunboats aided in the rescue and evacuation of the destitute refugees from the embankments, raving as many as possible to the Wuchang heights across the river, where temporary shelters were hastily raised.

Provincial Constable Blamed In One of Many Affrays

COWS TAKE PART

St. Pascal, Que., Aug. 18 (CP).—Five revolver shots rang out in the midst of a stormy political meeting here Monday afternoon, as the crowd poured out of the town hall where they were discovered lying on the floor, seriously wounded.

The shots are said to have been fired by an officer of the provincial police.

Rushed to the hospital at Riviere du Loup, the wounded men underwent operations. Thomas Michaud, aged 62, of St. Philippe de Nori, has a bullet in his leg with a fracture. His condition is regarded as very grave, on account of his advancee age. Joseph LaFrance, of St. Alhanase and A. L. Morril, of Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere, were also wounded in the leg.

Other persons in the crowd at the Town Hall are reported to have been slightly injured. The victims were cared for by two physicians who attended the meeting, Dr. A. N. Caron and Dr. J. T. L. Landry.

At three o'clock Paul Gouin, late Liberal member in the Legislature for his Charlevoix seat, and Louis Levesque, were scheduled to address a political meeting opposite the Town Hall, following official nominations. When Mr. Levesque spoke the hall was crowded to the doors with interested electors. He had scarcely begun, when disturbance arose in the part of the hall where the police officer is said to have been sitting.

Witnesses report that the officer drew his revolver in defending him self against the attacks of rowdies who had started the fight. In the crowded hall nearly all the shots found a human mark. Panic-stricken men and women rushed out of the building by all exits. Assisted by two or three medical students who were present, Dr. Caron and Dr. Landry were rushed to the wounded men. An exam ination of Michaud, LaFrance and Anctil revealed their serious condition and arrangements were made by Joseph's Hospital at Riviere du Loup, 30 miles away, in half an hour's hard driving.

In Taschereau's Riding

Chicoutimi, Que., August 18.—Flat flights enlivened nominations here Monday when A. Taschereau, the Liberal Premier of Quebec; Arthur Dussault, Conservative and Aime Dion, Independent Conservative, were nailed as candidates for the County of Montmorency.

Three times rolling grocery of bellgerents gathered at the foot of the counter was averted by the interference of the police, who were followed by the arrival of the provincial police. Scarlen jaws, a little gore, and more noise than anything else marked the day's political battle.

Mr. Francoeur said the Premier had refused to attend a contradictory meeting at which both candidates could speak from the same platform. The speech suddenly stopped when a shot was heard in the main street. For five minutes traffic was blocked while young men exchanged blows. Mr. Francoeur began again but was again interrupted by the resumption of hostilities at the front.

JAZZ KING TO CHANGE MIND

Off to Marry, Though He Said "Never Again" When Divorced

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Paul Whiteman, bachelor who said emphatically being divorced last spring that "marriage is not for an artist," is here for reason to be married.

He took with him screen actress Margaret Livingston, titian-haired bride-to-be. The wedding will be held today in the Whiteman family home.

When Whiteman was divorced from Vanda Hoff, dancer, here last April, he was quoted as saying:

"I have the greatest regard for Miss Hoff, but marriage is not for an artist. The life we must lead makes it difficult for wedding ties to endure. It is unfortunate, but it is so."

One Chicago newspaper even quoted Whiteman as declaring that he never again would marry.

What caused the round White-man to change his views on marriage remained a secret. He left with the diminutive Miss Livingston for Denver on a secret date. It knew he had gone until a radio company issued a brief announcement.

ALMOST DESTROYS $12,500 TICKET

Owen Sound, Aug. 18.—Miss Mary Elizabeth Barringer, Aberdeen Avenue, Hamilton, winner of the D. R. A. sweepstakes which carried with it a cash prize of $12,500, when informed by the Canadian Press representative of her good fortune, following her arrival on the steamer Manitoulin from a week-end visit to Manitoulin Island, could hardly believe that it was true that she was a winner.

"I had forgotten that I had the ticket at all, in fact I was on the verge a few days ago of throwing it away as it was taking up room in my purse," said Miss Barringer, who was none the less greatly delighted that she was the lucky winner. She stated that she is to decide about the matter that she has no plans for the future.

UNCLE AND NIECE WILL BE MARRIED

London, Aug. 18.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Uncle and niece will marry at St. Clement Danes Church in the Strand on Saturday. It will be the first such wedding under the New Marriage Act which became law just before Parliament arose for the summer.

Until the new Act was passed the coming marriages would have been illegal under the English law, although under the "Deceased Wife's Sister's Act" passed twenty years ago the groom could have married the bride's mother—if the bride were dead and the bride's mother was widowed of course.

Priest's Shoes Burn While He Treads Crater in Alaska

Professor of Geology Rev. B. L. Hubbard, Leads Student Tour

SEES ERUPTION

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 18 (Canadian Press)—While shoes burned at the touch of blistering crystals, and the highest recording thermometers cracked eight inches beneath the surface, thunderous rumblings of night eruptions and an "abomination of desolation," were some of the impressions of a vivid description of Alaska's volcanic regions by Rev. Bernard H. Hubbard, S.J., head of the geology department of the University of Santa Clara, and known as the "Glacier Priest," in an interview here today. Father Hubbard has just returned to civilization from Alaska, where he explored the eruptions of Aniakchak last spring.

Father Hubbard has returned after one of the most informative scientific explorations of the north em country. Going to Alaska in 1930, he flew over the crater of an erupting volcano, and all but met disaster when the machine turned completely over and was within an ace of being sucked into the raging inferno.

During the exploration Father Hubbard, accompanied by students and guides, 200 miles by plane, 1,600 miles by dog teams and 350 miles by motor boat, was able to explore for part of the big crater was successfully examined.

Tells of Eruption

Describing the commencement of the eruption Father Hubbard said—"There was a terrific explosion and a dense black smoke rushed over 20,000 feet in the air, spreading out funnel-shaped. The earth shook, flame and smoke rose thousands of feet high and the pyrotechnic display of individual lava bombs hurling through the air, combined with the lightning formed in the cloud, made a truly fear-inspiring sight to those who witnessed it."

As usual in the volcano calamitys of the Alaska Peninsula, a great loss of animal life resulted from the explosions of Aniakchak, he said. An epic from the stricken field was told by the Glacier Priest of suffering animals, young left to die amid ash-covered surroundings.

"Reinder and caribou ground their teeth down to the gums from the grit of the grain, and died. Dead swans and geese floated down the rivers from Aniakchak. Their entrails were filled with volcanic ash, preventing them from swimming, driving within the crater were constant in the first great explosion."

FELL INTO CREVICE

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 18.—Charles Moore, 75, of Harrington, received fatal injuries Monday afternoon while superintending a cottage at Silver Lake, some miles from Harrington. He slipped from the roof and fell into a crevice.

MALTA FEVER CASE LOCATED

Several Head of Cattle Have to Be Destroyed by Veterinary

Toronto, Aug. 18.—A case of Malta fever, a disease extremely rare in this country, has been located in Hastings County, it is learned, where a farmer near Harold, Ont., Percy Ray, is suffering from the malady.

Mr. Ray is said to have caught the disease from his cattle, and early last week government inspectors who tested the cows were forced to destroy seven of a herd of eleven owned by the unfortunate farmer. The remainder will be kept under strict observation and tested at intervals until all possibility of his herd ever infected has passed.

Mr. Ray is also reported to have been infected for the past three years, although the owner, of course, did not know what was the matter with them. During that time none of the Ray cattle have born calves alive. Veterinarians were called in on different occasions to try to effect cures, but all to no avail. Recently only until the owner himself took sick some two months ago, did the medical doctors succeed in his illness as Malta fever, that the cattle were suspected of carrying the disease.

It is stated that Malta fever, while rarely and somewhat dangerous in the human, if prompt measures are taken. The disease is highly contagious and can be passed from infected cattle to humans by drinking infected milk, by handling meat which comes from infected cattle, or even by attending cattle which are suffering from the disease. Mr. Ray is at his home, but no member of his family to have contracted the fever.

The length of time taken to effect a cure is stated by medical authorities to be from six to seven months in ordinary cases, and although the afflicted person may not be seriously ill all that time, he has a lasting effect, being an extremely debilitating disease. In cases where measures have not been taken to check it, it has on more than one occasion proved fatal. To both humans and cattle, bloating is one of the fever's chief characteristics.

Malta fever was introduced into this North America by a shipment of infected goats from the Island of Malta in 1905, hence its name. Owing to its infectious nature, it spreads fairly rapidly once the disease gets into a herd of cattle, but strict supervision of all shipments into this country has, up until now at least, resulted in very few cases being found.

Y RELAY TEAM SUFFER DEFEAT

Toronto Runners Set Belleville Boys Fast Pace

After winning their three previous starts over the twelve mile course, the local Association medley relay team were forced to accept second place in the Picton to Wellington relay which was run over the highway Monday. Although there was a good breeze blowing from off the lake, the weather was exceedingly warm and several of the runners were affected by the heat.

The Toronto runners on the two win the event ran a smart race and deserve all due credit for their win. On the other hand they received a real "break" when one of the local runners, Richard Cretney, was taken with a severe attack of the kids when he had covered less than half of his two mile stretch and although he was able to finish it was only at about half his normal speed. The Y team was given a good start when Jack Murphy headed the runners to the mark in the opening half mile. Raymond Rose who ran the mile stretch succeeded in holding the runner a matter of a few yards, and Richard Cretney ran third, but by the two mile lap appeared to have all the better of his opponent until he slowed up, as previously mentioned. Both Girling and Barber who ran the three mile and five mile stretches, respectively, probably never ran much better races in their lives but found the lead of nearly a quarter mile which the Toronto runners had gained, too much to overcome. At that they were able to reduce this distance by more than half with Barber finishing strongly less than a hundred yards behind the winner.

The Belleville runners were successful in winning the Legion's trophy for the relay race and had hoped to repeat their success again this year. Their failure to do so will just spur them on the more to go out and beat the field when this event takes place next year. The team which represented the Y was composed of the following runners: Half mile, Jack Murphy; mile, Raymond Rose; 2 miles, Richard Cretney; 3 miles, Bert Girling; 5 miles, Clifford Barber.

Must Gain Support

unless the Prime Minister can win support for his economy proposals at Thursday's joint labor meeting, the proposals themselves will never reach parliament. They will be still-born, and a political crisis will follow the financial one.

Labor Confident

Labor circles are confident that while the trades union leaders will likely ask time for consideration, they will eventually stand behind the government. Yet there are murmurings and questionings. One anonymous "prominent labor leader" is quoted by labor's semi-official organ, the Daily Herald, in big black type today as saying this "signicant declaration."

"If we are to choose between extensive sacrifices by those least able to bear them, and a temporary 10 per cent tariff for revenue purposes, I and some of my friends will pump for the latter."

Walter Citrine, secretary of the trades union congress, says: "It may be taken for granted that the trades union movement will not likely consent to any reductions in the unemployment benefits which it has been suggested in some quarters may be one of the proposals. Indeed, we are utterly unable to discover what sudden emergency has arisen to call for sacrifice from our people."

Ernest Bevin, a member of the MacMillan finance committee, describes the sudden clamor for economy as a useless attempt to save the gold standard and the city of London. "Before we consent to any sacrifice," he adds, "we shall require evidence the gold standard and the methods of the city are worth saving, and the reasons why the interests of industry as a whole should be sacrificed to finance."

CAMP PLANS BEING RUSHED

Firms Anxious to Sell Clothing and Food to Government

Toronto, Aug. 18—Preparations are being rushed these days at Queen's Park on the policy under which the Henry Government will administer the unemployment camps along the Ontario link of the projected trans-Canada highway.

Officials of both the health department and the department of game and fisheries are being consulted by the government with a view to devising an adequate system of health and sanitation control for the camps, and for the purpose it taking proper steps to guard against depletion of fish and game resources in territory in which the road gangs will be working.

Special medical men and special game overseers may be employed it is understood, to attain for the government the objective it is said to have in mind.

Premier George S. Henry on Monday confirmed reports that the province and the dominion would build the highways on a 50-50 contribution basis, but could give no either details regarding the road—either as to the routing that is to be designated officially for it, or as to the innumerable important details, such as labor-camp ratings, rate of pay, transportation, and discipline that its construction involves.

With commencement of work close at hand, officials in charge of preparations are being deluged, it is reported, with overtures from manufacturers, merchants, all anxious to sell clothing, foodstuffs, etc., to the general camps administration.

Work of getting out registration forms to the municipalities with transient jobless has been completed by Queen's Park. Replies from all of them are demanded by the first of the month. Toronto officials are said to have communicated the fact already that they may have 10,000 single unemployed men seeking work on the trans-Canada.

WAVES UPSET PLANS FOR SEA FLEA PROGRAM

Motor Craft Cannot Leave Dock, Races Held in West Lake

HEATS RUN

Heavy Weather mitigated the successful carrying out of the Sea Flea races sponsored by Post 160 of the Canadian Legion at Wellington on Monday. A heavy sea ran all the afternoon, which prevented these small craft from leaving the dock. The committee in charge however, with the help of Tommy McClure, secretary of the Power Boat Association, arranged for a series of races in West Lake adjoining Lake Ontario, where the water was much smoother. Only two heats were run off, Red Carter winning one heat and Jerry Morland driving Miss Oakville the other. Bernard "Curly" Boulter had Miss Bubbles in the race but the first heat the engine was not functioning to perfection and he was only able to finish third. He intended the engine for the next heat and was a hang up second. The championship races will be held at Clear Lake on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week and it is expected that records will be broken as Clear Lake has the best stretch of any lake in the Province. Many of the boats that were at Wellington yesterday will be taken to the championship meet.

Due to the committee having no power over the water the celebration fell behind that of last year. A ball game was staged in the afternoon between Picton and Wellington with Picton winning by a score of 11-10 the winning run being scored in the ninth frame. The assembly then returned to the waterfront, where a series of races were held but the canoe tilting contests had to be abandoned on account of the heavy blow.

In the evening George Wade and his Corn Huskers from Toronto gave a programme of dance music the dancing being held on the pave ment in front of the Tourist Camp. A large number availed themselves of dancing to this popular musical organization, a number of the dances being "square." A broadcast apparatus set up by Carl Read of this city made the evening more enjoyable for those who were not fectly amplified and the calling off could be heard in the farthest corner. A large number spent the day on the waterfront and in the pretty little village of Wellington and the Legion obtained sufficient money to carry out the year's budget.

U.S. WORKLESS INJURE MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Aug. 18—Influx of United States citizens looking for farm work during the harvest season has added hundreds to the unemployment figures in Manitoba, according to Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Agriculture and Immigration.

Mr. Clubb informed Senator Gideon Robertson, Dominion Minister of Labor, that hundreds had crossed the international boundary illegally and the Dominion Minister, in his reply, has urged the farmers to co-operate in combatting the situation by hiring only Canadian help.

BERRYPICKERS HELD TO BLAME

Port Arthur, Aug. 18—Berry pickers are blamed for a number of bush fires which sprang up in the forest of Thunder Bay district during the last few days.

The bush has been a mecca for hundreds of berry pickers, and according to officials of the Ontario Forestry Branch, seekers of the small fruits have not been particular when, where or how they started camp fires.

"It looks as if we may have to make an example of these berry pickers," an official of the Forestry Department stated.

MINING MARKET BRISK

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 18—Brisk action marked forenoon trading on the Standard Mining Exchange. Advances were general among the specialty stocks in the first hour and despite a reaction, noon changes were practically all gains over last night's finals.

Machine age methods are now used in the large vineyards of Northern Africa.

Scenes of Rarest Beauty Greet Eye at Gladioli Show

1931 Exhibition Rivals and Bids Fair To Excel Past

Quite a number of the men members of the committee in charge of arrangements for the tenth annual exhibition of the Canadian Gladiolus Society which is being held in the Armouries Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, resulted all the Armouries all Monday night. Many of the ladies also were busily engaged until very late. Exhibitors were arriving all during the night and their exhibits had to be properly cared for, and the guests welcomed.

Tuesday morning the scene was a lively one. The many long tables were being rapidly laden with innumerable specimens of rare and most beautiful gladioli. The view which greeted the public when it was admitted late this afternoon, was unquestionably one which thrilled with delight. Visitors carried away a memory of most marvellous beauty. Many prominent exhibitors state that they have attended exhibitions of the Gladiolus Society for several years and that by far the opinion was display will more than equal, if not surpass, any of the previous exhibitions of the society. The formal opening will take place this evening when short addresses will be made by Hon. W. O. Martin and Hon. W. F. Nickle.

Music and flowers go together. This event will provide both for both to their fullest delight.

Visitors should refresh their great satisfaction with the arrangements made by the Belleville committee. The place provided for the exhibitions is excellent, they state, and nothing has been neglected which would serve to make the exhibition a success and the exhibitors welcome and comfortable.

Belleville citizens will undoubtedly visit the exhibition in large numbers, not only to satisfy their love and admiration for things beautiful, but to express in this way their appreciation to the Canadian Gladiolus Society for having selected beautiful Belleville as the place in which to hold this, their tenth annual exhibition.

QUEEN MARY of England herself recently told a charity organization in which she was interested, "Advertise! It pays to advertise." Indeed times HAVE changed. When Queen Mary must talk of advertising, what must the poor mouse-trap builder do? No longer will the world make a beaten path to his door, however wonderful his mouse-trap. Because his competitors are out telling the world all about their products in advertising. The world is listening. And buying!

A JUVENILE NATION AT GENEVA

Grandpa was British and Grandma was Danish. Papa was born at Cape Town South Africa. He was educated in France and entered the diplomatic service, serving in Vladivostok and Hongkong. Then he went to Geneva, as a liaison officer at the League of Nations for Soviet Russia. He married an Italian woman there, and there the little boy with whom we are chiefly concerned was born—a true cosmopolite.

This youngster with such a scrambled international background and heredity is only one citizen of the new "nation" that is springing up at League of Nations headquarters at Geneva.

It is composed, according to an account sent out by International News Service, of children who, having been born at Geneva, know little or nothing of the lands of their fathers.

"They are the sons and daughters of 1,000 functionaries who were recruited from all corners of the world as, one by one, large and lesser Powers rallied to the standards of the olive and olive branch."

Further:

It is doubtful, however, whether any of them will reach maturity under the egis of the League, for in view of the present state of international law they would become virtually men and women without a country.

A League child who eventually, became a doctor or lawyer at Geneva would not be allowed to practise his profession abroad. In order to avoid complications, League officials are permitting the League children back to the home of their fathers for complete primary education. Thus the maximum life in the juvenile state will probably remain about ten years.

Unlike the immigrants who tumbled into the American melting-pot, they will emerge from the most cosmopolitan influence, imaginable and attempt to acquire a wide nationality.

Anglo-Saxons formed the nucleus of the original League organization, but members of foreign delegations by intermarriage at Geneva have created a polyglot breed that probably exists nowhere else.

Next the writer proceeds to describe some representative youngsters of this new "nation." Here's an interesting case:

A Galician newspaper correspondent who was naturalized British, knows not one word of "King's English." His son he married an Australian employee of the League.

His five-year-old daughter, though can rattle off childish patter and slang in five languages.

Another boy, whose parents arrived in Geneva five years ago from New York, is just beginning to speak English with a strong League accent.

"I like to do it because daddy doesn't know much French," he explains.

While the fathers, and, in many instances, the mothers, are at their desks in the peace palace grinding out reports on armaments, economics, narcotics, labor, and Occidentalism, the kiddies are out in the gardens around the lake playing and scrapping, which occupations are, according to an official, the most truly international.

A WELL-SPENT LIFE

Ninety years ago Monday there was born a man who was destined to play a great part in the life of journalism and in public affairs of Canada, John Redpath Dougall, editor of the Montreal Witness.

His life has been one of constructive service to the public often at great cost to himself. He has been the champion of unpopular causes and has willingly paid the price for his endorsation of them.

He has lived to see causes he has upheld triumph, he has given freely of his means to support philanthropic work and he has seen these causes sustained and result in great good to these they were intended to aid.

He has the satisfaction of a long life lived right and well, in the service he still carries on the interests of other days, even to the telling of trees at his home.

The absolute sincerity and lack of pretention of a man were never more clearly demonstrated than in his declining years.

CHANGED CONDITIONS

Things have changed. Britain stands ready to present a Zeppelin base of which in 1916 bombed the city of London. Today is peace time and the huge aerial visitor will be welcome.

Fifteen years ago Britain was battling the foe on many a battlefield and front line. Today there is another battle, the outcome of the war expenditure and upsets of those days, the battle to preserve the financial institutions of the world against collapse. Britain is struggling to support the pound sterling. That her attempt will succeed is the belief of everyone.

A string of sapphires lying where the light
In falling, strikes upon their hearts' blue fire
Brings back a memory of old delight,
Revives the fragrance of dead hours' desire.

Once sunlight fell on waves of sparkling blue,
Revealing hidden deeps of color there;
Now thoughts of that far, Southern sea we knew
Return to make these pallid hours more fair.

So we as years march on grow richer still
With all our treasure-house of yesterdays;
A voice, a word, and how the pulses thrill
With thoughts of one, other, unforgotten ways!

A string of sapphires where the sunlight lies—
The past is resurrected for our eyes!

LORD KLYSANT'S CONVICTION

Sentenced to prison for one year on the charge that he published publication of a false prospectus by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, of which he is the head, Lord Kylsant's conviction is compared to the fall of "one of the central pillars" of London's financial structure.

At the peak of his power, correspondents recall, "the Napoleon of the seas" was considered one of the richest men in Britain. When he became head of the Royal Mail Company he consolidated the line with other companies, capitalized at $400,000,000. At that time, we learn from the press, he was just forty years old.

Six feet, seven inches in height, this tall, distinguished figure has for many years been recognized in the City not only for his power but also for his careful grooming and his impeccably polished silk hat. He is well known in the United States it appears, where he has visited many times.

Now, at sixty-eight this man who traces his ancestry back to Vortigern, the King of the Britons when the Saxons invaded Albion, and has controlled the world's largest fleet of ships, is sentenced to the second Division in jail, which means that he will be confined as an ordinary prisoner with light labor, such as clerical work. Unlike those condemned to heavier labor, he will be allowed to receive newspapers, letters, and occasional visitors.

Lord Kylsant's counsel, Sir John Simon, a very famous British lawyer and a Liberal party leader, immediately gave notice of appeal. The prisoner was released in $50,000 bail while the appeal is being prepared. It will be heard in October.

On trial with Lord Gylsant, as having "alleged, aided and abetted him," was Mr. H. J. Morland, auditor of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company. Mr. Morland was acquitted, and press cables tell us that he was jubilant over his fate and was almost mobbed by accountants, who regarded his acquittal as a vindication of their profession.

DETROIT BASKED IN A REPUTATION for spending the most money on relief last winter. Very laughable, but all summer long there have been disclosures of men with steady work drawing unemployment relief and at least one officer of the relief organization getting so fat on the job that he was able to afford a fine pleasure yacht. Millions were given for relief, but a great deal of it went where it was undeserved. It is almost unbelievable that people who have steady work and incomes should take money and food that belonged to the poor. Detroit revelations are sickening, revealing as they do such utter selfishness and disregard of the other fellow.

EDITOR PASSES 90th BIRTHDAY

Montreal, Que., Aug. 18.—A newspaper editor since before the Canadian Confederation, a Fenian Brotherhood sympathizer, John Redpath Dougall, editor of the Montreal Witness, celebrated his 90th birthday Monday among friends at his summer home at Metis Beach.

Mr. Dougall became associated with his father's paper, assuming chair of the witness in 1860, and for 61 years has edited the paper. He is the Doyen of Canadian Weekly Newspapers and the oldest living graduate of McGill University.

The venerable editor still enjoys excellent health despite the heavy burden of years. His resignation would without the aid of eye glasses and enjoys still a keen mind. His chief relaxation during summer is planting trees on his estate at Metis.

Poet's Corner

A CODE IN PRAYER

When shadows fall around my soul,
And 'round me day-dreams tumble,
I pray through tears and bitter tears
I see my castles crumble:
When fate has dealt a master-stroke
To quell all hope within me,
Which threatens me in sight and left,
And Sorrow seeks to win me;
When work I've given all my life
To see smashed and dreamed,
It ruined by a spiteful hand
And left for friendship, and all,
Oh, God, may never faith give out
Nor courage fail—
May never the temptation to fight it through;
To fight and never quail!
Oh, God, when everything seems lost,
When life stretches mile on mile—
Let me weep with Thee and pray
Let me still show Life a smile!
—Winifred Woods, in the Detroit Free Press.

A WAY TO POPULARITY

People often wondered why Mary Daly was such a popular girl; there was nothing remarkable about her, except her thoughtful habit of remembering birthdays, anniversaries and such things. She had a gift for friendship, and as she said, "it's so easy nowadays to keep up one's friendships, for one has only to telephone. If they live away, 'tis such fun, and people do appreciate it!"

Americans are fond of sweets, their consumption of chocolates and candies last year working out at 12.59 per head of the population.

Other Papers' Opinions

BACK TO THE FARM

The farm is not what it was. The automobile, the radio and industrial depression, combined with the introduction of business methods and scientific principles, have made the old homestead more attractive than it ever was. So many farmers' lads, who have set out to secure the pot of gold at the rainbow's end in city and town, have found that the weary city streets offer not even employment, let alone fortune, and the myth has been pretty well shattered. These adventurers are coming back now with the knowledge that even though prices for farm produce be low, the farmer has the most economically independent job there is. He may not have a great deal of money, but he is generally sure of his livelihood and his home.

For nearly ten years the Government of the United States has kept track of the movement between farm and city. In 1920 the exodus from the farms totalled 1,120,000, and from the towns to 151,000. Not only has the cityward trek been halted, but it has set in the other directions In 1930, the number of persons who left city and town for the farms totalled 1,980,000.

Sweet, except to the draspetic, is the music of the dinner bell. It means that the farmer is free from the independence of the farm a smallpox hospital is not missed in the summons in the crowded cities.—Mail & Empire, Toronto.

U. S. PRISONS CONDEMNED

United States prisons have had much attention drawn to them by the serious revolts and fires set by the prisoners in the last few years, some of which took a heavy toll in death. Now further reform of the system has been admitted by prison authorities, and Warden Lewis Lawes even deplore the lack of a general policy that would be applied to all the institutions. Now comes a report from the Wickersham Federal Commission of Law Observance and Enforcement, headed by Mr. George Wickersham, which the President has been submitted to President Hoover. The report declares the whole system as worthless—a failure so complete that a new system must be developed. The commission's report declares that nothing has proved a failure is based on its findings than the prison as a reforming and educative institution, whether for the criminal or the man who are released and then employed to accept an honest role in the world from which they emerged. The punishments are characterized as futile, and brutal offenses. It is declared, the punishments in practice include shackling a prisoner to doors, tying them under showers, and the whipping post, confining them in constricted cages in darkness, and "long periods in the hole." The cruel and brutal measures are followed by the persistent recurrence of murder and suicide, the rife presence of narcotics, the riots and fires, and the general atmosphere of hate and bitterness. The victims of such brutal treatment are driven to their companions sympathize with them, and to the prison disturbances. The whole system, says the report of the commission, "stands as an unwieldy, expensive, antiquated, make-shift system which has grown up over the years, with no local policy-making, local tradition or local responsibility, with no professional penal organization, in short, a system in which every varied and unstandardized as it could possibly be—Toronto Star.

TELEVISION JOYS

The Television News Service of Boston has kindly sent us a bulletin telling of the progress being made in that occult art. Scientists around the country are at work on it, all eyeing the writer of the bulletin indulges in optimistic speculations regarding the possibilities of what he calls "animated pictures."

You see, when television comes, the commercial broadcaster will not only be able to shout the name of a tooth paste or a motor car to you, but will also be able to picture them "in their true and attractive colors" for you. To blazes with let us quote:

The A. and P. Gypsies will probably sing their "Two Guitars" number, and the A. and P. television camera picking up a band of gaily dressed gypsies, guitars slung around their shoulders, poorly defined against a background of trees, whose tangled trunks and limbs will be labelled "Canada, A. and P." The Interwoven Pair will dance a song and dance in a bright pool of water which will dominate the picture. Their feet, only, will be seen across the screen with her brown, bare legs and his short cut of the frame.

Then you are. The ballyhoo boys will be working overtime when television broadcasting up stunts to put over this product or that. There is no telling what will be let up in crashing in on the publicity. Well, we have warned everybody. So, off with pen and pencil and let 'er go by unrefined.—Ottawa Citizen.

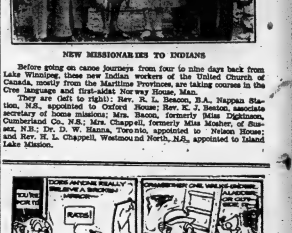
FOREST FIRES

Forest fires recur with such disconcerting regularity in the dry seasons, and cause such extensive damage, that "intensive research work" is being carried on by the government to determine the relation of weather to fires and to discover, if possible, suitable methods of reducing the risks. It is found that the greatest risk is contained in the top half-inch layer of dead needles or leaves. It depends upon the dryness of this layer whether or not a dropped match or even a spark will start a forest fire of disastrous proportions. Risks are measured, therefore, by reference to this dryness, in several categories—nil, low, moderate, high or extreme. In the last, or extreme risk, it is found that a fire may be started "by the lighting of a cigarette or a match." In this stage it may even be possible for a fire to start from a camp-fire though the embers have been left floating in water, or from a spark warming in these words to campers the caution to be careful in putting out and extinguishing their fires.—Hamilton Times.

HER HUSBAND TEASED HER
But not for long!

I started taking Kruschen Salts for biliousness, and for the last two years I have been perfectly free from an attack. Nor I anything to take for them, as I find they keep me in perfect health. My husband used to joke about me taking Kruschen Salts; now he takes them himself, so do my children. My sincere thanks.

—Mrs. C. P.



When your gastric or alimentary juices refuse to flow, your food, instead of becoming digested here turned sour, simply collects and ferments inside you, generating poisonous acids and gases which give rise to biliousness, heartburn and flatulence.

Kruschen is a combination of six salts and fruit, which goes right to the root of the trouble. It first stimulates the flow of gastric and other juices to aid digestion, and then ensures complete, regular and unfailing elimination of waste matter every day. And that means good health to you, to your household, and a renewed and whole-hearted enjoyment of your food without the slightest fear of having to pay the old painful penalty.

G. CAMPBELL WINS TODAY

Ontario Intelligencer Daily "Pick You Know" Contest Proving Very Popular

Grace Campbell, 81 S. Front St., was adjudged the winner in today's "Pick You Know" contest and will receive her $3 at The Ontario Intelligencer office.

Every day someone is being awarded a three dollar cash prize for picking the correct headline for the best arranged set of answers in the "Pick You Know" articles. There is nothing hard about the contest and only a minutes or the easiest of work will make you eligible for a prize.

They are quite simple. The contest consists of news stories that have been cut from the publication each ending with a question. The answer to these questions, or solutions are offered by worthy firms, and the questions ask something pertaining to the particular news stories describe. This does not mean that it is a guessing contest, there is no guessing at all. It is necessary for you to read the story and ask them for the answer, then answer your opinion in a short, characteristic, original or clever manner and bring or mail them to the Intelligencer office, marked "Pick You Know" editor. Prizes are awarded for the most suitable answer to the best arranged answers not the best answers. That is where the contest are the same. By "best arranged" we mean cleverness of construction. Rules may be explained by printing the answers—"Pick You Know" editor, Intelligencer and then in the form of poetry—you may write your stories and make them upon sheets with pictures in the form of cartoons if you describe—or in any way that you may wish to construct them. They are merely expression, after all, ever. Originality is the deciding factor.

Look through this issue right in this department, find the seven articles that appear today, call the firms and get the answers, arrange your answers as you wish and send them in. You may be today's winner.

MAY ABOLISH FOOD RATIONS

System May Be Abandoned in Very Near Future

Moscow, Aug. 18.—Insistent rumors that the system of rationing foodstuffs in Soviet Russia is to be abolished reached a stage at which it may be said on good authority that such action is a possibility of the not distant future.

Beyond the statement that no steps have been taken in this direction there is neither confirmation nor denial of the reports from Soviet officials, but observers agree that such a measure would be the logical outcome of the Government's efforts to develop a socialistic state.

In workers usually well informed, it is said that the unrestricted sale of food and commodities is a virtual certainty and that it is not too far away in the future.

The possible effect of such action probably would be to reduce Russia's grain exports proportionately with the increased domestic demand for bread.

The Government inaugurated the food rationing system in the spring of 1929, dividing the populace into four categories each of which was issued a rations card.

The first class, entitled to the largest ration is composed of the industrial workers, entitled to buy two pounds of bread a week and four pounds of sugar, two and a half pounds of butter and twenty eggs a month. The weekly meat ration is three. From this first class the rations decrease through the other three.

AMUSEMENTS

GENEVIEVE TOBIN IN NEW SUCCESS AT CAPITOL

Should a Husband Cure Wife's Nagging and Petulance With Old Fashioned "Hayseaker," in Dramatic and Sentimental Picture

ULTRA-SMART COMEDY DRAMA

Whether caveman tactics are an aid in matrimony is the point in principle held up for the public's decision in "Husband and Wife" which is showing today (Opportunity Riverview Girl Night) and Wednesday at the Capitol:

In the case of a modern wife shown on the screen in this instance, interpreted by Genevieve Tobin, there can be little doubt but that she earned the knockout blow meted out to her by Conrad Nagel, a patient, "hen-pecked" husband.

Many husbands with five year's experience will undoubtedly suggest a cheer for Conrad Nagel's sentiments and secretly wish that they could be sufficiently hardhearted to deliver an old-fashioned "haymaker" when friend wife starts nagging about that bridge party or tea he's been dodging for weeks.

Conrad is most convincing as the long suffering husband "whose temper is finally ignited by the spark created by the family doctor's stating that domestic trouble could be simply solved by administering a spanking to his wife.

Miss Tobin, who made her screen debut in "A Lady Surrenders" has covered herself with glory and assured herself a place in the select circle of film favorites through her performance in "The Modern Wife."

The story which is an adaptation Sidney Howard's stage play, "Half Gods," leads one through the trials and tribulations of a young married couple, up to the point where the wife is going to Reno for a divorce. Here the husband knocks her out and she discovers that she never did want to leave him or her children.

Monroe Owsley gives a most convincing performance as the husband's "best friend" who later starts an affair with the wife.

Bertha Mann also from the stage, and George Irving, both stand out in the supporting cast for their portrayals of the wife's sister and the law partner and god-father.

Zasu Pitts, again portraying a comical maid, makes her part one of the highlights of the production. Others in the cast include Ulka Chase, Sidney Bracey and Ellen Himmervitle. Robert Hendry, who recently made "Mother's Cry," is due much credit for his excellent work.

DESSERT SPOONS FREE TO-NIGHT

The article of E.P.N.S. to be presented free to each lady patron at the Capitol Theatre at tonight's "Opportunity Silverware Out-Night" is a dessert spoon.

The distribution of silverware at the Capitol Theatre has gradually risen each week with the result that an unbelievable number of articles are given away each "Silverware Night."

VARYING ACTION FASCINATES IN COOPER-LOMBARD DRAMA

No one who has followed Carole Lombard's recent screen work doubts that she is well on her way to stardom and, after seeing her in "I Take This Woman," presented at the Capitol two nights ago at the Belle last night, her meteoric Hollywood career is understandable. She is beautiful, intelligent, has a sense of humor and a well developed dramatic talent.

Co-featured with Gary Cooper in "Mary Roberts Rinehart story," Miss Lombard displays depths of emotional feeling hidden in several of her recent comedy-romance parts and Cooper, strong, strober, quiet makes an excellent leading man for the charming actress.

"To love, to cherish.....to divorce," tells the story of "I Take This Woman," which, under the title "Lost Ecstasy," was a celebrated novel before it became a motion picture. "I Take This Woman" is the story of a selfish and capricious daughter of wealth, vacationing on a Wyoming ranch with a cause for scandal in which she is involved by her parents. She falls in love with a ranch-hand, Cooper, and marries him. Her father, exasperated at this final indiscretion, disinherits her, and, in months of struggle, she tries to accommodate herself to the rough life of her husband's barren ranch.

Unable to cope with the hard life, she leaves Cooper. Her gay and glittering society world is opened up to her again. But, with everything she thought she wanted again before her, she finds it useless without the man she has learned to love. Cooper refuses to come to her, and she is forced to decide between the luxury of her own life, and love.

The locale of the story shifts between the New York of the Four Hundred and Wyoming's sun-drenched plains. The contrast of setting adds vividness to an absorbing love story based on a vital modern theme.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY REVERSES USUAL ORDER OF THINGS IN NEW TALKIE

Robert Montgomery began his famous role in "The Big House" by going into prison. He reverses the order in his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Man In Possession," commencing at the Belle tomorrow for two days, matinee daily. For in this picture Montgomery emerges from jail in the opening scene.

It is his shocked family's attempts to get him out of the country that starts the complications of the plot, which finally end in a number of hilarious situations when Montgomery poses as a butler in the home of the attractive but penniless widow who is trying to marry his brother for money.

Sam Wood directed the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which was adapted from the Broadway stage success of H. M. Harwood, Charlotte Greenwood has a featured supporting role as a cockney maid who gets into all sorts of difficulties with the fresh butler.

Irene Purcell, who recently scored opposite William Haines in "Just a Gigolo" is Montgomery's leading woman and the cast also includes C. Aubrey Smith, Beryl Mercer Reginald Owen and Glan Mowbray.

The wise prove, and the foolish confess, by their conduct, that a life of employment is the only life worth leading.—Paley.

It is a useful accomplishment to be able to say no, but surely it is the essence of amiability to prefer to say Yes, when it is possible.

CUBS CHARGE PAST GIANTS TO 2ND PLACE

Giants Split Double Bill With Boston on Monday

MOORE'S PLAY

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Chicago Cubs, picked in April to give the champion St. Louis Cardinals a fight for the National League pennant apparently have decided a little late in the day to do something about the run away the Cards have made of the race in the Redbird circuit.

Winning their second doubleheader with the Boston Braves in as many days, the Cubs charged right past the New York Giants into second place yesterday and today stood a mere eight and one-half games to the rear of the high-flying Cardinals. In addition to stealing a double bill with the champions, fall back into third place a full game behind the Cubs.

Pat Malone turned in one of his very-best performances in the opener against the Braves which the Cubs won, 6 to 1. Malone allowed only three singles while his mates pounded Cunningham and Cantwell for ten. The fortunes of war shifted swiftly for Randy Moore, Braves third-sacker, in the schtick which went ten innings before the Cubs won out 5 to 2. Moore drove in the two tying runs with a triple in the eighth but his wild throw in the tenth put Charlie Grimm on base and the Cub veteran later scored the winning run on Bell's single.

Home runs by Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey in the eighth gave the Cards a 6 to 5 win over the Giants in the first game but the Giants took the second contest 3 to 2 by shelling Paul Derringer from the peak with a five run assault also in the eighth inning. Travis Jackson, Giant shortstop, was forced out of the game with a broken nose when he was hit by Delbert's drive in the fifth inning of the ship-up.

Brooklyn lost more ground as the Dodgers dropped two ball games, 4 to 1 and 8 to 3 behind great pitching by Dazzy Vance and Owen Carroll. Johnson allowed only four hits in the opener and Carroll gave up only six in the second game.

Larry French, Pittsburgh Pirate southpaw, stopped the Phillies 4 to 2, in the first game of a double-header, allowing only six hits but Phil Collins gave the Quakers an even break by blanking the cor-sairs 2 to 0 in the second. Collins allowed eight hits but was effective in the pinches.

In the American League, the New York Yankees, holding third place, fell to a position five games from the Washington Senators and 18 from the Philadelphia Athletics by accepting an 8 to 2 trimming from Detroit. The Tigers made good use of ten hits off Lefty Wells while the Yankees made only seven scattered blows off Vic Sorrell. Babe Ruth of the Tiger attack with two doubles and a single.

HAILED BY TILDEN

No less an authority than "Big Bill" Tilden states that Frederick J. Perry, the youthful Britisher, is the coming "great" in international tennis. Perry supplied all the fireworks in Britain's two final rounds of play for the Davis Cup this past month. His victory over Sidney Wood, of the United States, was the turning point that put Great Britain out of the round. And he was there in the side of France in the final, defeating Jean Borotra, the "Bounding Basque," and attending Henri Cochet, still the world's great-est singles players, 4 sthe limit in the final decisive match. Perry and nerves are utter strangers. He started tennis after winning the world's ping pong title, adapting the strokes of ping pong to tennis court. Tie that.

CRACK RETURN OF THE BALL BY THE PITCHER IS DEFENSIVE AND CALLED FOR

TABOO

An old scheme to catch a batter napping in baseball, namely, the quick return of the ball by the pitcher, is now a thing of the past in the National League and in several minor loops which play under National rules. The other day President Heydler was served with a protest over a quick return by a Utica-New York player and rendered the prohibitory ruling. There is no doubt that the practice puts the batter at a disadvantage though there are a lot of fans who crave the excitement of incidents like these. It was first pulled in a Buffalo-Toronto game recently. The Toronto hurler sped the ball right back at the Leaf batter who was forced to take a quick cut at the ball before he ruled it for a strike. The pitcher got away with it.

DEATH REPORT EXAGGERATED

Hamilton, Aug. 17 (CP).—George Graham, one of Ontario's best-known knights of the road, whose death was reported at Orangeville recently, may, like Mark Twain declare that the report of his death has been greatly exaggerated.

Graham confounded his Oakville friends this morning by hobbling into town on his usual rounds.

CIACO GIRLS WIN BY 7-5

Jump Back Into Pennant Race After Hard Battle

By winning from Kingston National Maids Monday evening the Ciaco girls softball outfit will remain in the pennant race. The game was one of the hardest fought games of softball that has been seen in Belleville in some years, with the locals taking the long end of a 7 to 5 score. Although the visitors out hit the girls from Corbyville 8 to 7 the locals got their hits when the girls on bases. Verna Ivey led the local hitters with a double and a single while Mrs. Generaeau poled out the only home run that they managed to get. Beside Doolittle started on the mound for the locals but was relieved by Vera Ivey in the seventh innings. Miss Walker went to the hill top for the visitors and pitched a very steady game, although her hitting was not as good as in previous games she has played in Belleville. The Ciaco team play the Kingston National Maids at Kingston tonight while the Belleville Fruit and the Maple Leafs battle for second place at the Ammobium. Line ups:

Kingston Nationals — Scrutton, Galloway, Walker, Elleston, Yeo; Pelkey, Allen, Shanahan and Cantwell, S. Galloway.

Sports and Fair Criticism

Tomorrow the big game in the senior O.B.A. series will be staged. All eyes of the baseball fans in Eastern Ontario will be focused on the battle for the Central League title in Belleville.

Manager Gerow has not made up his mind who will pitch tomorrow's game. The burning question is, who will Coach Ada start? All he has to pick from is Jamieson, Godfrey, Smith and Stone, of these the last two named are regular players as it does not give the Ponies much of a choice.

So with Kay and Lebarg handling the indicators we should see a free hitting game, I think.

The local B.A.A.A. juniors left for Peterboro at noon today. All the players were on the job and feel that they will be right on their toes against the fast "Prelers" of Peterboro.

Manager Vern Weir held a workout over the weekend and had the boys working overtime. They all seem to be in "the pink." Good luck to them.

Who will start the game Vern did not know but I imagine that "Chuck" Smith will get the call for opening duty today. Then they have "Red" Wilkins in reserve of course.

The return game is to be play ed here on Saturday afternoon. This will give the fans a chance to see how the local junior teams look against out-side opposition. They should deserve much more patronage than they get, as they play smart ball.

Sulphide now meet the winner of the Hastings and the Peterboro series. The latter "Northerners" all the luck and good fortune in the world. May they win the Provincial title.

Getting back to the senior game tomorrow it might be well to say that both Gibson and Poirier asked for the chance to try and beat the "Peelers" back. Either one of the boys should land the Kingstonian with any brand of luck at all. But tomorrow will tell.

I know a girl so dumb that she won't learn to play golf because she is afraid of the "mashie."

Tomorrow afternoon the Gananoque Golf will be the visitors at the Bay of Quinte Country Club when a friendly match will be staged. The following week the Country Club members will be the guests of the Cobourg Golf Club.

On August the 27th there is to be a big motor boxing bout in Kingston. "Scotty" Kline, Belleville's popular welter weight is on the card fighting "Gunner" Bedore.

Kline is always a favourite any place he goes. The reason being that he always gives all that he has. It is no secret that the fight fans appreciate.

Sure enough the CIACO girls put themselves back into a play-off position by winning from the Kingston Captains by a score of 7 to 5 last night.

The Corbyville girls play in Kingston tonight, while the Belleville battle the Belleville Fruit at the Armouries.

I hear that Walt Geyow's intermediates won their league from the Odessa team after a tinled game. Gibbard's, that's the team from Napanee, was the third game from Odessa by the score of 5 to 4 in 11 innings.

I heard that Walt pulled a little "inside baseball" to beat the Odessa nine. It might be added that the Napanee Gibbards, are very fortunate to have a man like Gerow coaching their team. For he knows his baseball.

FUEL PROBLEM WELL CARED FOR

James Lynch Gives Prompt, Reliable and Satisfactory Coal Service

When one speaks of fuel today, thoughts naturally turn to coal and its allied lines. In years past fuel did not constitute a problem, for it was easily obtained. By just going into the backyard enough wood was to be had for either the stove or furnace. Today, with the forests depleted, all have turned to coal and coke to solve fuel problems. It makes no difference what fuel problems may be, you will find them satisfactorily solved by James Lynch. This well-known firm has successfully supplied Belleville and environs with Delaware Hudson coal, Standard Anthracite Coal, mined by Delaware Hudson Coal Co., for several years.

James Lynch has had considerable experience in the coal business, and has gained knowledge that can only be acquired through long experience. He demands a specific standard from the mining and distributing centers so that he may maintain this standard to his patrons. After repeated refusals of shipments of coal these jobbers have learned to meet Mr. Lynch's. This firm can always be depended upon to supply the right kind of coke that is ordered. They have the equipment to make delivery at all times, when promised. It has always been the endeavour of the customer to order their fuel in advance so that there is a saving of a considerable saving as well as always having coal when needed. Many people have learned through experience that it pays to do this and every Spring have their order duplicated.

This firm is commended upon the superior service that it has afforded the people of this community. It has ever proven reliable and dependable. Do you realize that a ton of coal are handled by this firm and for what each kind is best adapted?

If each prize given for neatest correct answer in competition in these articles. Call the above firm to settle you. (Seven in today's issue.)

School Dates Not Yet Known

Although no official word has been received in Belleville as to when the local public schools and Collegiate are to open it is possible that the scholars will be called back to their respective rooms on either the first or second day of September. Mr. J. B. Fluney, Secretary of the School Board, states this morning that he has not received any official word from the Department of Education in Toronto as-yet. But he was getting in touch with the Department immediately to find out the exact time of opening public schools in Ontario.

Mr. Fluney stated that the additions to the east hill schools were to be completed by September 15th but their finishing would in no way interfere with the opening and carrying on of the regular school routine. The labour force now on the job at present date to September this year, it means that the school children may look forward to a week of school before the holiday.

Mr. Fluney further stated that the contractors were well up with their work on the additions and it is expected that they will finish their work in the specified time.

DIVORCED QUEEN IN EXILE

While Princess Ileana of Rumania was being married with pomp and magnificence to Duke Anton of Austria, in the presence of all the members of the royal house of Rumania, King Carol's ex-Queen Helene, to all intents and purposes an exile, had found a haven with the widow of the late royal family of Greece as the guests of Colonel and Mrs. James Horlick at Ascot, England. Left to right, in above picture are: Former Queen Sophie, of Greece, Prince Paul, Mrs. Horlick, Prince Michael, Mrs. Matings, Princess Irene, Mrs. Katherine Horlick and Princess Helene, once Queen of Rumania.

TARZAN OF THE APES No 8

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Lord Greystoke knew his chances with this ferocious monster were small. He thought of his wife—what would become of her? There was yet a slight chance of reaching the cabin. He ran, shouting to his wife to close the great door should the enraged ape cut off his retreat.

The brute succeeded in intercepting Greystoke. He stood at bay, grasping his axe with both hands, ready to swing it upon the infuriated animal when it made its final charge. "Close and bolt the door, Alice," cried Greystoke. He knew he was facing a horrible death—and so did she!

Over the brute's shoulder Greystoke saw with horror and fear his young wife come through the cabin door, armed with one of his rifles. Always before she was afraid of firearms, never touching them. Now she rushed toward the ape with the fearlessness of a lioness protecting its young.

"Alice," shouted Greystoke, "for God's sake—go back!" The ape charged—the man swung his axe with mighty strength, but the powerful brute tore it from Greystoke's hands, hurled it far to one side and, with an angry snarl closed upon his defenceless victim.

Game a sharp report and a bullet entered the ape's back! The beast turned upon its new enemy. Lady Greystoke, terrified, tried to fire another bullet. Greystoke, regaining his feet, rushed to drag the ape from his wife's prostrate form. The bullet had done its work! The ape was dead.

FAIR MERMAIDS READY FOR C.N.E. MARATHON

No sporting event in Canada attracts greater attention than the annual 18-mile swimming race for women in front of the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds at Toronto. This year's event is scheduled for Friday, August 28th, and it is expected that over fifty starters will go after the big prizes which aggregate $10,000, or which $3,000 goes to the winner. The first six women to finish are eligible to enter the men's 18-mile open event for $25,000 which is to be run off Sept. 2. While there are dozens of new entrants this year, many who have competed in former years have been training all winter and will be back again. No. 1—Ethel Hertle Gary, Bronx, New York, who finished third in last year's women's race and is a famous long distance swimmer. No. 2—Jean Laux, Detroit, known to be a strong swimmer and regarded as somewhat of a "dark horse." No. 3—Ethel McGarry, New York, United States Olympic star and distance record holder. No. 4—May Mooney, Warren, Ohio, who took fourth place in last year's contest again this year. No. 5—Margaret Naylor, Philadelphia, winner of last year's race and in splendid shape for the swim. No. 6—Anne Benoit, Miami, Florida, always a strong contender, and fifth in last year's event. No. 7—Leah Reilly, N.Z., a veteran swimmer, though finished fourth in the race two years ago. No. 8—Joan Foord, an English girl now a resident of Toronto, who is likely to finish within the money.

FLOOD HAVOC IN G. BRITAIN

Fourteen Lives Taken in Furious Gales Monday

London, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Furious gales and continued rain which caused the worst flood in 40 years in Saltkrabire took a toll of 14 lives in Britain Monday night.

Many sailing boats were overdue and damage to crops and buildings was great in outlying villages.

The storm, which began Sunday extended throughout the British Isles and along the northern North sea coast, buffeting ships at sea and wrecking many small vessels along the coast.

One of the dead was Col. C. H. Hudson wealthy amateur yachtsman, who was swept from the deck of the lightened 15 ton boat the Pearl net competition. One American yacht in the race, that of Ambrose H. owned by T. D. Just, Jr., has not been reported.

Flood damage in many villages increased steadily with continued rain. Hundreds of houses were isolated in the low-lands of Wales and England, most of them in the flooded over a wide area.

Breakwaters were destroyed and vacation bungalows along the English channel were damaged. The storm along the channel was described as the worst in 25 years.

The yachting regatta at Weymouth was abandoned and the king's yacht, Britannia, was forced to run for shelter in Portland Harbor.

Between Newcastle and Whitley Bay the railroad was submerged. Streets were flooded at Newcastle, South Shields and Dundee.

There were serious landslides in Saltkrabire, Scotland, where the rivers Tweed, Eltrick and Yarrow are flood plains.

The Thames was at a high stage but buildings along its banks were damaged.

Insurgents Concentrate

Havana, Aug. 18 (AP)—A decisive crash between rebel and federal troops in Santa Clara Province seemed today to be in the making, as President Gerardo Machado delayed his return to Havana.

Advices from the interior said 2,000 insurgents, of whom 1,500 were well armed, were concentrated near Trinidad and already had engaged in minor skirmishes. The president changed his plans last night after arrangements had been made for his departure.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Pancho Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart "Tony" Panch on did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith". Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Pancho met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Pancho is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Colin Carstairs is at first antagonistic because of Evelyn's "cousin's" theatricapades and her self-righteous attitude because of her "cousin's" behavior on escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Pancho's sincerity overcame his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Pancho makes her debut in New York. Colin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Pancho cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances.

CHAPTER XIX

He placed a chair for her; sat down himself on an Empire sofa, battered, the upholstery hideous. He stated, gravely.

"You no longer care for me?"

He had explained nothing, as yet. But it was all easier than she had expected. She said, honestly, openly.

"No, Tony."

He spoke without accent. But his gesture was South European. A hand flung, palm up, a shrug of the broad shoulders under the well-fitting coat.

"I see. I had expected it. When—when you found out.....about me?"

"I began to stop caring long before. But I was afraid. You see," he smiled coolly, almost charmingly, "you see, I was in love with you, Pancho."

She started a little at the use of her name. She had not heard it for so long. Tony's keen black eyes narrowed. He went on smoothly.

"And I wanted to marry you. But I was afraid to tell you.... So I planned instead to make my getaway to turn my last trick, to marry you then and take you away somewhere and go straight to some place where we could live happily and no one would ever be the wiser, least of all you. But, I didn't turn the trick," he said.

"No."

She looked at him. His even pallor, that of olive skin, was perceptible. He had a little gray in his hair. He looked a little gray. He was no longer clean shaven and wore a small mustache. Very dark eyes. His eyes looked sleepless. She began to be afraid. She shook the fear from her.

"Tony, I have brought you your money—all of it," she said....and handed him the envelope.

He took it from her. He did not open it. He held it in his hand and regarded it. His face was expressionless. Presently, he put it in an inside pocket.

"You do not need it?" he asked with a most extraordinary formal courtesy—extraordinary under the circumstances.

She shook her head.

"Very well, then, I do. But it will not be enough. I must have more, much more besides. Not for myself alone. But I will not be cheated that we can both go away and start all over again.....and you must help me."

She flushed. Her heart quickened-it beat. She asked.....

"You—how can I help you?"

He said, so serenely that she was deceived until the sense of his words reached her.

"As Mrs. Carstairs' niece—as Evelyn Howard. It will not be easy."

She cried out then, clenching her hands on the fat plush arms of the chair.

"But I am not her niece! I am not Evelyn Howard! You know that as well as I!"

"Do not speak so loudly," he suggested, "I said we are alone. We are—for all practical purposes. But there are people—upstairs."

She said, low, shaken.

"Tony, what are you thinking? What do you wish me to do? Tell me how you found me—?"

For the first time ugliness looked from behind the mask; a thwarted ugliness, yet somehow tragic, for it was the expression of something both wounded and frustrated.

It was not hard. Yet you covered your tracks well. You did not wish me to find you, Pancho."

She answered low,

"No. Perhaps not, Tony.... I was haunted through the streets by the very newsboys calling out—Oh, you know what they called. I wanted to get away from it all—to hide somewhere. I thought I might be found, taken back, questioned...forced to say what I did not say."

"You knew very little. I took care of that. You would not have given me much satisfaction. But I wished to spare you all I could, however. It did not occur to you were afraid for yourself, rather than for me?" he probed.

"I was afraid for your sake, too," she whispered.

"I would have believed that once," he said, "but, perhaps now it doesn't matter much."

There was a silence. What had he meant, she wondered. Not much?

"I did not," he went on, "hear of the accident for some time. I was hidden where I heard nothing, saw no newspapers. Then much later I came across a reference to it. In a newspaper with a rather similar disaster. I went to the libraries. I looked up the passenger lists. I sent someone I trusted out to Oakland to the airport. I was not then in California. I had word—authentic word—that you had died that a Miss Smith had died in the crash. And that a Miss Howard had lived ...."

He paused.

"For that," he said, "I don't for, give you easily."

Pancho said nothing. There seemed nothing that she could say. After a pause he went on.

"When I was able to, I went to the place where the accident had occurred. I watched the wreckers with the people. To talk to the doctor. To see the graves.....I was laughed shortly and Pancho's heart was sick within her. He added, "I suppose I was sentimental. I—felt also responsible. I had grown fond of you, Pancho. I needed a little grief, he was no longer clean shaven and wore a small mustache. Very dark eyes. His eyes looked sleepless. She began to be afraid. She shook the

FREEDOM

By Ethel Willis Hewitt

Cary Burton snapped down the top of his typewriter and kept nervous fingers through dark, rumpled hair, and took three desperate strides toward the door. The dog on the landing continued to bark.

Might have known as soon as a woman moved into the building, quiet and order would end. He hadn't seen her, but the name plate read Patricia Clayborne—and that was plenty. Well, she'd have the floor to herself—he'd move out Saturday.

He'd taken the room, because, in all that narrow, crooked lane, inhabited by artists, writers and people of various other occupations, waiting for Bohemia, there was not another house with occupants who were out from nine to five p.m. Only this one offered the quiet seclusion he needed for the completion of a certain very important piece of work. Now, with a woman lodger—he saw his finish. He flung open the door furiously.

"Will you shut your infernal trap, you—"He stopped abrupt as the dog sprang directly into the face of a girl—a very lovely girl. She caught the dog by the collar and dragged him back.

"Dog our position, I—" Cary began, feeling hot and uncomfortable.

But the girl looked up, interrupt ing.

"I'm sorry if he's bothered you today. He is rather a nuisance on small quarters, but I'm fonda him. My window's stuck and the room's so stuffy. I've been going for the janitor but he's out. I thought perhaps—"

There—he knew it. Women needed waiting on, demanded it. They liked independence, freedom—but this, this living alone and yet, when it suited them, men to do things for them—but then, he follow suit. He opened his door and into the amber lighted room, Zip bounding hospitably at his heels.

He felt rather than saw, the contrast between this woman room and his own. Everything warmly alive. Brown, mustard, and orange, splashed all about. A touch of green here and there—yellow tulips in brown pots on the window sills. In the soft, warm depths the amber light, tea laid for two, on a tiny table. Rich scones on pale yellow plates —Chin cups before shining silver on a crisp green cloth. He saw it all without seeming to look, and marveled at what a woman could do with a dingy room in just two days.

He crossed over to the window. It flew up at his touch—a child hadn't raised it. He felt encouraged, yet a bit helpless. Looking at her curiously, through narrowed lids, he laughed. However he had intended meeting the situation, he found himself saying;

"What you really wanted of me was to have tea with you." It was an odd thing to say, but she didn't resent it.

"How did you guess?"

Cary smiled down at her.

"I'm not as dense as I look. Needing help with a window that wasn't stuck—a table laid for two." She flushed and slid a tiny, soft hand over Zip's sleek head.

"If you make room for me, I'm so very new at this—this living alone. I've stuck it out for two days, but—" she paused.

There was that plaintive note in her voice that make men forget such trivial things as barking dogs that interrupt important work.

Cary stayed. He ate hot scones, and quivering jelly, and found them delicious. Little by little he grew to see the reason for this lovely child. Little as she was in a crowded city—that smacked of Bohemia. She wanted freedom—to live her own life. Cary smiled wisely. Who didn't? Even he had some such dream— or he wouldn't have been there himself.

Her father had recently died.

"But isn't there some relative you could have gone to?" he asked. A little worried line creased between his dark brows.

She saw too much of a child, somebody would have her on their hands before they knew it.

Spreading jelly thick on another scone, she smiled across at him.

"Oh, yes. There's Aunt Harriet, but somehow, I'd dread life with Aunt Harriet. I'm sure no matter how terrible living alone turns out to be it would be heaven to live with her. Anyway, I've burned my bridges. Aunt Harriet never wants to see me again—dear soul." She laughed a little nervously.

A quick feeling of alarm swept over Cary. Something should be done about the child. What, exactly, not happen to her, alone, in that part of town.

Cary suggested that she move into a more suitable neighborhood, but she refused flatly. She liked it there. There was adventure, maybe romance, living among artists. He couldn't deny there was a certain freedom, she added with an air of sophistication. Cary grunted.

Zip continued to bark on the landing—work was almost at a standstill, but Cary didn't move Saturday. He stayed on and on. He couldn't leave the youngster alone in the house. Somehow her determination to stick it out regardless, because her life was her own, where it wouldn't have been with her Aunt Harriet, made Cary eager to back her up. He tried every way he knew to be a decent neighbor.

"The meals are the hardest to get through. There's something—well I just can't explain—about eating alone," she said one evening a little wistfully.

So the next morning Cary brought breakfast over, steaming hot on a huge tray, and they had it together on the little table Pat drew into the east window. Her heath, in a time old garden, spice pinks and petunias sent up a smoke of perfume, and the sun fell in dazzling patches through the window curtains, on the small bright table. They sat coolly over crisp waffers and fluffed eggs, and sipped steaming coffee from thin yellow cups. Cary listened intelligently. Something he never did with work waiting to be done. Then there was something so intimate and satisfying about breakfast for the first time with a lovely woman.

Crumbling a bit of wafer between slim brown fingers, she raised sweet dewy eyes to his. "Having breakfast going to be once—"

Cary interrupted, his big hand closing over hers on the table. He came around and drew her up before him, a bit surprising to them both.

"You're wrong Pat. I've wanted it all too, but we're not the kind to slide it over. Living alone, freedom, independence—it's the bunk." He caught her in his arms and kissed her suddenly.

Breathless against his rough coat, when talking was possible, she laughed up at him.

"It took me just two days to find out—then the window stuck."

They found something satisfying in each other's eyes. Then, a bit closer,

"You adorable baby." He kissed her again, unmindful of time, or anything.

Zip, barking unnoticed, settled down, head on paws, eyeing the crack of the door, evidently considering the matter closed. Much more than crackle when he was trying to communicate an important work, but it had absolutely no effect on the same man when he held a girl in his arms. Zip resided a sun splashed breakfast table.

Dynamiters Blast Two Electric Line Towers of Montreal Company

City of Montreal Runs on Curtailed Supply

STRIKE BLAMED

Guards Fear for Safety of Cedar Rapids Line

Montreal, Aug. 19 (CP). — Two towers carrying high tension transmission lines bringing power to the Montreal Light Heat and Power Company, were dynamited this morning at 5m o'clock and the city was running on a curtailed supply of electric current. Crews of workmen were hurried to the Rosemount section of Montreal where the power lines were broken. Fear was expressed by power officials that attacks would be made upon the Cedar Rapids transmission line and the city left without any power.

The broken lines were those which bring power from Shawinigan Falls. Since the strike of some 175 linesmen of the Montreal Light Heat and Power Company, two weeks ago, in protest against the refusal of the company to recognize their union, there have been almost daily reports of damage to the company's property. Many transmission line towers and poles have been damaged. The strike committee declared they had no knowledge of these acts and expressed the belief that none of the strikers were concerned. Officials of the union furthermore offered to form a protective patrol from among their members to guard against sabotage. The power company established armed guards at various strategic points but no arrests have been made and dynamiting of poles has continued with startling regularity.

Tuesday night —a power transmission pole at Terrebonne, a suburb, was blown up and a large section of the lakeshore city was in darkness for nearly three hours.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 19—J. W. McCallum, General Secretary of the Canadian Electrical Trade Union of Montreal linesmen and helpers stated today that local power officials know "absolutely nothing" of the dynamiting of Power lines of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company in and about Montreal. These outrages, the latest of which occurred this morning have been reported almost daily since some 175 linesmen went on strike early in June to protest the company's refusal to recognize the union.

"We disclaim any responsibility" he said.

Silver Basket Society's Gift

At the dinner given at the Country Club Tuesday evening by the Belleville Parks Board in honor of the officers and visiting members of the Canadian Gladiolus Society, Mrs. Georges Bonisteel was presented with an exquisite silver flower basket by the Canadian Gladiolus Society in appreciation of her long and highly valued services to the society. Mrs. Bonisteel has been a director of the society since its inception and was re-elected to another term at the annual meeting in Belleville, on Wednesday.

A prominent director of the society asserts that Mrs. Bonisteel has been of inestimable value to the society. She has never missed being present at an annual exhibition and every one seldom has been sent from a directors' meeting. The society the director said, owes much to the enthusiasm and great energy of Mrs. Bonisteel.

SEIZE TRAP NETS IN ST. LAWRENCE

Gananoque, Aug. 19.—Fish and Game Conservation Officer Wm. Cole of Clayton, N.Y., and R. G. Sheppard of this town, acting in cooperation last night, seized two large trap nets, valued at about $300. The nets were discovered in the St. Lawrence River near the head of Wolfe Island, one of this type are menace to good angling, because of their great size. They are usually placed by law-breakers along the international boundary. When seizure is effected, transportation difficulties often present themselves, because of the great weight of the nets. In the present instance this was overcome by piling the nets on the rocky shore of Wolf Island, saturating them with gasoline and burning them.

President's Words

Mr. W. C. Glaspell of Galt, Ont. the re-elected president of the Gladiolus Society said:

"This exhibition has been the best exhibition both as regards quality and quantity of bloom and arrangement I have ever seen. But I wish to say that too much praise cannot be given to the Belleville committee. They have given most excellent service and entertained us very well indeed. We have enjoyed ourselves "illimitedly and I am sure I speak for each and every one of the society in thanking them."

Mr. J. R. Almey, B.S.A., Chief Horticulturist Canadian Pacific Railway, Winnipeg, Man., who came attended as well as one of the judges said: "In my opinion the exhibition is the most exquisite collection of bloom of gladiolus and flowers it has been my privilege to see throughout a life time experience in Horticulture work. I am not exaggerating in the slightest degree in the truth."

While Horticulture is Mr. Almey's profession, the cultivating of Gladioli is his hobby. He was a cadet at Camp Mohawk in 1917, and knew Belleville at that time.

Mrs. Georges Bonisteel was hostess by the members of the Canadian Gladiolus Society at tea this afternoon from the office of Secretary Treasurer, Mr. C. C. Marshall, Hamilton.

Rainy Lake Scene of Disaster as Airplane Plunges from 200 Feet

Rescue Plane Dissster is Sequel to Loss of Two Other Planes

ELECTRIC STORM

Pilot Escapes Only to Lose His Life a Little Later

Toronto, Aug. 19.—The darkest day in the history of the Ontario Provincial Air Service was written Tuesday when a big Canadian Aircraft metal transport machine crashed in the surf of Rainy Lake, on the United States side, twenty miles from Fort Frances, carrying to sudden death:

F. A. Hutton, pilot, Toronto, former instructor at the Toronto Flying Club.

H. J. Culver, air engineer, Sault Ste. Marie.

J. J. Buchanan, co-pilot, Stratford.

J. V. Stewart, Toronto, recently appointed District Forester at Port Frances.

Only Survivors.

Details of the disaster—as many as were then forthcoming— were telephoned to Toronto late Tuesday night by Colonel W. Roy Maxwell, Air Force Director, from general operating headquarters at the Sault. The only survivors of the tragedy was Pilot George Delehaye of Fembroke, who had been "missing" since Monday afternoon, and for whom the Big Canadian and its personnel had been frantically scouring since Tuesday morning.

The Hamilton was swooping down in a pick up Delehaye from the island on which he had been marooned, when something went wrong. Out of a vertical bank the big ship slid from a height of 200 feet, with terrific speed, directly into the water, some ten to fifteen feet from shore.

Two Found Later

With the help of some American tourists, who had been attracted by the machine's dive and the sounds of her impact with the ice, Delehaye went to the rescue. Two of the occupants, believed to be Hutton and his engineer, Culver, were picked up by the rescuers from the surf into which the force of the smash had catapulted them. Totally unaware that the cabin of the ill-fated and mangled ship held the bodies of Runciman and Stewart, Delehaye succeeded in towing the boat in Fort Frances, where, for the first time the full extent of the catastrophe was revealed to him.

The tragedy, which has cast a cloud of gloom over the entire Province Air Force administration, has thrown a big section of the North in which the four men and their flying and forestry work were so well and favorably known, marked the final chapter in forty-eight hours of misfortune that included, additionally, the loss to the service of an R. 2 L. flying boat, one of the veterans of the fleet, and one of the latest Moth fire-detection machines.

The "boat" pitched to a watery grave quite close to the scene of the Hamilton's smash on Monday afternoon. Delehaye's Moth was blown to bits by the same terrific gale that whipping over the Rainy Narrows, sent the Leonidg to destruction. Reports from the Sault last night indicated that neither Delehaye nor Pilot Tom Mahon, who was in charge of the "boat," had any chance against the storm. Rushing up suddenly, the air literally blew both machines out of control and flattened them on the tossing lake waters, with their respective occupants escaping from the wrecks by the proverbial "skin of their teeth."

Delehaye owes his life to the inflated air-vest which all Provincial fliers are required to carry. This vest kept him afloat for four hours before he managed to pull himself to shore.

Brief Respite of Life

When the Leonidg crashed Grevy Lake same Greer who was to die later on his mission of mercy flight to Delehaye—was living and could not swim. Mahon promptly took to the water in his sturdy shoulders and struck out for a small island. After a desperate struggle they made it, were taken in tow by rescuers from neighboring islands, and eventually set down in Fort Frances, when they learned that Delehaye had vanished with his ship in the blow, and that gave fears his safety new gravitation.

Kenora Forestry headquarters, from which Hutton and his Hamilton machine operated on fire up Dryden-Sioux Lookout area communicated with. When that machine reached Fort Frances early this afternoon Hutton and Runciman in charge. Greer volunteered to go aboard with Stewart, the district forester, and lend what aid he could to the Delehaye search.

Raising Plane

Port Frances, Ont., Aug. 19.—Canadian Press)—Operations are proceeding today for the raising of the Hamilton all-metal transport plane of the Ontario Provincial Air Service. The ill-fated machine crashed from a height of 200 feet at Rainy Lake, 20 miles southeast of Fort Frances, Tuesday afternoon, carrying two employees of the Forestry Branch, Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, to their death.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—(CP)—Only 24 hours before the crash Stewart learned he had become the father of a son. It was their first child and Mrs. Stewart has not yet been informed of her husband's death.

BRIDGE GAP SILVER GOLD

Hon. H. H. Stevens Says This Necessary For Prosperity

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 19 (CP) — The existing gap between the countries on the north American continent and in Europe, which have developed production of many foreign commodities to a high state of efficiency, and the basics of the world trade, in addition to these commodities, but can not, owing to the widened gulf between the gold and silver monetary systems, must be bridged before there can be an "enduring era of prosperity," declared H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce in an interview here last night.

Just what the proper ratio of silver to gold should be Mr. Stevens was not prepared to say. It was a matter that must be determined by international bankers and by governments.

"Missing Link" Wanders About

London, Aug. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable)—After spending the night in a London police station, the "missing link" has been released by police. It was not the first time the skull of "Tsung" has been missing. It was lost for nineteen centuries before Professor Raymond Dart, the famous African anthropologist, dug it up in Bechuanaland in 1925, when it was claimed by many scientists as the skull of the prehistoric being who was the link between apes and man.

Last evening the professor's wife left the "missing link" in a taxicab. It wandered around the metropolis until the driver discovered it and handed it to the police. Now Mrs. Dart again has custody of the "missing link" and it will go back to South Africa with her tomorrow.

Wilson, Dominion Controller, are on their way to Rainy Lake in order to conduct an investigation into the airplane accident which cost four lives yesterday. Instructions to the District Superintendents were issued early today, and it is expected they will fly to the scene of the disaster to-morrow or the next day. Their probe either this afternoon or tomorrow.

Guess Made at Plan of MacDonald Gov't to Forestal Crisis

London Herald Says Plans for 10% General Tariff

REVENUE AIM

Temporary Departure From Orthodox Policy Required

London, Aug. 19 (AP). — The Herald, usually in close touch with the government's policies, say proposal for meeting the financial crisis include a general ten per cent. tariff for revenue purposes.

"The proposal for reversal tariff," the paper said, will receive the support from ministers who have hitherto been rigid free-traders. They will urge that the necessity for balancing budget is so paramount that a temporary departure from the orthodox fiscal policy will be fully justified.

"A ten per cent tariff on retail-ed manufactures, including those imported partly finished, would yield on the basis of 1931 imports something like $100,000,000. A further ten per cent on food at present untaxed, ought to yield about $135,000,000."

Other proposals which the Herald said would be submitted to the full cabinet are temporary suspension of the sinking fund. A special tax of fixed income bearing securities, increased contributions on the part of employers and workers and the state to the unemployment insurance fund and voluntary conversion of the war loan to a lower rate of interest.

Lindbergh Runs Into Bad Weather and Lands Safely

Motor Trouble first Forces Fliers Down But They Go On

IN KURILE MTS.

Nemuro, Japan, Aug. 19 (AP)— Halted three times in their attempt to fly the 2,087 miles from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, to Nemuro over the Kurile Islands, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were reported by two steamships today to have landed at Ketoi in the Kurile Islands.

The Japanese radio station at Nemuro said the Lindberghs had been forced down by motor trouble and by fog.

Ketoi, Japan, Aug. 19 (CP)—Lindbergh's radio station at Nemuro said the Lindberghs had been forced down by motor trouble and by fog.

The Japanese communications office also announced that Lindbergh had landed fifteen miles northeast of Shumushiru Island and was "safe" after having left Petropavlovsk and Nemuro.

Before the flight, Mrs. Lindbergh had radioed that they were coming down at Murotsu for refueling.

Leaving Petropavlovsk where they encountered weather bound for two and one-half days, at 8:45 a.m. (Monday 6:45 p.m. Eastern Standard) the Lindberghs were soon forced down by motor trouble in the mountains of Kamchatka.

Concluding the information that trouble compelled them to stop, Mrs. Lindbergh did not say what was wrong with the motor. After about two hours they took off again and made a successful flight.

Mrs. Lindbergh told of their previous down the mountains.

About the half way point between Petropavlovsk and Nemuro they apparently ran into fog. They turned and passed Shumushiru Island and Mrs. Lindbergh then radioed that bad weather was forcing them back. Twenty minutes later, at 4:25 p.m. Tokyo Time (2:25 a.m. EST) Mrs. Lindbergh advised the Ochiahi wireless station here that they had landed at Murotsu Bay. The silence of the plane's radio immediately thereafter was taken as meaning the landing had been effected.

Lindbergh anticipated the possibility of trouble over the Kurile Islands. Last night he sent a message to the United States Embassy in Tokyo requesting it to seek in his behalf an emergency landing permit for somewhere in that region. The permit was granted.

"Don't Foul Paradise Before it Comes to You"

Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London compared the deportment of Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 18—In an address before the Women's Canadian Club here, Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London compared the deportment of young people of this day with that of his own generation and believed the change which had taken place to be a "good thing."

Freedom between the sexes in social life and co-operation had brought about a splendid comradeship, but many dangers lurked in "petting parties" and the indiscriminate intermingling of the sexes, he declared. He made a strong plea for purity in youth, according of the marriage tie and the sanctity of the home with a sincere religious background for children.

"Don't foul your Paradise before it comes to you." His Lordship said. "Petting parties are vulgar, they take the bloom from the beauty of youth, and cause many regrets when marriage is contemplated."

Simple Life is Marked by Orville Wright 60 Years

Dayton, O., Aug. 19—An air-minded world, steeped in nearly three decades of aviation's big parade, remembered today the birthday of one who pioneered the air—Orville Wright.

Ever a suburbanite, he passed the second mate, Ernest is shown watching the sailors "Britannia" in the event for heavy duty craft at the Royal South-Tritanyout and for Phillip Rum-loe, barely discernible on the left

The first flight of some American craft was made in 1903 by the late Wilbur Wright, elder brother of Orville, at Kitty Hawk, N.C. Two years later, Orville, alone, made the first complete circle flight in the air.

Scores of messages from friends and admirers attested to the recognition of his achievements, realized in collaboration with his brother, Wilbur, who died in 1912.

LIVELY BEYOND WORDS

Lively beyond words were the nominations in some of the Quebec constituencies on Monday. Irate men tore at one another, a provincial constable is accused of using a revolver and wounding three men during a melee, while a herd of cattle is credited with being about the only means of ending the fray.

Elections in the good old days must have been such as to call forth the robust in men even in this district, which is not to have had strenuous days when votes were openly cast.

This is not however to compare the Quebec affair with the affairs that used to be horsehouts. It is only calling attention to the different kind of nominations and elections which have developed in the course of time.

Those men in Quebec take their opinions seriously. For that matter men and women even hereabouts in these days take a serious view but never so far have they got into such a series of turmoils as Monday witnessed in far-flung parts of Quebec.

Everyone will now be watching the progress of the week's campaign in the adjacent province to see if there are new outcomes of the affrays launched early this week.

CANADA HONOURED

Earl and Lady Bessborough will confer a distinct honor on Canada in bestowing upon their newly arrived son, the name of St. Lawrence. This river has been sung in French Canadian song and a Canadian stream was sung by Thomas Moor in the Canadian Boat Song. Now the name of the mighty St. Lawrence, the bearer of the nation's freight and golden grain and manufactured products as well as the source of power and light is to be given to the Governor General's son.

The young arrival will also have the honor of bearing the first name of his godfather, His Majesty King George. And the name of the maternal estate, Neuflize will also be his.

These names from so many sources are yet euphonious and the boy as he grows up will not be ashamed of them.

OUTLAY ON ARMS

When one reads of the huge total of $4,157,381,068 spent upon armaments during the past year, one can realize the weight of the financial burden which is resting upon the nations of the world. It is no wonder that the World Peace Foundation which has collected figures of expenditures on arms and defence during the last twelve months finds therein ample ammunition for its drive upon the colossal waste of money and energy of "keeping up with the Joneses" of the nations in the mad race. The League of Nations Year Book on Armaments contains the following statement of expenditures during the past fiscal year:—

THE WOODS IN SUMMER
by a "Hobo"

Mystic raptures and joys sublime
Pervade the woods in summer time,
When Nature celebrates far and near
The coming of age of another year,

Come to the woods and demand your share
Of the wealth of foliage and blossoms rare,
And the myriad charms that the soul enthral,
For summer has more than enough for all.

Come and enjoy the scented breeze
Of the shaded paths beneath the trees;
The dulcet strains of a chorus grand
And living pictures on every hand.

The ailing pessimist here will find
Big doses of Nature to heal the mind.
Let those whose musings refuse to rhyme
Repair to the woods, in the summertime.

THE ABOVE VERSES were written by one known as "The Hobo" a gentleman who passed through Belleville last week and was resident a few days in that Home of All Nations, "The Jungle" situate somewhere east of Belleville in close proximity to the yast network of steel rails known as the yards of the Canadian National Railway. The poet is one who has "dwelt in marble halls", metaphorically speaking, has seen the world from many angles, but through having the possible mistaken idea that money was made for circulation and not for hoarding, finds himself temporarily "caught short" during this time when those who have money are either spending it on motor cars, gasolene and tires or hiding it away for a rainy day, thus making it premature by wet for many careless ones like the poet of this couplet, whom we write, we thought I had in mind, however, when this paragraph was started was to point out the unquenchable optimism of our poetic friend and the fact that he could sit the jingle of money in his pocket and no certainty of any cats coming regularly, or otherwise, except through the kind and generosity of the hobo fraternity with whom he fraternized, he could see the beauty of the trees and hear the wordrous symphony of the wind in the foliage and see all the marvellous pictures painted by the Master Hand of God for Whom a thousand years are but as a day. We, city dwellers, with our cellars filled with coal against next winter, with our account at the grocers, our electric stoves, and all the luxuries of modern civilization, care to complain of aches and pains and passed dividends and such trivial affairs, when this homeless soul lifts up his voice in praise to the God of all good for the gift of so much beauty and goodness to an ungrateful world. How many people look at a tree and never see it? Let's take some of the Hobo's medicine and remember

"The ailing pessimist here will find big doses of Nature to heal the mind. Let those whose musings refuse to rhyme
Repair to the woods in the summertime."

ONE OF THE PUBLIC WORKS which the new Laurier Ministry will do well be the motor car highway across Canada, a much needed undertaking. The fact that tourists wishing to cross Canada from coast to coast have to keep dipping into the United States to make the trip is a serious evil which Canada cannot stand. Until recently there was no highway connection between North Bay and Sudbury, and still for many miles where there should be highway muskeg still reigns supreme. Canada's National Highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific is an undertaking to be proud of.

The camp counsellor was explaining the rules of the game. "If the enemy calls your number from his side of the battlefield," she said, "you must be a 'dead' man immediately. Drop just where you are and lie still."

Ten minutes later came an agonized whisper from the youngest camper: "Please may I move now? I'm a dead man, but I'm on an anthill."

Other Papers' Opinions

SMALL TOWNS READ MOST

Garden Island, in Frontenac county, has a population of 70 and a public library and reading room. Only 687 were circulated in the year last reported upon.

The latest public library in Ontario, other than Toronto, is not, as might be supposed, that of Swastika, second largest city, but Otisville, which has 110,376 volumes.

Report of the education department for 1930 provides the amazing opportunity of sorting out public library statistics to ascertain if we are more literary than other folks. Truth compels the statement that towns and villages in the north appear to have the most omnivorous readers. For example, the circulation of books in 1929 was 27,977 at Meaford, 72,433 at Midland, 19,462 at New Liskeard, 13,069 at Thessalon. The population of Midland is only 7,256. The average for Toronto population has about the lowest standing on this basis, fewer than five books per head being issued in Citizens.

Woodstock, with 10,886 population, had a book circulation of 66,248, which is higher than in the cities of Welland and Owen Sound, and about equal to that of Sarnia, but lower, even in proportion to population than in Port Arthur, Guelph or Stratford. Ingersoll issued 32,137 books; Tillsonburg, with a smaller population than Ingersoll, has many books, circulated 23,519. Norwich had a population of 3,000 and a circulation of 18,427, which is 15 per capita, as compared with 44 in Woodstock and a little more than four in Toronto. Paris, too, is a town of 3,000 people, but its library issued 41,008 books, which is almost exactly 13 per head of population. Otterville library's circulation was 3,246, or 4 per head.

S. B. Herbert, acting inspector, reports that 1,246 books in the Belleville, compared with 522 a year previous. Nine were organized during 1930, including the Ameliasburg rural library at Hickson.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

BEAR AND PROSPERITY

A peculiarity argument for the legalization of beer in the United States has been made by August A. Busch, the celebrated St. Louis brewer. Mr. Busch says that the arguments used for discontinuing brewing during the war—labor, grain, coal and other materials could now be applied with equal force in favor of its resumption.

Mr. Busch tries to show that brewing would yield the Washington government a handsome sum in tax revenue, provide a market for 200,000,000 bushels of grain, give employment to 1,000,000 persons, put 160,000 railway cars to work in hauling the raw materials and finished industries—and automatically abolish the bootlegging industry and its crime.

This plan, we say, sounds persuasive but we doubt whether things are quite so simple as that. Mr. Busch's plea is wholly material. It is based purely on expediency and leaves out of account the moral factors which are at the heart of the issue. On the same basis also the arguments seem rather faulty. To establish a new industry employing a $400,000,000 a year, an enormous quantity of beer would have to be sold. Mr. Busch does not mention the vast diversion of purchasing power from other commodities to beer which his scheme involves. Materially, his plan sounds more profitable. On all other counts it fails.—Montreal Star.

CLOTHIERS' RECORD

A United States record was made when a suit was manufactured from lamb to wearer in six hours. Now in Northumberland, England, shearers, weavers and tailors worked together to such good effect that a suit of clothes was turned out in 2 hours 9 minutes and 40 seconds. The sheep was shorn and the shire clipped the required amount of wool in a half minute. The manufacture of the fabric took 1 hour 40 minutes, and another ninety-four workers having a share in it. Forty minutes were taken by Cuthric into a suit in a little more than twenty-seven minutes. Of course this sort of record could not possibly as usual. It took nearly $500 to make the short-cut suit. How-ever, the United States still holds some real records. For example, the British preacher has yet talked continuously for as many hours as one in Los Angeles—twelve hours, if we remember right. World every aright.—Vancouver Sun.

NO ICEBERGS THIS YEAR

Not a single iceberg was sighted in the Atlantic ocean during this past spring. Records kept by the coast guard show that from 200 to 1,000 icebergs usually drift down from the Arctic annually. They start to appear in February, the first steamer lanes of the North Atlantic traffic route, and increase rapidly in number, reaching the peak about the first week in May. After that the numbers usually decrease until the last one passes by under the summer's sun in the warm waters off the Atlantic coast during August. But not so this year. Not one had been sighted by the International ice patrol up to this writing. Just what freak of nature is holding these skyscraper menaces to shipping in the land of glaciers is a cold mystery. Such total absence of icebergs is positively unprecedented.—Brandon Sun.

Hears Good Singing in Good Old Way at Wasaga Beach

(By "The Man On The Street")

Wasaga Beach, Aug. 19.—Music was bubbling over with enthusiasm Tuesday afternoon when The Ontario Intelligencer man on the street" dropped into his store to rest his weary prense upon one of the comfortable settees which graces his attractive display Saloon. He had just returned from a holiday and while away he attended church in the singing at the service was the cause of all his eloquence. "You don't know anything about music," he slandered us," but I am going to tell you about a song service which touched my heart strings as I have not touched for many years. I was still tired—it was hot outside and comfortable within so we surrendered, thinking that possibly he might have something interesting and we could "pass it on" so said, "Come on boys, let's go" and he did—hear him for yourself:

"Now this service was in the Community Church at Wasaga Beach, Georgian Bay last Sunday morning. The strolling people and seeing so many people going to church, I decided to go myself. The place was almost filled, about six hundred people already assembled; and I was glad to get a seat. Several ministers summering there occupied the platform in reprieve, nor choir; the people has the singing—and they do it. They have a love to sing in church, at home and in the fields, and they express their desire to sing. Here they sang and sang with all their hearts; the rafters rang and the windows shook. Hundreds of men were present, men, and little men, women and thin men, they opened their mouths and sang as I love the song which they had held shut in so long. And how they did sing —their faces glowed with delight— they were in earnest. They were not afraid of striking a wrong note —of being flat or of bursting their upper register. Organist, forte, pianissimo, crescendo, diminuendo and all the other things you hear about musically were not allowed to mar or lessen their enjoyment by fear of error. They just sang. No doubt, they received as much benefit from that one song service of old favorites as they possibly will from all their vacation. Husbands and wives held the same hymn book, getting enthusiastic he would almost lose his place and his good wife would join him. It is not likely any of those present had ever heard anything approaching the congregational volume of song in the church at home. It recalled, to me, the days when the time, years ago when they were in the church of the little church in the town or village which they came from and they sang the tenor, bass, contralto or soprano part in the duet or quartette. Those were the happy singing days, but in later years, living in a city or large town, where in the fine church the old fashioned singing—you can't get to sublime your voice and sing it from the heart—has been lost, but even then your dear friend wife may call and ask if you will go to the neighbors complain or they do when "Maggie Jiggs" bursts into song. If you don't think that people still love to sing the old favorites, go to the Wasaga Beach Community Church some Sunday morning.

COMPANY

The most popular time to have company is for dinner, being popular with everybody except the cook, on account of her most popular time to have company being never. One of the most painful sites to see is your mother trying to entertain that youre company again.

If your company is people you dont know very well, the dinner is libel to seem more like a funerel with nobody ded yet, even if you have chickin with jiblit grayey and ice cream, while on the other hand if your family is all alone for dinner it often sounds more like a picknick even if you only have hash and prooens.

When you have a lot of company its half to make the dining room table as long as it will stretch, looking more exciting but taking longer or everybody to get waited on, especially you.

It is generally more fun being somebody elses company for dinner than what it is having company for yours, on account of the good always tasting the best.

This proves the world would be happier if everybody had somebody elses blessings.

If your company sleeps at your house you are libel to have to sleep on the livingroom sofer so they can have your room, seeming like fun unless it lasts long enough for you to realise it's not.

'GLAD' GROWERS OF BELLEVILLE ARE PRAISED

Welcome By Mayor Reid to Visiting Flower Enthusiasts

FLORAL MESSAGE

Change of Ugliness Into Beauty Theme of Hon. W. G. Martin

The tenth annual exhibition of the Canadian Gladiolus Society was formally opened last evening in the absence of many dignitaries who found it necessary to attend the open fell upon Hon. W. G. Martin, of Brantford, Minister of Welfare for the province of Ontario, and it was certainly in capable hands.

After making an interesting address, the Hon. gentleman in closing referred to the pleasure it gave him to declare the exhibition open.

At the banquet in the W. B. Deacon of this city, general chairman of the show, Mayor Reid was introduced the chair and later turned the duties of Chairman over to Mr. W. C. Chaplin, of Galt, President of the Canadian Association. Led by Mr. James Bankier the National Anthem was rendered.

Mr. Deacon spoke briefly and extending a hearty welcome to all present. The county seat was most creditable, in fact one of the finest cities in Canada or elsewhere. This was indeed a pleasure to the local citizens who desired to have the show a success.

City's Greeting

Mayor W. J. Reid in his opening remarks referred to the pleasure it gave him at being the head of the city to extend a welcome to all present. The committee had a great honor to have this show in Belleville and the visitors and visitors would enjoy their sojourn in the city. Mayor Reid introduced Mrs. George Bonisteel of this city and the donor of the prizes and in assisting to procure the exhibition here. The city owed her a vote of gratitude for her efforts in this direction. Before concluding ... remarks this worthy referred to the city and its many advantages; also to the fact that the show in other cities had recently been induced to locate here as a city that dealt tifully in many respects and all were pleased to be here. He hoped great privileges to have the Hon. Mr. Martin present at the exhibition.

Presidential Remarks

Mr. W. C. Glaspell of Galt, President of the Canadian Gladiolus Society also called upon and expressed his pleasure at the help the directorate had received by the committee in Belleville. The Belleville Horticultural Society, the City Council and Parks Board had done all it was possible for the exhibition. He thanked all for the help by co-operation. Mr. Glaspell, President also spoke eulogistically of Mr. Bonisteel and the efforts she had done to secure the show for the city of Belleville. It was indeed a pleasure to be here to enjoy the hospitality of the citizens.

Women and Flowers

Women's intellect and touch had added much to inspire the cultivation of flowers, was the opening remark made by Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare in the Provincial Government. The cultivation of flowers is to be admired and gardens of loveliness are much to be desired. "We live in a land of opportunities and we owe a debt of gratitude to the women and can we not say it with flowers. The progress of Canada was outlined by the Hon. speaker. We are keeping step in various ways despite rather somewhat depressing times. In speaking of flowers Hon. Mr. Martin referred to the recent flower show at Cleveland, Ohio, where Canadian exhibitors ran away with the major prizes. All were apparently enjoying this exhibition, the flowers displayed being of the finest and beautiful. The trend of tourist is in the direction of Canada and tourists are finding out the beauty spots of the country. The training of children in flower culture is to be commended, and boys and girls are developing a pride in flowers. The schools and even home training is inculcating a training for the loveliness of flowers.

"We should ever want to transform ugliness into beauty, and in the cultivation of flowers we are developing one of the noblest ideals of life. Flowers are the messengers of good cheer and for this reason are sent to hospitals and other places where sickness and pain abound. Even in distress we should not be too downhearted as brighter days are in store. We are at present passing through a time of distress, but we should not capitulate or despair. The time of prosperity will come again, and happy days will return. The eyes of all nations were upon Canada as the present time of distress is the peak of dawns prosperity is to be seen. Concluding his remarks Hon. Mr. Martin formally declared the show open.

During the proceedings, Mr. James Bankier rendered in his usual pleasing manner a solo entitled "Arise O Sun" and a duet was rendered by Messrs. J. Bankier and Harold Howard. Mr. Leo Riggs played the accompaniments. Previous to the opening ceremony the citizens band under the able leadership of bandmaster R. Hinch ery rendered some tuneful selections upon the armouries lawn.

More than 41,000 trees have been planted this spring in the Kentucky national forest, Kentucky.

PITCHER'S ARM BROKEN WHILE HURLING BALL

Belleville Team Meets Misfortune After Leading Way

11 INNINGS

After leading the Posters of Peterboro for eight innings the local B.A.A.A. Juniors had the misfortune to lose their pitcher "Cliff" Smith who broke his arm in the act of delivering the ball to a batsman in the fatal eighth inning. Smith who was pitching the best game of his career, had the situation well in command and was breezing along with victory well within his grasp only to have it dashed to pieces in the proverbial second. Quite naturally the locals were upset after the accident to Smith and before they could settle down the home team had tied the score. The locals led the Petes 7 to 3 until the fatal eighth and later won the game 8 score and later won the game 8 to 7 in 11 innings.

"Bud" Wilkins took up the pitching duties in the fatal inning with men on bases and also fielded a perfect game while he threw out a batsman at third to end a sure rally by the homesters.

Wilkins pitched a letter for the Petes hit the second pitched ball for a home run over the fence but to get on base once after, then retired the side in order. Also in the time he did get on was in the fatal inning. He hit safely in the first and last run of the game.

The game which was the best Junior game that has been seen in Eastern Ontario in some years and which everyone pays for a baseball game here on Saturday afternoon it expected to be one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a junior ball game will be present.

All the local kids gave a wonderful exhibition of ball playing as they seemed headed for victory only to have their hopes dashed to pieces by the loss of Smith. It is expected that a benefit game will be played for Smith as a later date.

TOURIST INDUSTRY RETURNS FALL OFF

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Canada had a credit balance of $166,000,000 from the tourist industry in 1930, that figure represented the difference between expenditures of visiting Canadians and what was distributed in this country by residents of United States, Great Britain and the other nations of the world who toured Canada, figures a golden train in their wake. In the preceding year Canada had a credit balance from this industry of $180,000,000, it is stated.

A report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says in part:

"Merchandise exports fell from $200 millions in 1929 to 906 millions in 1930. Though the wheat situation partly explains this drop, it is also largely accounted for by lower general price levels in 1930 as compared with 1929. In fact, if price fluctuations are eliminated by revaluing quantities exported in the fiscal year ending March, 1931, at the export prices prevailing in the previous fiscal year, it appears that domestic exports show a decline of only 13.3 per cent., as compared with a decrease based on dollar values of 28.8 per cent."

Body of Flier Sought in Sea Found in Fuselage

Calshot, England, Aug. 19. (AP).—The body of Flight Lieutenant G. L. Brinton, Schneider Cup pilot, who plunged to his death while testing his seaplane Tuesday, was found today in the tailcraft of the fuselage.

It was believed at first that he had been lost at sea but when his wrecked plane was taken into the hangar and examined thoroughly, his body was revealed, apparently having been forced back by the impact of the crash.

Speedboat officials had searched the waters of the solent all night in search of Brinton. The tragedy did not affect plans for the meet on Sept. 13 and training went ahead as usual.

World Bankers Favor Revision of War Debt

Wiggins Committee Says Measures to Ease Debts

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A recommendation that the entire structure of Inter-Governmental war debts and German reparations be revised as the first step toward the return of world prosperity was made today by the Wiggin Bankers' committee.

The Committee was set up by the Bank for International Settlements at the behest of the Seven-Power Conference to study the European financial crisis credit needs. It is headed by Albert H. Wiggin, or New York, Chairman of the Board of the Chase National Bank, and is composed of the representatives of the ten leading banking nations in the world.

Their report criticized political differences existing between Germany and her European neighbors and urged that current disputes be cleared up in order that "good times" might again prevail in all nations.

Germany's reparations payments were assailed as an immense obstacle to the peaceful economic progress of the world and the great powers were advised to "lose no time" in revising the schedule of international payments.

"War debts are inexcusable," the report said, "by urging most earnestly upon all governments concerned that they use no delay in taking the necessary measures for bringing about a settlement which will allow financial operations to bring to completion and thereby to the world sorely needed assistance.

The report stated that before the period of prolongation of credits established by the London Conference comes to an end that the Governments concerned should give such thought to the question that international political relations are established on a basis of mutual confidence which is the sine qua non of economic recovery, and that international payments to be made by Germany will not be such as to impair the maintenance of her financial stability."

The reconsideration came from leading bankers of the United States and France, heretofore outstanding opponents of such revision.

Beauty Which Inspires Seen in Greatest Exhibition of Gladioli

Belleville Armouries is Scene of Exquisite Floral Beauty

By "The Man on the Street"

Had the Creator of the universe omitted color from His scheme of Creatory, the world would have been, indeed, a drab abode but being all wise and beneficent. He gave color of variegated hues and shades which beautifies all nature mak, the outlook upon life more cheerful and happy. It is when colors are brought to view in combinations of exquisite blending of hues and shades that we appreciate and enjoy them most. This truth is most happily exemplified in the gorgeous and extensive showing of beautiful gladioli which is now to be seen in the armouries at the tenth annual exhibition of the Canadian Gladiolus Society.

Never before at any exhibition held by the Society, it is said, has there been such a magnificent array of inspiring beauty, majestic in beauty and impressive in lovelin ess, as the Gladioli in exhibit within the hearts of all lovers of things beautiful. Flowers are messengers of love—of kindness; their presence brings cheer and hope and these messages come in no more beautiful form than that of the Gladioli. To live with, to care for, to watch the development and improvement in the production of the Gladioli must truly be a source of joy and satisfaction.

Tuesday evening the tenth annual exhibition of the Canadian Gladiolus Society was officially declared to be open by the Hon. W. G. Martin, who spoke most interestingly and with much eloquence.

One Thousand Attend

Although the official opening did not take place until evening, the public was admitted during the af ternoon and it is conservatively estimated that during the day fully one thousand people took advantage of the opportunity afforded them, to view and enjoy the large and magnificent display of this most wonderful and beautiful flower.

Great care had been taken in arranging the exhibits and considerable art and good taste was also shown in this regard. The exhibition is arranged in one hundred and eighty sections, divided into classes, there being open, professional and amateur and novice. Also numerous prizes covering special classifications. Entries were received from as far away places as Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Haileybury, Montreal and Prince Edward Island. The entry from the Gladiolus Society in Saskatoon was received Tuesday afternoon by special express delivery accompanied by a congratulatory message.

Many Sources

In the show as a whole there are Gladioli which originated in Australia, New Zealand, Germany, France, Holland, England, Scotland, United States and Canada. Canada it is claimed leads the world in the introducing of new varieties of Gladioli which are far superior to anything created in the past.

Deserving of special mention are: Mr. J. W. Crowe of Simcoe for specimens of outstanding merit. Mr. Crowe is one of the largest and most successful growers of the Gladioli.

Mr. E. F. Palmer of Vineland Station, Ont., for exhibits of new Canadian origination and for his entry of seedlings. The displays made by W. W. Lane and Son, Valentia, Ont., are indeed worthy of great admiration and praise. Exceptionally fine quality of bloom of Mr. R. L. James of Mt. Pleasant, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, Guelph Mr. W. C. Glaspell, Galt and Mr. Charles Lane of Lindsay.

Season Unfavorable

This season has been most propitious for the growing of Gladioli in Eastern Canada. The season, however, was exceptionally good in the northern and western districts where plenty of rain fell.

The growers and exhibitors came with their exhibits, many having come a great distance.

On Wednesday, representatives of the Canadian Gladiolus Society will take pictures of the exhibits to be used for educational purposes. The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has a booth at the exhibition, where literature is distributed for control of insect pests and fungus diseases of plants. Specific specimens of the insects responsible for the destruction of the Gladioli flower are shown. Gladiolus plants and corms infected with the principal bacterial and fungus diseases of this plant are shown.

There are at least three serious fungus diseases of Gladioli, two of which were unknown in this province economic importance. The Gladiolus Thrips or Gladiolus Thrips pest was first noticed in 1930. It is the worst insect pest affecting the Gladioli. There are lists in Ontario, Quebec and Maritime Provinces. Richis of the division of botany, Ottawa and Dr. A. Dustin of the entomological branch, Ottawa.

Society's History

The Canadian Gladioli Society was formed at Guelph in 1921. Ex, hibitions have been held every year since that time. The first Gladioli show was held at St. Thomas in 1921 and since then exhibitions have been held twice in Guelph, twice in Hamilton, Peterboro, Lindsay, Barrie and Niagara Falls. Membership in the society is rapidly growing from coast to coast.

Those, who on Tuesday, attended the exhibition revelled in an atmosphere and environments of loveliness and beauty. The exhibition has been a great source of pleasure to the citizens of Belleville and the hope is entertained that at some future time the Canadian Gladiolus Society will again select Belleville in which to hold their annual exhibition.

Explosion Heard as Fire Is Discovered in Barn Neighbors Rush to Aid

Edmund Dracup of 7th of Rawdon Suffers Loss

CROPS LOST

Spontaneous Combustion Believed Cause of Blaze

Rawdon, Aug. 19 (By Our Correspondent)—Hearing an explosion about 8 p.m. Tuesday evening the neighbours on Edmund Dracup on the 7th concession of Rawdon rushed to the farm only to find that a fire in flames. The explosion was heard for a great distance. It is thought that it was caused by spontaneous combustion.

The barn was filled with the season's products of grain and hay. But as there has been little or no rain in the district of late it was very hard to get water to fight the flames which by now had spread to other nearby buildings such as the pig pen, chicken-house and driveshed. In the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Dracup and family, who were in Belleville on business, the neighbours fought the fire as best they could but through the lack of water were forced to merely try and save the adjoining buildings.

Besides the buildings a few hens were burned, and a complete spraying outfit with gasoline engine attached. The barn which was completely remodelled in 1916 was insured for $1,000 and was filled with the products of the field. Whether or not Mr. Dracup had any insurance on the buildings the Ontario Intelligencer could not ascertain.

The larger farm implements were housed in an implement house some distance from the fire and were all saved. No animals were lost in the fire as most of the stock were in pasture and therefore were saved from a fiery death. What steps Mr. Dracup intends taking in the way of building could not be found out as the family are away attending the funeral of a relative at present.

The act of speaking calls into action 44 different muscles.

REDWINGS IN POSITION TO WORRY OTHERS

Montreal Turns Tables Upon Newark Bears

7 CROSS PLATE

(By The Associated Press)

The end of Newark's ten game winning streak and Baltimore's third successive defeat again has put the Rochester Redwings in a position where they are a distinct menace to the two leaders.

Newark, leading the race by one game, fell before Montreal's attack, 8 to 4, while Rochester took Baltimore's measure 10 to 5 and now stands only a game and a half behind the Orioles and two and one-half games behind Newark.

Montreal apparently was in for a beating from Newark when a downpour halted the game for 30 minutes in the fifth inning. In the sixth, the Bears scored one run for a 4 to 1 lead but Montreal came back to drive Dan Brennan out of the box with a four-run assault in the sixth and then added four more tallies in the seventh. Marrin drove in three Montreal Royals with a double and two singles.

IT HITS

A crowd of more than 13,000 saw Rochester stub Baltimore's pitchers for 17 hits and defeat Lou Gehrig and Ken Holloway from the box in the third inning when seven Red Wings crossed the plate. Waddy Holm led the Rochester attack with four singles. Ray Starr went the route for Rochester and allowed nine hits, including home runs by Joe Stanger and Harry Rice.

Jersey City Whipped

The Toronto Maple Leafs unleashed a 16-hit barrage to whip Jersey City 14 to 4. Fullerton was combed for six runs by the Leafs in the first inning but was left in the box for the full game. In addition to allowing 17 hits he walked six men, hit one batsman and made two costly fielding errors. Ken Strong found his offerings easy and collected two triples and a single, drove in four runs and scored two. Guy Cantrell was touched for 11 hits by the Skeeters but was effective in the pinches.

Reading nosed out Buffalo 6 to 5 in a night game at Buffalo. Bill Gould, who held the Keys to four hits in eight innings, contributed largely to his own defeat when he loosed a double-play ball into centre field in the ninth innings when the Keys scored three runs. Buffalo came back with one in their half but Cannon Van Alstyne stopped the rally before it assumed really dangerous proportions. Buffalo now has dropped 17 of its last 20 games.

CAMPBELL'S AUTO PAINT SERVICE GOOD

Finish That "Laughs at Time" Work Proves Most Satisfactory

Campbell's Auto Paint Shop is an automobile finishing establishment of the highest order. Its work has proved satisfactory everywhere. Duco is the premier finish, it is unlike anything else, it gives a beautiful and enduring finish. Duco may be had in any shade desired. It has a smooth, flint-like finish that really seems to be affected by steam, moisture, extreme heat or cold. It will neither crack nor chip. This one station will apply it to an automobile by the spraying process. It will not give either a lustre or rub finish. There is no paint that gives the paint-like richness of duco. It is a finish that "laughs at time." If one would have their automobile given that beautiful lustre so much desired, have duco applied by Campbell's Auto Paint Shop.

Not considered worth a play in his own city, Toronto, Vince Barton has made Chicago fans forget about Hack Wilson, the erstwhile demon slugger of the Cubs who is now gracing the bench while his young Canadian rival patrols right field and slams 'em into the bleachers. Barton is another contribution by Toronto to the Cubs in the line of a first rate Chicago idol. The first was Jimmy Archer, the great back-stop of another day. Barton went direct from the Queen City sandlots to Baltimore of the International League. In 1930 he went up to the Cubs for $10,000. He was born at Edmonton, Alta., former stamping ground of another big leaguer, Babe Herman of Brooklyn, and, also, of Eddie Shore of Boston hockey fame.

GEHRIG HERO OF THOUSAND BALL GAMES

In Third Place to Everett Scott and Joier Sewell

1000th GAME

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Henry Louis Gehrig, otherwise known as "Buster" or "Hungry Lou," is stepping rapidly along the path that brings him towards baseball honors entirely separate from the ones his powerful bat already has brought him. Gehrig, who stepped from the Columbia Campus into the lineup of the New York Yankees with very few side excursions, now has played in 1,000 consecutive games for the Yanks and has not given a sign of weakening.

Only two players in the Major Leagues ever have beaten that mark. Everett Scott took part in 1,307 games for the Boston Red Sox and the Yankees from 1916 to 1925 and Joier Sewell, now a Yank, played 1,103 for Cleveland.

About the time Scott's record was ending, Gehrig became New York's regular first baseman. He began in June 1925, won numerous honors as a star batter, as Babe Ruth's leading home run rival, and in 1927 as the most valuable player to his club.

The 1000th Game

Gehrig took part in his 1,000th game Tuesday, his 1141h of the current season, without adding anything to his batting laurels. He failed to get a hit in five attempts against Earl Whitehill and Tom Bridges of Detroit and after eleven innings saw his team go down to a 5-4 defeat before the last place team of the American League.

It was a nip-and-tuck contest in which a home run by Charley Ruffing, Yankee pitcher, put the New Yorkers ahead in the ninth only to have the Tigers tie the count and win out two innings later when Bridges singled and Charley Gehringer brought him home with a double off Ruffing's successor, Vernon Gomez.

Defeat Washington

Only one other American League game was played yesterday and in it the St. Louis Browns turned on Washington Senators after three straight defeats and pulled out a 4 to 2 triumph. The Browns bunched their hits off Stump Hadley for three runs in the third, a double by Red Kress bringing in the deciding counters.

The Boston Braves likewise made a comeback to win one of the National League's two game. After dropping four straight to the Chicago Cubs, they staged a ninth inning rally behind the fine pitching of Fred Frankhouse and downed Chicago 3 to 2. Frankhouse, pitching his first full game since a recent operation, held the Cubs to five hits. The deciding run came when Maranville doubled, reached third on an error and scored on Worthington's single.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, although they lost their series to the Phillies, threatened Boston's hold on fifth place when they pounded out a 14 to 4 triumph. In the final game, Chuck Klein, hit his 28th and 29th home runs of the season for Philadelphia but his clouts had little effect against Pittsburgh's 18 hit attack. Paul Waner led the drive with five single in six trips to the plate. The other teams in both Major Leagues had an open date.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

A hasty examination of his wife revealed no marks upon her, and Lord Greystoke decided the huge brute had died the instant he had sprung toward her. Gently he lifted his wife's still unconscious form and bore her to the little cabin. Fully two hours later she regained consciousness.

Her first words filled Greystoke with vague apprehension. For some time after regaining her senses she gazed wonderingly about the interior, of the little cabin, and then, with a satisfied sigh, said: "Oh, John, it is so good to be REALLY home. I have had an awful dream, dear!"

"There, there, Alice," he said, stroking her forehead. "Try to sleep again and don't worry." That night, while a leopard screamed before the door and the deep notes of a lion's roar sounded from beyond the ridge, a little son was born in the tiny cabin beside the primeval jungle home.

Lady Greystoke never recovered from the shock of the great ape's attack. She was never again out, side the cabin nor did she ever realize that she was not in England. But she took joy and happiness in the possession of her little son and the constant attention of the huge bull ape.

So that year was a very happy one. Greystoke had long since given up all hope of rescue. With unremitting zeal he had worked to beautify the cabin. The tiny life that had come to cheer them little knew what amazing experiences lay ahead of it in the depths of the African jungle.

PICTON FAIR GATES OPENED

Very Fine Displays in All Departments Are Seen

Picton, Aug. 18.—Picton Fair was officially opened Wednesday afternoon. Ideal weather prevailed and a very large crowd was on hand for the opening.

The parade, headed by the Prince Edward and Hastings Pipe Band, passed through the gaily decorated streets of the town to the Fair Grounds. In the parade were several hundred Boy Scouts, many school children, pony rides and horses carrying officials of the Fair.

Horse races provided the main attraction during the afternoon.

The Lobridge Midway is here and its concessions and rides receive hearty patronage in spite of the so-called depression.

There are over four thousand exhibits on the grounds, reports Secretary F. H. Minaker and entries have been received from many parts of the Province.

The cattle barn is filled to capacity. Holsteins predominate and among them are Holstein black and whites are Fred Hubbs and Huff Bros., Consecon; Dundas Bros., Bloomfield; Cherry Valley; Dunham Foster of Bloomfield; Fred Rose of Bloomfield; Dan Lemons of Bloomfield and Dodds and Rose of Woodcox.

The cattle are in very fine condition and excellent prizes for the prizes will be keen.

There are also many swine and sheep.

There are many fine horses and competition among driving horses is especially keen. Among outstanding heavy driving horses here are Mrs. S. P. Hagerman of Belleville, and Col. Bowerman of Picton.

Mr. Webber of Kitchener has four horses here and this evening he gives an exhibition of tandem driving.

Boy Scouts Jamboree

The Boy Scouts representing many parts of Ontario, have their tents pitched on the Fair Grounds. They also have a big exhibit of Scouting handicraft and a bandstand will have a field day on Thursday and a swimming and diving competition on Wednesday evening. They are also putting on a pageant in front of the grandstand tonight (Wednesday).

The Scouts arrived first, greeting their tents on Monday. The remainder arrived Tuesday and fine prizes are being given for the Scout exhibits and sports.

The Crystal Palace is a very interesting place, being filled with exhibits by local merchants, wonderful displays of handiwork, domestic science, arts and crafts, flowers and plants.

The poultry building is filled with geese, ducks, turkeys and all breeds of poultry are well represented. John G. Carter is in charge. There are also many pets.

The seed, grain and vegetable building is filled with splendid evidence of the long drought Prince Edward experienced this year.

On the grounds are many booths, models of new cars, tractors and other farming implements.

The Public School exhibit is bigger than ever and the Model Fair is of unusual interest. There are collections of all kinds of purses, stamps, coins, cigarette and cigar bands, autographs, etc., models of farm gate, feed hopper, hardiners stands, etc.

W. I. Exhibit

The Women's Institutes of the County have a large tent on the grounds, filled with splendid proof of lovely old quilts with quaint patterns and many fine sewing articles, articles of fancy work, domestic arts and crafts. Having charge of the W.I., are giving demonstrations in the afternoon and on the last afternoon only.

There are twenty horses here for the races in which $1300 is given in prizes. The races are on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Owing to the seas on the Lake it was impossible to hold the scheduled water races on Wellington on Monday. Exhibition races were started on Tuesday and there were sport-board riding exhibitions.

In the baseball game, Picton defeated Wellington 7 to 6.

A crowd of several thousands gathered in the grandstand to hear George Wade and his Cornhuskers and street dancing continued until a late hour.

The championship horseshoe pitchers of the County are Morden and Mumford of Ameliasburg as a result of a competition held there.

The Lobridge Midway is here in spite of the cancellation of the season races. Many old boys and girls were in attendance.

BARNS BURN

Warkworth, Aug. 19.—While the threshers were at dinner on the farm of Howard Mann, Saturday, fire burst from the roof of the roof of the barn they had left but a few minutes before. So rapidly did the blaze spread that the men had barely time to run the threshing mill on open field when the build ing collapsed. The cause of the fire is unknown. The many barns have been burned during threshing in the last few that the owners now set the machine in a way that it can be rapidly removed in case of fire.

Passengers caught stealing rides on State railways of France are subjected to a heavy fine and jail sthe imprisonment.

WHAT ONE GIRL WORE

By Betty Brownlee

Many women go in for prints with dark backgrounds this season of the year. Printed silk suits are especially popular.

One girl who attracted my attention the other day wore a charming frock of soft plaid taffeta, the predominant colors being grey and white. The frock featured a turned down, scalloped collar, with a tie of the same, tucked peplum and a flared skirt. Instead of the conventional cuffs on sleeves this costume there was a tiny waist-length cape of black cloth. Shoes, gloves and hat were black too.

RECOVERS FROM HECTIC TIMES

Hard Fought Election Campaign Nears End

Montreal, Que., Aug. 19 (By The Canadian Press)—Quebec's hard-fought election campaign is nearing the end. Candidates and party workers are deep in the strenuous hours of whirlwind campaigning as the polls next Monday, with Liberals and Conservatives entered in all of the constituencies. Nightly meetings from all parts of the Province report large crowds with a steadily growing interest in the campaign.

Yesterday the Province was recovering from the hectic activity of Monday, which was nomination day. Three wounded men in the hospital at Riviere Du Loup were victims of disturbances at a political when a Provincial Police Official attempted to restore order in a story political meeting held after nominations. In other places, such as Ste. Rose in Laval County, and Chateau Richer in Frontier Tarbert's constituency of Montmorency, fire fighting on a large scale had been expected. No one was seriously injured.

Allege He Stole From Reformatory

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 19—Charged with the theft of articles from the Ontario reformatory, Gordon A. Dunlop, guard at the institution until a few days ago, was remanded until Tuesday on $2,000 bail, when he appeared in police court this morning.

KITCHENER'S FLANS FOR RELIEF WORK

Kitchener, Ont., Aug. 19—The estimated cost of unemployment relief work this fall and winter, mapped out for approval by the unemployment relief committee of the Kitchener city council and the Provincial Government will exceed $500,000 and may pass the $600,000 mark if the local improvement projects under section eight of the local improvement act are sanctioned by the government, it was indicated here today by the city engineer.

FOREST FIRES MENACE TOWNS

Flames Race Into Town of Elko Near Fernie

Vancouver, Aug. 19—British Columbia's widely-scattered forest fires are on the rampage again. Flames raced into the town of Elko, about 25 miles south of Fernie, close to the Montana border line, destroyed 15 homes and two churches, and are still of a threatening nature while the entire countryside between Oliver, Bridesville and Rock Creek is being patrolled by a small army of fire-fighters trying to stem five separate blazes.

Spokane, Aug. 19—Forest fires leaped at two more northwest Idaho towns today, burning houses, felling out families and beating back several thousand men.

Bovill, Idaho, 140 miles southeast of Spokane, was hemmed in on three sides by flames which threatened to destroy power lines and cut the water supply.

Troy, Idaho, near there, was in the path of a roaring 10-mile long conflagration, and all families on the east side of the fire were ordered to flee their homes.

8 HOUR DAY ON RELIEF WORK

Regulations on Employment of Idle Are Issued

Ottawa, Aug. 19 (CP).—General regulations governing the unemployment relief work which will be undertaken by the government were issued here today. Under the order-in-council setting forth the specific powers vested in the Minister of Labor in connection with these measures was given out, together with a statement by Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor.

The Dominion Government announcer sadly suggests that the well recognized standard 8-hour-day should be respected by all parties and that no contractor will be justified in paying a lower rate than this principle of compensation to be paid on works undertaken by the Federal Government fixing the wage rates only on such works as are undertaking. All contracts are to provide that no intoxicating liquor shall be purchased at Canadian mills, factories and labor, wherever available. The Government desires that hand labor should be used to the maximum possible extent."

She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Panchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, who she never saw. The plane crashes and Panchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A scene full of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Cullen Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-assured attitude when his mother offers aid, but Panchon's sweet personality overcomes objections. They fall in love. After a happy week in Southampton, Panchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship, is not sure. He cannot resist professing his love. Panchon cannot acknowledge it, without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and replaces his advances. Mrs. Carstairs Parker, who shall Evelyn it alive.

CHAPTER XX

A scream rose to Panchon's throat. She crushed it back. Her breath sobbed out; she thought she must choke with amazement, incredulity, horror.

"Alive——"

"Yes," said Tony, "alive. I——you'll never know what I felt. I asked no one. I did see Lorna——"

"You saw Evelyn Howard?" Panchon gasped. She put her hand to her head——she said, muffled, "Tony I didn't know. Believe me, I didn't know! I thought she had died. I was told she had died. The reporters told me on the boat in New York. I thought——you can't rob the dead, I didn't dream——Tony, if she were alive, why haven't I heard? Why wasn't it in the papers? Why didn't Dr. Warren write me? He had my address."

"You left no money to care for her," Tony said.

"She was dying. I wanted her to have everything——and afterwards——"

"The funeral? But there wasn't any funeral. As to the report of her death, it was not confirmed. Believe, of course. The rumor went out from the hospital from some loose mouth that she was dying. When it reached the ears it had multiplied matters. The reporters appear gently did not verify it. As for being alive, I believe there were occasional references to it in the papers. But she was no one. She had no relatives. And circumstances made it impossible for the authorities to trace any. As a matter of fact, they, though they had proof, put one more word for it that she was alone in the world, Panchon."

"But she——? Why couldn't she——?" began Panchon desperately. "She remembers nothing," said Tony, gravely. "She is——like a child. They kept her there a long time. Put her, finally, in an institution nearby. She is quite—quiet. She is——well. I expected to see you. I saw this stranger. I didn't guess, even then. Miss Smith!

There might have been two Miss Smiths on the flight——the name Howard might have been wrong. I didn't know, of course. Yet I suspected——something. But you were clear. From the girl herself, I could naturally, get nothing. Having represented myself as—the fiance of Miss Smith, I was forced to go through with it. Warren spoke of you with great admiration. He told me about the money. I asked if he had communicated with this——charitable person. He said, no. That the girl was safe, where she was. There was nothing you or anyone could do for her." He smiled again. "As far as Evelyn Howard is concerned," he told Panchon, softly, "you are perfectly safe."

She was white from shock. But at his words she thought of Evelyn away from her. It would really not leave him. It would be ready and waiting for her when again she must encounter it. Just now her business was with Tony. She repeated his words slowly.

"I have nothing to fear from Evelyn Howard. That is perhaps true. Tony, you——"

He answered, steadily.

"Yes, Panchon. I do. If you do as I say. If you play the game."

She said, bitter and low——

"I——can't marry you, Tony. You know that."

"I don't," he replied, "expect you to. I realize your——scruples. Although I have——I think, they should be as strong as they once were. I don't know why they haven't quite the same claim to——posterity that you once had, Panchon."

She noted mechanically the difference in his speech. Crying——in the careful English, the avoidance of mannerisms, the new wonderment about it dully. For the first time she looked at him closely. He looked at him closely. He was——altered. Not only his added weight, but his expensive clothes, the small mustache made of course a difference.

She said hopelessly——

"It isn't that. It's that I don't——love you."

"You did," he reminded her, "until you found out."

He spoke so harshly, he shrugged, flicked away his ashes. He went on, more softly.

"Let that pass. You can do something for me. A small matter, Cynthia, in the East. No one knows me here. There is no reason why I should be. Londo Francescomi do not know Cesare Gill. Two can play at this game. I am not going to trust myself with,....Eastern members of my organization. I want you to go——shall we call it? business. In that, Panchon, you have had——have said. Since I have been here I have lived quietly. I have read a good deal. I have——I believe there were occasional references to it in the papers. But she was no one. She had no relatives. And circumstances made it impossible for the authorities to trace any. As a matter of fact they, though they had proof, put one more word for it that she was alone in the world, Panchon."

"But she——? Why couldn't she——?" began Panchon desperately. "She remembers nothing," said Tony, gravely. "She is——like a child. They kept her there a long time. Put her, finally, in an institution nearby. She is quite——quiet. She is well. I expected to see you. I saw this stranger. I didn't guess, even then. Miss Smith!

ROCK of GOLD

By Ethel Willis Hewitt

Juan Molina came into the despacho of the ranch house with bent head and sighing. His huge sombrero held lightly between his thin, nervous fingers. It was very rare occasions that peons were allowed to enter the dwelling of the patron.

Behind the large, old-fashioned writing desk sat Don Enrique de Tova, reading a newspaper from Mexico City. He looked up, a tripie surprised.

"Well?"

"I come to thank the senor for his kindness." Juan began in a shaky voice, "for all the meat and food. May God answer His blessings upon the senor, his virtuous senora, and his noble sons and daughters."

Don Enrique acknowledged the gratitude with vast satisfaction, as though he were some great benefactor who was reaping the compensation of a deed which would open for him the pearly gates of Paradise. However, it was his wife, Dona Catalina, who was responsible for the largesse to which he took the credit. It was she who looked after the peons and their families. She was always tendered a sympathetic heart when one was ill or a child was born, or a loved one drooped to sleep for the last time.

The aged peon was deeply moved at his master's kindly concern.

"But it must not be said that Juan is ungrateful," he continued. "Every kindness must be paid." He leaned forward, and in a voice almost a whisper, confided: "Pay away in the mountains there is a cave. Senor, you understand the cave where the genie antiqua found much gold."

"Gold!" exclaimed the hacendado until at length Juan stopped and said in low voice:

"Patron, we are there."

Don Enrique pushed the bandage from his eyes and gazed about him. They were in a wild, narrow canyon through the middle of which ran a swift stream that got viciously against the boulders, as it dashed onward in search of lower levels. Thick clumps of bamboo and banana trees grew an every side, while above protected gigantic, copper-colored rocks, which seemed about to hurl themselves down upon the two invaders. Ahead, like a great pocket in the mountains, was a mysterious round hole, verdure-fringed and dark.

"The cave," Juan gestured. "There it is."

Don Enrique dismounted with such haste that he almost fell into a thicket of briars. Five minutes later, he stood on the threshold of it and the dangerous place he had ever seen. About him on the rocky walls were weird writings of a long forgotten race. Great stone idols leered at him with cruel, hallowed eyes. The floor of broken pottery crunched under his feet, which ground finer into even smaller bits. He felt a peculiar sense of awe, and the keen excitement that a discoverer knows who finds something which no one else has ever beheld.

Juan lighted a torch and guided his master some distance within.

"Look, Juan," Don Enrique said. "This is the place where the genie antiqua got his gold. Here are their Chief Montesuma. Still their spirits guard it."

One glange verified the Indian's statement. In one corner, behind the rocks reeked with it. It seemed as though they were composed almost entirely of the precious metal.

Don Enrique's eyes bulged with excitement. He measured that the riches untold! Seizing a pick, he sank it with all his might into the ore-filled rock. Like a Trojan, he worked by the side of his peon, hacking down chunks of ore, selecting the riches, and dropping them into the bags until the mule fairly staggered under the heavy weight. He would have brought the animal to its knees, if the Indian had not stopped him.

Reluctantly the hacendado allowed himself to be blindfolded for the return to say to his family and friends that he was going to——

"This is not the last time I shall visit this place," he warned himself as his horse bore him homeward, while the ladies plodded behind, leading the patient mule. "I shall come again, yes, many times. I shall soon be a very rich man."

What a clever idea it was. It would be easy to say that he was ill, soon. The following day he would return alone, and mark out the trail for himself. It would prove quite simple.

He fairly glowed with thought of what the future would bring. He visualized himself a rich man——a millionaire. There would be a home in Mexico City in the beautiful Colonia Roma, and trips to foreign lands. He saw in his dreams the towering skyscrapers of New York, the gay boulevards of glittering Paris, the romantic, flower-scented gardens of old Seville. And the Riviera and the beaches of Monte Carlo. He was so intoxicated with the luxury existence which was about to become his that the return journey seemed scarcely more than begun when it was finished.

In the valley once more, Juan removed the cloth from his master's eyes.

"Well patron, here we are again," he said. "There was only one little accident. The pockets of the senor, they do not serve him well. They need mending. Every little way as we came down, one copper coin was lost. But as Juan is always faithful to his patron, at the side of the trail he picked up every one where it fell. See, patron, here they are in this bag. Not even one senavo is lost.

WOMEN KILLED CAR IS DITCHED NEAR NAPANEE

Mrs. J. H. Dixon and Mrs. D. G. McBeth of Toronto Meet Instant Death

ON WAY HOME

Had Attended Funeral of Twins at Otawa

Belleville, Aug. 19—Mrs. J. H. Dixon and Mrs. D. G. McBeth, Toronto, were killed instantly, Mrs. Dixon's son, Wesley, was critically injured, and is not expected to recover, and the husband of the latter was seriously escaped with minor bruises when the car in which they were riding overturned in the ditch eight miles east of Napanee, a little after 7 o'clock Tuesday night.

Wesley Dixon, aged 26 was rushed to the Kingston Hospital. The bodies of the two women were taken to Wm Lavers's Undertaking Parlors in Napanee.

Dr. Calkins, Coroner at Napanee, ordered an inquest, and after preliminary evidence had been taken, the hearing was adjourned for one week.

Traffic Officer Summerville investigated. One of the men in the car made a statement to the effect that their car was forced into the ditch by a car going east, as they were travelling west, but up to the present the traffic officer has been unable to locate this car. The occupants of the car were reported to be returning from a funeral in Canada.

Funeral of Twins

Toronto, Aug. 19—No details could be obtained either from the Dixon or McBeth homes on Rush close and Wells Avenue, yesterday, as to the funeral which the group from Toronto were attending beyond that the burial was that of twins recently born to the Ottawa River, relatives of Mr. and Mrs. McBeth. Mr. McBeth is in the employ of the Ontario Government at Queen's Park.

Officer Near Death In Highway Crash

Hamilton, Aug. 19—Traffic Officer Noah Morris of Caledonia whose patrol is the Caledonia Highway from Hamilton to Caledonia, was seriously injured at 11 o'clock Tuesday night about one mile south of the city when his motorcycle was hurled into a ditch by another car, the driver of which is alleged to have fled the scene.

Officer Morris was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, and was in a semi-conscious condition, suffering from a possible fractured skull and internal injuries.

Hamilton and Provincial Police scoured the district for the car which Officer Morris described and such a car, containing two men and three women, was overtaken here about three o'clock by Motor-cycle Officer Walker. Traffic Officer Morris is said to have been pursuing a speeding car on No. 6 Caledonia Highway, and, after his motorcycle registered 81 miles an hour, he succeeded in getting ahead of it and ordered the driver to stop. The driver, however, is alleged to have increased his speed, and deliberately drove his car head-on into the motorcycle of Constable Morris. Skid marks showed that the automobile stopped about 100 feet farther on and then fled.

SEE BIGGER, BETTER FAIR JUST AHEAD

Belleville Agricultural Society Has Hopes of Record Attendance

FAMERS' RACE

Competition Will be Keen in Livestock and Other Exhibits

Bigger, better and grander than ever is the slogan of the directors of this year's Belleville Fair. Entries far above any expectations are daily rolling into the secretary's office. To date there are more entries in this year's fair than ever in its history; the greatest drawback that now faces the directors is how and where they are going to accommodate all the entries.

All booths in the display building have been allotted to exhibitors and every available inch of space is being rushed into use. It may be that the officials in charge will have to erect a tent for the use of house the exhibits that are expected to arrive at the last moment. All the buildings have been completely overhauled and it is hoped that the exhibitors' displays may no longer be threatened by rain from leaky roofs.

One of the special prizes offered will be feature of the opening day. The farmers' running race that is always attracts considerable attention will be one of the items of interest. Prizes ranging from $5 to $1 have been required to date, than ever before and it is expected that a thrilling contest will be staged by these sturdy sons of the soil. It has been a foregone conclusion that Mc-Master's entry would again win this event, but the local sporting public is of entries in this race the elevation has been thrown into the outcome.

All arrangements for one of the finest vaudeville performances ever staged in Belleville have been completed. The secretary completed the arrangements and the grand stand performance this year will be with going miles to see. A fine display of fire-works will complete each evening's performance.

Today the responsibility of making good bread has been placed upon the baker. Recognizing this responsibility, this company, backed by its long and continued effort to make an even better bread, gives the people of better bread, gives the people of this section Purity bread, a bread to meet and satisfy the taste and palate of the most discriminating.

Nothing is used in the process of making Purity bread but the very best grades of flour, pure milk, sugar, salt and other ingredients, mixed and baked by means of scientific, clean, sanitary conditions and methods Their long, untiring efforts have been crowned with success by the production of this bread of unusual merit. The satisfying goodness of this loaf will be a joy to every member of your family.

This firm, under the able management of Mr. C. E. Thompson, has spared neither time nor expense in its constant quest for the sanitary equipment for the economical handling of the staff of life In fact, it is just the kind of plant you would want your bread made in. TAKES TOUR TO PACIFIC

Mr. John A. Kerr Has Enjoyable Tour Over West

Mr. John A. Kerr, local registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario and of the Surrogate Court, has returned from a three weeks' pleasure trip to the Pacific coast. The tour was arranged and conducted by Dean Laird of MacDonald College. Dean Laird has been conducting this tour for eight years. Special cars are engaged and are kept waiting at points where the party desires to spend one or two days. Usually there are about forty in the serenity fine and two hundred people go on the trip. This year the party numbered only thirty-eight. Winnipeg, Regina and Penticton, Vancouver, Victoria, the Okanagan valley and Kootenay Lake district, were the "must" visited. On the trip to Vancouver a stop was made for two days. Here Mr. Kerr met Judge Fortin, an old Bellevillian and had the pleasure of playing golf with him. Mr. Kerr states that he saw the first green blades in Vancouver, on leaving Ontario, excepting in irrigated districts. After a visit to Victoria, the party returned to Vancouver for a day and then went on to Lake Louise and Mr. Kerr met Mr. Jack Deacon, whom some old-timers will remember as the C.P.R. hotels at Lake Louise and Banff. Mr. Deacon and Mr. Kerr climbed mountains on horseback and at times was two hundred red feet above sea level on the mountain peaks. Two days were spent at Banff, where wonderful scenery was enjoyed, then on to Calgary, Edmonton, Brandon, Winnipeg, Fort William, Port Arthur and home by boat. Mr. Kerr says he enjoyed the tour very much but is glad to get back to Ontario and Belleville the beautiful.

Rednersville

Rednersville, Aug. 18 By Mail — Mrs. Tree, Mrs. Mitchell from Wreakland, South Dakota, Mrs. Brintnell and Mrs. Mitchell from Lauderdale, Florida, are visiting for a few day afternoon visitors at Mrs. W. Childerhose.

Mr. D. Sparks of Oshawa, spent last Friday with Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dempsey.

Mrs. Earle Sills entertained company on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wannamaker and daughter of Eldorado, were Sunday visitors at Mr. N. Wilder's.

Mrs. Charles Babcock spent the week end, with Mrs. Harold Ward.

Sorry to report Mrs. J. S. Dempsey on the sick list. Her friends hope she will soon be better.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dempsey are spending a couple of weeks in Toronto.

Mr. Harold Ward, Leon Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ward accompanied by Mr. Charlie Babcock, motored to Barrie for the week end.

That she got more than she bargained for goes without saying. We first see her having good-bye to her brother and his wife who have accompanied her to the West. Three ruffians ride into the town, take command, and at once begin throwing dice for the possession of her.

She pleads to Brand, the handsome one of the trio, who beats his comrades, rides off to a justice of the peace and marries her, despite her protests.

Situations startling, amusing, semi-tragic follow each other in rapid succession, leading to a climax which is delightfully different from any twist given to a picture as yet.

The entire production is Technicolour, and all the best of the West are a delight to the eye.

Mary Brian's Special Short Review will also be included in this programme which is playing at the Capitol Theatre for the last time. In addition Giovanni Martinelli will be seen singing "Love's Garden of Roses" which will prove a treat in itself.

The article of Silverware which will be presented to each lady tomorrow night has not yet been displayed in Bridge Holmes, but everyone can be assured that this gift will be most acceptable, and savers of the set will be gratified in the thought that it is one article nearer the complete fifty-two.

The room was beautifully decorated with gladioli, the bridal couple standing beneath an arch of ferns.

After the ceremony a dainty lunch was served at home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Genge will reside in Peterboro.

AMUSEMENTS

ROBERT MONTGOMERY SHINES IN AMUSING ROLE

We know very few young women who wouldn't like to solve the servant problem as does Irene Purcell in "Free Men in Possession," which is the feature attraction at the Belle, today and Thursday. For if Robert Montgomery wouldn't suit them as a butler we don't know who would. That's what happened at any rate in the title version of the popular H. M. Harwood stage farce with the exception that Montgomery forces himself into the job when, in real life, it might take some persuasion to coax him into the livery.

Fun All The Way Through

This is indeed a very best picture to date and in it he seems to be acting as much fun as the audience who howl at his brilliant characterization. It is purely a laughing matter from start to finish.

Charlotte Greenwood romps away with supporting honors as the maid who appoints herself nemesis to the pseudo butler but Hale Hamilton outpointed when he brings romance into the life of the charming young widow lady-of-the house. It is one of his most delightful characterizations roles and she makes the most of it in a big way.

Also Supporting Cast

Among the outstanding members of the cast are Lewis Stone, Evelyn Beryl Mercer, Reginald Owen and Alan Mowbray, all perfectly cast.

Last night "The Modern Wife" was presented by a large crowd of appreciative movie fans. The ladies, having received a beautiful R.P.M. S, dessert spoon, scolled down to earth and had a truly entertaining programme of motion pictures. Starting with the Capitol Review, a conglomeration of interesting titbits soothingly photographed, "Love That Kills," a Vagabond travelogue followed, and then one of the funniest comedies that it is possible to imagine was contained in "Three Wise Guides" with Glen Tyron.

After being treated to the 'shorts' the audience were in a favourable frame of mind to respond to the appeal of "The Modern Wife," starring Genevieve Tobin and Conrad Nagel, not to mention Esar Pitts, the screen's comedy tragedienne.

Mr. and Mrs. Modern Wife, a young couple with a good income, decides that on the very next occasion that she annoys him, he will take unto himself a woman and will give her a sock in the jaw. Of course it is not a man to even think of such a thing, but Genevieve Tobin of the Capitol Theatre last night, felt that if the shoe had been their wife, they would have been tempted to have doubled up their fists and planted them on the beauty and winsome ways of the charming sleek and clever vixen who the masculine heart wavers. In fact, it flutters, and the angel flies.

Zasu Pitts as the maid is uproarious. Very funny and in her element, she delights manner. Every time she appears on the screen there is a good laugh.

The fashions for ladies displayed by Miss Tobin are weird and wonderful to the eye, but in the humanity's they are creations of splendid taste. Twenty-six different dresses are worn in the production by Miss Tobin.

The programme ends tonight.

"WOMAN HUNGRY"

A picture which contains an entirely new theme commences at the Capitol tomorrow, (Silverware Gift Night). We have had various angles of the eternal triangle in many form, but this time the triangle is taken on an additional side with the result that it becomes a quadrilateral. Three men and only one girl, a lure as old as the hills, and yet one that have not seen a girl for many months, would have become "Woman Hungry."

Lila Lee enacts the role of the girl with wonderful conviction, and the three men are respectively played by Fred Kohler, Sidney Blackmer and Raymond Hatton.

A girl, bred in the luxuries of the East, cannot stand the humdrum existence and resolves to forsake the refuge of a rich home for the wide open spaces of the Arizona desert.

A Drifter's Impressions

In The "Jungle" Bellevilleby Allan P. rfitt

Like many another, through the intense industrial depression, I am "on the hobo" and have perchance drifted into Bellevile which "on my way." I am much struck by the atmosphere of your charming little city, and although viewed through the particular glass of the down-and-out, would say my stay here has indeed been delightful. My abode has been in the local caravan, more widely and commonly known as "the Jungle" —a gracious compliment to Darwin indeed! Our life isn't what one would describe as bed of roses and the smelly aurora of our midst does not suite the fragrance of sweet smelling myrtle, but we are an interesting little crowd and our idiosyncracies would certainly interest the more placid dwellers of Uptown.

Among our particular coterie we have an individual aptly named "Overland Pete" who has freighted the whole American continent and made nicknacks for a livelihood and on his way looks for all the world a dilapidated Santa Claus with his sack jauntily swinging and unmusically rattling his heterogeneous mass of incongruities. Every hobo has a nickname and our particular one is called the "Coca Cola Kid" as he has a peculiarity for ridin atop refrigerator cars and when he rolls off lightly into the cinh grass by the right of way he usually lightly exclaims, "Straight off the ice" or "Coca Cola" thinking of some much desired drink on a sweltering summer day.

The intelligentsia of our nomadic assemblage is an Irishman, and somewhat a dreamer, declares the chaotic condition of the world today, and romantic soul! waits the coming of a saner universe. Everything, he says is tying to the West, w gather round the dying "Jungle" fires and are patient listeners to his tales of the Old Land for he can speak charmingly on Erin's folk, love and pleasantry. Often howgver, he declares that he CANNOT has had his fill, good and sufficient, we are inclined to disagree with such assertions. We often find him thur down by the stockyards, close to the rail tracks, lone and meditative, romantic soul, now in his element, his mind fev away in some agricultural Elysium, no doubt, amongst the sties and peat of his native Donegal.

My partner has been in many vocations. His last was th.t of a much be-ribboned commissionaire, resplendent in most gorgeous trappings "doing his bit" outside a cheap movie theatre. One day, a newly arrived immigrant from some salubrious city of the Diaspora unconsciously stiffened, stood erect and saluted him. That was much for my friend. He quit the job. He didn't look quite a Lord Nelson admiral. He prefers this roaming life it seems, not being able to get the "trench life" out of his blood, averring, perhaps truthfully, that he has found no such camaraderie since. Going his way he finds much serenity and satisfaction in "doing himself" an unentrammelled, tambourinelees life. He never "bums."

The remaining trio, sitting here in a circle on a warm august day in an idyllic bower, includes an Aberdonian whose tales of raw unreality would shock the most avid reader of Balzac and who has for a partner an olive-skinned youth of Semitic origin, both canny and inseparable, as if having been brought together by some economic affinity. Joe has carried the soubriquet of "Star Bum" not through any deep understanding of astronomy or any likely migration to the cosmic universe, but more, I believe, due to his extraordinary ability of acquiring something from nowhere. Sad to say, these friends became estranged due to the Aberdonian's incurable frailty to pork pies.

The last of our company is a middle-aged city youth. He drifted into our "Jungle" hearth one day, asked and obtained, straight from a cleansing roller in a nearby stream. We all liked this lad as he had such beauty of character and we believed these soundings were quite in keeping with his thoughts. He quoted Omar and "the Rubaiyat" era" of Montreal and would oft set him a-reading with a mind delicious of an epicurean existence amongst the lilies and roses of the grass, and the deliciousness of Ria de Janeiro. Stephen, helped darn by a demi of sparkling burgundy and absinthe, was awakened to the superfacia and disillusion of his mental dreams. He has since returned to good until the Aberdonian facetiously remarks, "Aw, what does it matter, anyhow? A man's stomach is only a hole in the middle of a man, be mulligan, liver and onions or haggis, washed down by plenty of pouring water." There is much in that.

Thus we make the best of life today; in times of depression, mucawbirike, waiting for things to turn up. They will soon, we know. The environment has done much to make life easier for us. We are tiring of dawn on the morrow we will be off to the land of promise and the grateful adieu. The moon shines bright down by the rail tracks to-night, and the wind whistles in the trees, making the foliage stand out like silhouettes against the starry fingers. Here in Belleville it has been a pleasant stay.

SHARE PRICES HIGHER

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 18—A complete reversal of trend was exhibited on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Prices, particularly those of oils, were all considerably above their finals of the previous session. Volume, too, was heavier. Oils were also leaders in this respect.

Food for Fisherman and His Family

by Barbara B. Brooks

Most fishermen are poor conversationalists while engaged in this favorite sport, of course, afterwards they can tell most amazing fish stories, but during the actual time of action they choose to remain silent. The lazy lap of the waves against the boat and the hush and occasional curious fly is music to their ears and they are content to sit quietly, reflecting life in their own way, while waiting for the fish to bite.

Fish air and outdoor atmosphere make for healthy appetites and therefore the fisherman may forget the time of day for awhile, perhaps, but he will somewhere disturb his reveries and he will want food. The food provided should be plain, compact and such as will make as much fisherman prefer to eat his meal. Therefore it is a good catch if they leave their fishing rods and go to shore.

The quotation of "Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink" is a good one to remember when one is planning a lunch for a fishing party. The food must be packed in two sweet, tasty or not salty as foods of these types create thirst and the water supply is usually limited. Another thing to be remembered is that there is always an unavoidable dampness present in a boat." For this reason all sandwiches, cookies or cakes should be well wrapped in several thicknesses of waxed paper. Oil, as fatilities are few, the food should be prepared so that it can be eaten without cooking in direct contact with the hands of the person eating. The sandwiches may be held by their wrappings and other food should be eaten by means of paper napkins.

As sandwiches, with few exceptions, are the mainstay of picnic meals, let us give you a few hints. Rye, graham or whole wheat bread, cheese and bacon fillings must be forgotten on this occasion. They are much too salty and will cause this little trouble if they are allowed to sit in the bottom of the boat and are given to the boys and something to eat. Their food will cause few alterations in the regular lunch provisions. A box of corn flakes or crisp rice cereal, an extra package of milk and a bowl and spoon will be all that is necessary to keep them well nourished and happy during the day. In fact, with the gentle rock of the boat and the low or no conversation, they will soon be asleep, unaware of the big fish which just eluded their father's hook.

THREE EXPLOSIONS

Two May Die—Rescuers Pull Victims From Flames

Toronto, Aug. 20—Swerving in an effort to avoid hitting three men who were crossing King street near Stafford Avenue, Wednesday evening, Edward Little, 419 Carlaw Avenue, a police constable, ran his car into a gasoline curb-pump, which exploded, and turned the intersection of the streets into a blazing inferno. The three men by crossing King Street were in no danger, who received first aid, were seriously burned by the flaming gasoline, which showered on them, and then were taken to the Western Hospital. They were:

William Daly, aged 31, 31 Henderson Avenue, face and arm burnt.

Herbert Emerson aged 30, 81 Pauline Avenue, seriously burned about the body and face.

John Morrison, aged 31, 109 Hastings Avenue, who rendered first aid; burnt about the hands.

Thomas Conroy, 144 Sunnyside Avenue, seriously burned about the body, limbs and face.

Constable Edward Little, who were in the automobile, were unhurt.

Swerves Into Pump.

According to police and eyewitnesses, Mr. and Mrs. Little were driving west on King Street, when Daly, Emerson and Conroy started to cross the street just west of Stafford Avenue. The three men were at the middle of King street when, suddenly, they completely stepped in front of the car. Little pulled sharply to the right, and to avoid striking the curb gasoline pump, belonging to Charles Hall's Service Station, at 824 King Street West.

Immediately there was a blinding flash and terrific roar and the pump exploded, witnesses said. Flaming gasoline showered down on the street and on the men, whose clothes took fire, so they tried to escape the flames they ran toward the south side of King Street where bystanders tried to help them.

Protected by Car Door

According to witnesses, the only thing that saved Mr. and Mrs. Little was the fact that their car was a closed one, which gave them time to get out. In a few seconds the car itself was a blazing mass. When firemen arrived it was a wreck. The frame and body were twisted by the heat, and only its interior was burned to a crisp.

CUPID SCO RES EARLY

Cupid usually gets in his best work when the intended victims of his darts are young and innocent, but there's a case where even the little fellow with the bow and arrows had to get on the job early, Madaleva, 14, of the North End. Soon, he has been granted permission to become the bride of Antonio Sardo, 27, also of the North End. War loomed at first over the girl's tender years, but court and family permission finally were obtained. The happy couple are shown above.

REGISTRATIONS CLIMB TODAY

City Lists Reached 164 at Noon and Labor Bureau 169

Registration at the City Hall for unemployment relief seeking labor on municipal relief work which is expected will be undertaken under the authority of the Provincial and Federal Governments, was much more rapid today than yesterday. For two hours after registering the applicants was kept busy handling the uninterrmittent stream of men, seventy per cent of whom were married men. Intermittently the rest of the day the registration went onward. At noon about one hundred and thirty-five were on the city list. Registration proceeded this afternoon at less rapid rate. The total then stood 164.

Wednesday's registration at standstill yesterday was very low because the office was open only half the day The few who placed their names on the lists yesterday were followed by a much greater number today.

Government Bureau

Registers of unemployed men at the Government Employment Office who are willing to accept work on the Trans-Canada Highway, up until noon today totalled. Single men 136; Married men 43. Total 182.

THREE PARTY PARLEY HELD ON DOWNING ST.

Predictions of Reduction in Salaries and Pay

LONDON QUIET

Momentous Gathering of Party Leaders Adjourns

London, Aug. 20.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald today won the support of the National Executive of the Labor Party for his government's economy and revenue proposals intended to balance next year's budget.

London, Aug. 20 (By George Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Spurred possibly by the reports of a revenue tariff, the Liberals were in the centre stage when the leaders of the labor, Conservative and Liberal parties conferred today on the cabinet's economy proposals.

The Prime Minister had allotted only an hour for the meeting, instead, after two hours the Liberal and Conservative spokesmen left with the brief statement, they would renew their conversations with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and H. Philip Snowden on Friday. The Liberals insisted at the tariff proposals in particular, but it is understood.

Sir Samuel and Sir Donald Maclean, the Liberal party spokesmen, were 10 minutes ahead of time when they reached Downing Street their taxi and disappeared between a group of waiting newspapermen and photographers into No. 10 Downing Street. Nine minutes later Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain and Sir Samuel Hoare for the Conservatives, accompanied by Rt. Hon. key by Baldwin's private secretary, also appeared, ran the photographers, and disappeared. The door of the Prime Minister's residence, open up to now was closed.

London is excited.

Apart from newspaper headlines and the usual crop of rumors in relation to rumors of a tariff, London is showing little undue excitement. Spectators at Goodwood Park Races dwindled to a crowd of weary news papermen still hunting for the first minutes after ten a group of Germans tourists appeared, shepherded by a guide, but they remained only a moment. Downing Street does not specialize in the spectacular and the Britons evidently did not think the show worth a drenching in the dismal rain.

Tightening up

The long cabinet session of Wednesday lasted four hours and was decided. It is forecast there will be a tightening up in the administration of the unemployment fund, but no drastic changes in the conditions in the pay of cabinet ministers, judges, the higher grades of civil servants, teachers and police, with some changes in direct taxation and economies in the administration of government services, also come within the realm of speculation.

Revenue tariffs were discussed again with the unanimity that from Downing Street to Labor party headquarters there was "big fire" of the cabinet meet the executive of the Labor party and the general council of the trades union congress. The trades unionists are supporting any cut in unemployment benefits. On the other hand leading Conservatives are not sharing Conservatives is urgent and essential. They consider that a revenue tariff, but they add a revenue is not a substitute for economy.

Crew Brings Amberjack Into Port Without Broken Spar

ALMOST LOST

Never Sailed in Such Rough Weather Says Owner

Plymouth, Eng., Aug. 20.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Only one pint of fresh water was left aboard the 30 foot United States yacht Amberjack II, when, after being battered by mountainous seas, it completed the Fastnet race course in eight days and moored here yesterday.

The Amberjack left the course in 615 miles but the dog-tired crew, after a sleepless eight-days struggle with Amerika, the smallest yacht in the race, were unanimous that it was a holiday trip when compared to the Fastnet ordeal. Still, they brought Amberjack into port with not one broken spar, but not an inch to spare.

The Amberjack was very close to foundering many times, but especially when she was jammed between Pendeen Watch and the Irish rocks, slipping huge green seas and bucking winds of gale force.

Fifty-two boats of the yachts which was manned by his friends, left the starting line in such rough weather. We reached Fastnet on Friday and for six hours fought and struggled to get clear of the rocks, which are more than 200 yards away. It was blow on so hard we were unable to shorten sail. When we tried, the yacht gave such a lurch that the mainsail boom broke. We closed great seas swept into the cockpit, filling the bunks and carrying away our timed food.

"For 12 hours Amberjack heeled over nearly to her limit of 150 degrees. Our water tanks successfully swash. During the struggle off Fastnet we were unable to get any signalling as our dangerous position and we wondered if we would ever get off alive. We fought through the darkness until at last we saw the lights of Plymouth although we were almost exhausted."

PICNICKED AT FLINTON

Quite a number of local citizens and friends attended the Flinton church picnic held by St. John's R.C. Church of Flinton. The picnic was held on the grounds and the afternoon of the day was a soft ball tournament between teams from Belleville R. C. of C., Tyrone, Northbrook and Flinton. After a hard struggle the Flinton "nine" won by defeating the Belleville team by 11 runs to 10. Ice cream and soft drinks were served on the grounds and during the evening dancing, both round and square, was enjoyed by all those present.

Wide Expansion Mass Feeding of People of Russia is Authorized

12 Million Workers and Families Fed at Kitchens

"PROGRESS" MADE

Present Facilities Found To Be Inadequate Says Decree

Moscow, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Wider extension of the mass feeding of people of Russia was called for in a decree issued today by the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party.

Stating that approximately 12,000,000 workers and their families now are fed collectively at factory kitchens, public dining halls and children's feeding stations, the decree said that great progress has been made in "social feeding" along the lines prescribed by Lenin, but that considerable further expansion, construction and the liquidation of unemployment in feeding-place facilities inadequate.

Not only workers, but members of their families are privileged to eat at such communal feeding places, it was stated, may be obtained at nominal prices ranging upward from 15 cents a meal.

A recent drive to attract more persons to eat in public dining halls, it was brought heavy demands on the public feeding facilities, especially in the large cities.

The chief problems facing cooperative societies, which have charge of the distribution of foodstuffs, are lack of sufficient public kitchens and dining halls, poor use of the dinners supplied, unsanitary conditions, overcrowding, inadequate supplies of dishes, cutlery and improperly trained cooks.

The decree calls for the opening of 20,000,000 rubles (approximately $10,000,000) credit for the construction and equipment of 300 new factory kitchens and 4,000 dining halls for the social feeding of 25,000,000 persons within the next three years.

It also provides for the organization of a state trust to supervise all phases of collective feeding, the improvement in the quality of foodstuffs, variation in menus and the installation of piecework wage scales for workers who will be raised to the category of industrial workers, the system now prevailing in many factories men to oversee the improvements.

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 20.—Struck by lightning, which played its electrical storm, a large maple tree on the farm of C. H. Harris at Eastwood was split and portions hurled in all directions. One section was thrown a distance of almost 200 feet in one direction while another limb was tossed 106 feet away.

HALF HOUR'S DELUGE

Paris, Aug. 20—Torrential rain in the last half hour caused considerable damage in Paris, especially in the east end. In one inundated section, 15 families evacuated their dwellings, while the water rose to three feet in the cut. An uprooted tree fell into a half-finished house and damaged the walls. Cellars in two hundreds of cellars were flooded and traffic interrupted.

Trade Upturn Predicted to Begin at Once

Montreal, Aug. 20.—An immediate upturn in business conditions which should hold at least until the end of the year was forecast here today by Paul Jay, New York industrialist. The upturn may well mark the end of the great agricultural and industrial depression, he said.

"If the trade revival is as good as I hope, it should, I think, bring about business conditions for at least two years," said Mr. Clay. "But we won't be in a position to say definitely whether it will be a permanent one until January of next year."

Mr. Clay declared that he had no doubt whatever of the coming of an automobile trade revival.

"I base my judgment on the increased confidence in credit; on the liquidation of inventories and the extensive deflation of money rates. Besides the stock market is once more acting bullish."

But permanent prosperity cannot return to the United States and Canada until the manufacturing industries are once more on a dividend paying basis, said Mr. Clay, and this term coined by labored unions average index and production increases by at least 25 per cent.

Pole Carrying 12000 volts Blown Up Thursday Morning

SERVICES BROKEN

Only Emergency Cases Operated in Montreal Hospital

Montreal, Que., Aug. 20 (Canadian Press)—Dynamiting of the power lines of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, this morning when a pole carrying 12,000 volt transformers was blown up by the north end leaving half the suburban town of St. Laurent without electric service.

At two other points this morning three transformers in the northeast end were put out of commission by dynamite.

Within the past week outrages of this nature have been of daily occurrence, culminating yesterday with a series of daring dynamite attacks on high tension wire carriers that left the entire city service in a badly crippled condition. Three huge steel towers carrying high tension wires were destroyed, two in the Rosemount district of the northeast end, and one late at night on the shore of the Lachine Canal.

Street car services were curtailed yesterday while repairs were being made to the power lines and in city hospitals only emergency operations were being performed. The fire alarm system was at one time believed crippled.

These depredations commenced soon after the start of a strike by 175 linesmen in protest against the company's refusal to recognize their union. The strikers and their officials have denied any knowledge of the outrages and have lent their efforts day and night in the work of patrolling the property. Large squads of police and guards employed by the power company have been patrolling the power lines but no arrests have been made.

A new dirigible will have a flying telephone system nearly three city blocks long, with seventeen instruments and more than three miles of wire.

HAYFIELD QUARREL STARTS BATTLE WITH PITCHFORK

One Man is Dead and Other Held For His Death

WIDOW'S STORY

Montreal, Aug. 20.—A charge of murder faces Paul Lizotte, aged 40, who was held provisionally responsible by a Coroner's Jury Wednesday for the death of John Sheppard, 50, whom Alfred Shepherd, aged 57, Lizotte has arraigned on a murder charge and remanded for inquest August 27.

The fatal struggle took place two weeks ago on Lizotte's farm on Concession 6, near Lachute, Shepherd died from wounds Tuesday.

Mrs. Shepherd was the chief witness. Her fourteen-year-old son also witnessed the fight and testified.

The quarrel arose when Shepherd struck one of the horses with the handle of his pitchfork, Mrs. Shepherd testified. The sobbing widow told of her husband and brother-in-law fencing for a long, agonizing period with the sharp-pronged forks while she screamed for them to stop. Finally she said Shepherd threw blood on Lizotte's wrist. The latter then crowded her husband's rage, Mrs. Shepherd said, and Shepherd dropped his weapon. "My God! Look what I have done!" Mrs. Shepherd said the witness said. Lizotte lunged and a line of his ing financial problems, sought to perfect an organization to meet the emergency.

There is no way of telling how many the flood has killed. A week ago the corpse recovery society, which had counted the bodies taken out of the river, made an estimate of 4,000. That was before the waters climbed above the 1870 mark. Since then whole towns and villages have been wiped out.

TWO FINE CALLS
Having two calls within an hour the local Fire Department were kept busy Wednesday evening. The first call was down behind the Houston Plant where a marsh fire had gained considerable headway and the Department were kept busy keeping the blaze from threatening the lumber on the premises of the Houston Company. The second call was to 239 Front Street where the upstair part of the building was filled with smoke. No fire could be found although the members of the Department searched in vain. It is thought that the smoke came from a car that had a bad exhaust as there is a garage beneath the building.

A win would be their greatest delight and the Nationals will not be out to stop them.

Cups and Prizes are Presented

Wednesday evening the tenth and most successful annual exhibition of the Canadian Gladioli Society came to a close. The attendance was good and many persons who had already visited the show were there again to enjoy a last view of the beautiful flowers. During the evening the prize winners were presented with their trophies and this was an interesting and happy event. The presentations were made by Mr. W. C. Glaspell of Galt, President of the Society; Mrs. George Boulstead and Mr. W. J. Bowden, Chairman of the local committee in charge of the exhibition.

Towards the close of the evening Alderman George Tice kindly acted as auctioneer and quantities of flowers were sold to visitors. The funds obtained in this way were given to Mr. Sam Manning, who unfortunately fell and injured his leg while helping in decorating the armouries prior to the opening. The holding of the Gladiolus show in Belleville has been much enjoyment to many people who greatly appreciate the efforts of their fellow citizens who made the holding of the exhibition in Belleville possible and who, by good management and hard work, made the event so great a success.

GIGANTIC WAVES ENGULF BATHERS

Atlantic City, N.J., Aug. 20—(UP)—A series of towering, irresistible waves, struck the Atlantic City beach without warning Wednesday and carried 50 persons, one of whom was drowned, out to sea.

Last night two other persons still were missing after the sea had calmed. Most of the 50 bathers had been rescued by lifeguards and volunteers who formed a human chain.

A panic-stricken crowd collected at the foot of North Carolina Avenue and watched anxiously as lifeguards brought the exhausted bathers out of the backwash of the waves, which was accompanied by a strong undertow.

GERMANS FAVOR WIGGIN REPORT

Berlin, Aug. 20—Germany's reponsible statemen hail the Wiggin report advocating revision of war debts and reparations as a great advance over all previous international declarations on the sub ject.

The views of the German leaders, arrived after they had read and digested the report, were made public through spokesmen at the foreign office and the finance ministry.

They held that the findings of the International bankers show the world economic crisis has become so dominant a question that reparations are now a relatively unimportant subdivision, and, hence no longer a problem for the international political atmosphere.

DEMPSEY BACK IN OLD STRIDE

Scores Knock-out in Exhibition With Beasley

Reno, Aug. 20—Four years absence from the boxing ring apparently has not impaired the slugging prowess of Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion.

The Manassa mauler, boxing at 199 pounds, Thursday night began a series of exhibitions which may end in an attempt to regain the heavyweight crown, with a knockout of Jack Beasley, Oakland, Cal. After flooring his 185-pound opponent for counts of eight and nine early in the second round, Dempsey landed a short left to the jaw before the halfway mark, a scheduled 4-round bout.

Mrs. Bonisteel says: "The great success of the show is due to the wonderful publicity and help received from the working members of the Horticultural Society and elderly friends of horticulture; the members of the City Parks Board and also Mr. W. B. Deacon, who acted as chairman of the local committee. The local committee of the Gladiolus Society are exceedingly grateful to the citizens for the generously donated prizes, which made one of the best prize lists ever offered. The Sport Eye Column

Contributed By PAIR PLAY
Boosts and Pair Criticism

Errors, errors and more errors spell defeat for the local National League team and that gets four runs as cheaply as the Pirates did yesterday should give themselves a pat on the back.

I'm not trying to take any of the glory of the win away from the Pirates but I am satisfied that they are "sweet runners." They are a much different team once they get the lead.

It was a great game for the Pirates, win and lose it was a tough one for the Nats. to drop. But you can't beat the ball and win ball games, boys.

"Tammie" Jamieson buried the best game of his career, while Tommy Poynter seemed to be throwing them in the direct all afternoon. At that it was no fault of Painter's that the locals lost.

Defensively the Pirates never looked better, after the fourth innings. Offensively they did not look so good all afternoon for all they could collect was four measley hits in nine innings. That's tough on any pitcher.

At that all the hits that the Nats got you could put into an eye dropper. Six was their limit, they had a chance of a life time in the 8th but Jamieson was too good for them. (then.)

The flare up between Quinn said "Peeny" Mills was uncalled for. They both should have been "chased." In the first place Quinn had no right jumping into Mills, that's not baseball and again Mills should have held his head and perhaps the umpire would have dealt with Mr. Quinn.

But there is one consolation, the Nats have Gibson in the hole and Poynter as a relief man, but who have Kingston got to pitch on Friday? Jamieson put everything that he had on each pitch and will not be able to last for a week. I'll bet.

All roads lead to Kingston Friday. Especially after yesterday's game.

Manager Vern Weir is trying to get the services of Ernie Smith, the Moose jawbox pitcher, in place of "Cliff" Smith. If the O.B.A.A. are out to foster and promote minor league ball they will grant Weir's request. The injury to "Cliff" Smith was a blow to the B.A. A.A.

The return game with the Peters, Junkers will be played at 215 p.m. Saturday at the Fair Grounds. After the game in Peterboro we should see a real smart battle, I'd think.

Did you hear the fast one that the CIACO club tried to pull? It seems that they played in Kingston on Sunday evening against the Kingston Capitals and when they returned to town they informed Pres. Woodley that they had won by the score of 14 to 13. (Great stuff.)

But Mr. President, smelling a rat, phoned Kingston only to find out that the locals had lost by the score of 11 to 10. Oh Well! that's one way of TRYING to win.

I might add that it is rumored that player Patterson's case has not been aired by the B.A.A.A. as yet. Why take it to the "Parent Body" everyone knows that he is not eligible.

Because after last night's game Manager Shaw of Kingston stated that player Patterson did not have her release until after July 11th.

But the CIACO girls are making hay while the sun shines. Their win over the Belle City Pirates last night by the score of 11 to 10, puts them back in the league running. The Frait girls are playing in Kingston tonight.

The meet fun that the fans got last night was when umpire Collins got his feet all tangled up and fell at first base. But I noticed that he called the play at that base O.K., even if he was trying to take a snooze on the job.

It was good to see a police man clear the field, this should be done every game.

The Prince's bowled up with Foubert at Queen Mary School grounds last night and the game had to be called on account of darkness but the Princes came out in the lead by the close score of 12 to 11.

MIND CANNOT GRASP TASK

The immensity of the calamity which has fallen upon China cannot be grasped. The statement that thirty millions are homeless and that at least one third of these are quite destitute is staggering but the facts are so many times worse than any conception of them which could be formed even by the imagination. The great Yangste's overflowing has brought a disaster which will require all the aid of the organizations of Christendom and Oriental countries to cope with them.

Millions without shelter and millions without food and clothing. It is stark tragedy. The suffering and the loss of life which will follow these calamities call for the open-handed sympathy of all nations.

Some day perhaps even China will be able to prevent such disasters by engineering works but for many years to come this great land will be the sport of nature when she grows reckless in storm and flood and drought.

NEW LAW ON DOG BITING

May a dog bite once and his owner escape the consequences? Or may it be the first bite which brings the owner and dog to grief?

There is an old idea that the law allows the dog one bite but this is entirely wrong according to the Toronto Globe. The same opinion has been expressed here again and again that the owner cannot be expected to know that his dog will bite a human being until he does bite some one. Meanwhile the someone suffers.

The Star's comment upon this follows:

"On this account the law has been lenient with owners whose animals have been 'first offenders.' But if the dogs themselves once enjoyed any immunity under such circumstances, the law now makes it clear that they may be sentenced to the death penalty for even their first taste of human being. If they sample an arm or a leg, they die—provided that a magistrate says so.

"The Vicious Dogs Act, 1931,' is not long, but its single provision appears to cover the situation quite adequately. It says:

"'Where a dog is alleged to have bitten any person, the owner of the dog may be summoned to appear before a police magistrate to show cause why the dog should not be destroyed, and if from the evidence produced it appears that the dog has bitten any person, the magistrate may make an order that the dog be destroyed.'

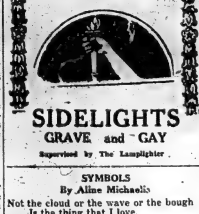
"Little has been said about this new legislation in the press, but it is well that all dog-owners should know of it and realize that the one-bite doctrine is a legal heresy which the courts will not entertain."

GLADIOLUS SHOW

What work can accomplish was never more clearly demonstrated than in the success of the Canadian Gladiolus show in Belleville which closed last night. On all hands by those who have attended exhibitions in the past and who know what has been the record of the society since its organization ten years ago, the opinion has been expressed that the exhibition is the finest the society has ever had, both on score of the variety and quality of the blooms and the excellence of the arrangements.

To the officers and members of the society of course the credit goes for their tireless work on behalf of the gladiolus organization.

The local body who assisted have demonstrated their devotion to the work and to them in a small way is due the success which has been achieved, making the Belleville exhibition second to none and probably superior to any ever held in Canada.



Mrs. George A. Bonisteel, who has been the prime spirit in bringing the exhibition to Belleville, has been tireless in her work in this regard for the past year and she today must feel the reward of the interest she has shown in the society's welfare. The society's opinion of Mrs. Bonisteel is indicated in two ways, by the naming of her as one of the vice presidents and also in presenting her with a silver flower basket of exquisite workmanship. Mrs. Bonisteel had the wholehearted support of the local horticulturists in her endeavor for the welfare of the society and its exhibition.

WITH THE FLOWERS

The Canadian Gladilus Society has served to bring to the attention of the people of Belleville the place the gladiolus holds in the hearts of the people and in the color scheme but also to indicate how the love of the finer is brought out and developed in the culture of flowers. Nature has painted these things of beauty but man has enriched the colors and hues by patient industry, study and love of plants. The beauty of the garden flowers of today show how far man has carried his interest in floriculture.

Flowers have been an emblem through the ages since before written history began. They have not lost their symbol and their power to develop man. Association with flowers and study of their possibility of development arouse the highest ideals in man.

The society serves its purpose well if it cultivates the interests of community in the art of flower growing. Beautiful cities result from the wholehearted interest of citizens in gardening and in lawn decoration in which flowers play no mean part.

SYMBOLS

By Aline Michaelis

Not the cloud of the leaf or the bough
Is the thing that I love,
Though I linger till dusk turns to dark
As the sky's pageant move,

Though I find in the voice of the sea
Always comfort and peace,
And that deep in the forest's green aisles
Care will grant me release,

Through the glory of cloud-flight I look
To the glory beyond,
And I seek for the stars in the sky,
Not the stars in the pond.

Not earth's beauties before me that move,
But hid beauties I guess,
And it is not loved hands that I love,
But the love they express.

ANOTHER RADIO FEATURE went on the air Tuesday, "The Corner Drug Store" presenting five characters in a small town, k is "Amos and Andy" and others. Sounds like it might make good. WEAF-WBEN network. Tune in and try it out. Summer radio is generally pretty dull but the series of band concerts just concluded on "The Mall", Central Park, New York, by Franko Goldman and his band provided wonderful entertainment for those who listened in. These concerts were made possible through the generosity of a multimillionaire named Guggenheim who amassed wealth in all parts of the globe in large scale mining enterprises, such as steam dredging for gold in the Yukon, and he used his wealth on the land of golden harps and streets left a large sum of money to provide good music for the masses. Seth Parker at Jonesport, Maine, still retains popularity in the Sunday evening "githerings", with Ma, Cephas, the Captain, Lizzie and the rest who by the way are now in Hollywood making a talkie, but still putting their programme on the air Sunday evenings Stebbins Brothers of Buckport, Maine, have a large following at 6.46 WGY, every day but Saturday and Sunday, then of course this brings many into the taxicab office at 7 p.m. to listen to "Amos and Andy", and the sad tale of Hiyabunnyboo, Potatobusky, Madame Queen, Kingfish, Brother Crawford's Wife, Lightning, and the rest of the characters taken by this clever duo. Some people say they are tired of Amos and Andy, that their stuff has fallen off. Some of it we admit, is weak, but occasionally they have a flash which makes up for all the weak sisters preceding—like the other night when Andy told Amos the sad news of the March of the Men of Harlech, or somethin, including his dear old Grandpaw, Grandma, and two uncles, with two cousins in reserve down south just waiting for a favorable request when all the kin folks get good jobs managing Andy's various companies. Then there is the Mormon Choir from Salt Lake City with the mightiest organ in the world every Monday evening at fifteen minutes past nine o'clock. "Real Folks" of course at 9.30 Monday evening, with Sneed and Elmer and the rest are always popular. For those who like band music Arthur Pryor's band daily at 8 p.m. is good entertainment. Those are my favorites, let's hear yours.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND WORDS—no less words, constitute the net result of President Hoover's attempt to find out what was wrong with Law Observance and Enforcement in the United States. The Wickersham Commission, the same body which made such a fearful and wonderful report on prohibition, one which pleased the prohibitionists and also the anti's, and had something of comfort for every one concerned, reported on Law Observance and Enforcement in the United States, just 250,000 words, which reduced to words of one syllable meant just this "There aint no sich animile" as Law Observance and Enforcement in the United States, as regards some of the major crimes.

DISTINCTIVE FURS OF LATEST FASHIONS

Geo. T. Woodley Manufacturing Furrier of Long Experience

What woman does not, at least secretly, covet beautiful furs? By instinct, furs are the pride of every woman's heart. Through careful buying furs have become no more extravagant than once were. A good fur garment will last for years, and the wearer can feel that she is always well dressed. If you are looking for distinctive and attractive furs that assure utmost satisfaction, see Geo. T. Woodley. Fashionable women seek their furs there. This store has shown that it pays to buy only the best in furs. They have built permanently through satisfied customers. The wisdom of permanent returns rather than transient ones is shown in their large clientele.

Care should be exercised in the preservation of the furs during the Summer months. The appearance of a fur coat depends almost entirely upon the care it is given when not in use. Injuries such as heat, dampness and moths will take their toll of even the best of furs, so it pays to see that a resident of the warmer realtor in your line be sent for storage at Woodley's.

Many years of experience in the fur business has enabled this firm to handle all manufacturing, repairing or remodeling that may be required, featuring special custom made to order garments. This work is all done in accordance with the latest fashions and most up-to-date model. Furs represent a costly investment, yet they are not expensive if the proper care and direction is used each spring and Summer. Bring that they are cared for and remodelled to the newest fashion.

The courtesy and excellent service shown at Woodley's makes it a pleasure for both men and women to shop there. The husband who is looking for a suitable fur for his wife or daughter can be assured of satisfaction in his selection for them.

The Woodley name is high recognition in business circles of this community. He is to be congratulated upon his many years of service and ability in this line. Do you know how many years this business has been established in Belleville?

Other Papers' Opinions

DOESN'T DRINK, SMOKE OR PLAY GOLF

Premier Bennett is spending a well earned rest basking in congratulations in the West. This means that the Premier is laid up very much to form. His idea of a holiday is more work. Even the sick people might argue that he has been on holiday since he took over a year ago.

To be described as a "dubious quantity" may be a "dubious compliment" but may mean that a man is overtaxing his capabilities. Premier Bennett seems to thrive on what would kill the ordinary individual. Take a look at his record during the past year and you'll understand why he doesn't drink, smoke or play golf.—Toronto Telegram.

COMIC-STRIP CIVILIZATION

The American comic strip, celebrating the strivalings and re-polits of an energetic cast of merry sucking characters—reaching all the way from the cunning young sleth to garrulous men of affairs—is now shared with fifty-eight different nations, according to a report issued by a newspaper syndicate.

True, the dialogue contained in those "balloons" so gracefully attached by the artists to individual speakers, has undergone considerable translation to render it intelligible to various nationalities, but in every essential particular the comic strip goes on its wayish way unchanged to add to the world's store of amusement. Humor speaks a universal language. One reason for the comic strip's ability to overlap the barriers of time and place is probably its emphasis on ludicrous experiences which might easily happen to anyone in any land. Most newspapers must deal with detached fragments of prosaic facts, somewhat local in their application, and with no memorable personality to give such items continuous dramatic value. The comic strip, on the other hand, uses the art of repetition cleverly and sometimes. It keeps its characters—villain, hero and heroine—busy day after day, flinging them into situations which call for resourcefulness and pluck—not to mention some credulity on the part of the reader—only to plunge them in the fresh adventure on the morrow. "To be continued"—that always provokes a chuckle. The magazine itself—is interwoven now into most of the episodes pictured by the artist, so that the comic strip with its household pet-and-ink characters gathers and cultivates the interest and loyalty of devoted followers over a succession of years. The hero or the heroine remain the same, undismayed by the knocks and buffetings of a whimsical fate, always ready to meet the challenge of the next chapter with courage and good humor.—C. S. Monitor.

BACK TO THEIR KNITTING

According to the dictum of Parisian authority there is to be a revival of the old-fashioned habit of knitting. It is to include a return to home-made knitted blouses, sweaters and scarfs, as well as berets and hats.

This has its attractive points. The last knitting revival, it will be remembered, during the Great War, when it became by very definite practice to take knitting needles and wool to the theatre, and even to church, and knit stockings, mufflers, and helmets for the boys at the front. History records the astonishing rate at which the majority of such articles were put on the scrap heap at the armistice, wiping of boots, and a hundred and one other utilitarian employments never dreamed of by the gentle knitters.

The new idea, however, is more practical. It will excite an economic move, if it devices into anything of tangible volume. And anything that is practically economical is to be commended today.—Montreal Star.

Poet's Corner

THE TWO ROADS

When he was young and days were full and bright,
He came through every kind of youthful fight
By winning well.
No praising word his many friends would speak,
But someone came and whispered
he was weak.
And so he fell.
When he was frail and bled by sorrow's pain
And shunned the fight and would not face again
A hill so long,
There came a voice, as if from hopeless grave,
That called him strong and said that he was brave.
And he was strong.

Presentation and Address in Rawdon

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 11th, friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. John Ketcheson, Chisholm Mills, to do honour to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson, were married on June 30th, and to spend a social evening with them and present them with a beautiful walnut table.

The following address was read by Miss Velma Chapman—

Dear Emma,—

We, your friends and neighbours have gathered here tonight, that we might enjoy a social time with you and to some extent show a mark of appreciation of your life and service amongst us. You have grown up with us and we have learned to realize your helpfulness and assistance in various ways. As a neighbour, you have always been ready and willing to lend a helping hand when opportunity presented itself. In church work you have always done your duty and will therefore be missed in the capacity.

And now that Cupid has designed that you should live apart from us we ask you to accept this gift as a slight indication of our esteem for you and trust you may ever look upon it in future years, your memory will flash back to happy days spent with loving friends and neighbours in this community. We are pleased to learn that you have not flown so far away but that we may hope to see you occasionally. We wish you every happiness and all the blessings that Heaven can bestow. Signed on behalf of the community,—

Mrs. H. Chisholm, Mrs. Wm Weir, Mrs. H Palmer, Nettie Alyea, Velma Chapman.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman both thanked their friends for their kindness and extended a hearty invitation for all to come and see them in their own home at Rawdon.

After partaking of a beautiful lunch, the remainder of the evening was spent with cards and dancing.

KINGSTON PONIES WINS FIRST GAME IN LEAGUE PLAYOFF DEFEATING NATIONALS BY 4-2

Jamieson and Pointer Hooked up in Pitching Duel, Local Hurler Having Slight Edge But Received Mediocre Support. Scanlon, Mills, Scott and Quinn for Kingston Supplied Fielding Features. Ponies Scored All Runs on Four Errors and Scratch Single Return Game Played Friday in Kingston.

By C. D. T.

Riding on the crest of a two run margin, the defense of the Belleville Nationals crumpled in the final frame and the Kingston Ponies, taking advantage of the misplays, shoved over four runs the final score being 6-2, which defeated the Nationals in the first game of a three game series for the championship of the K. Green Memorial Cup. The fair grounds on Wednesday afternoon. The second game will be played in Kingston on Friday afternoon and the coach will have to perform a miracle, providing the Ponies repeat the win and duplication such as they displayed in this city, to get on even terms.

Jamieson Win

These two teams finished first and second in the league schedule with Belleville on the top rung but they played like bush leaguers instead of league leaders in the fatal fifth. The Reds have a better team than Kingston but they did not turn in the sparkling exhibition of the winners, who looked the better team on the afternoon's play. It was just a case of one team being able to do everything right and the losers to do everything wrong. The Nationals did not get a break in the game and they had little luck to fall to manufacture one. It was their poorest display in a fielding sense for some time but probably the bad game is out of their system. It seemed a shame, that a fine hurling effort, displayed by Tommy Pointer could not have been better rewarded but that is what makes the game of baseball popular.

Play Causes Small Riot

The bad of feeling has not been manifest between those two teams all summer and the fued broke out in the fifth and for a time it looked as if the umps were going to have a busy afternoon. Jack Quinn and "Pessey" Mills came to grips at the plate, when Quinn rode in rather high and soon the members of both squads were milling around at the plate. Some blows were struck but the combatants were soon parted and the game proceeded. Alex Kay who officiated behind the plate, did not banish anyone from the game but he nevertheless read the riot act and the players were on their best behavior for the remainder of the tussle. Mills had a right to play for the man and Quinn should not have jumped at the player with both feet in. Considerable "riding" took place all through the contest and it will be a bitter struggle on Friday in Kingston.

Pointer Hurled Well

Tommy Pointer hurled a game that would ordinarily have been in the win column but for the miscues of his team mates at critical junctures, he helping the cause along with a few errors. The elongated southpaw restricted the opposition to four hits, none of them counting for extra bases and only one was damaging, that being the single struck by Scrutton in the fifth which scored two runs. He walked four of the opposition but none of the free trips figured in the scoring. He curve ball and fast one had the Ponies guessing and nine of them were retired by the strike-out route. Most of the afternoon they were hitting in self defense. On three occasions he made Boyd, Smith and Vince look foolish when he whizzed the third strike by them with their bats still on their shoulders. Except for the one miscue he fielded his position faultlessly and should have had a shut-out.

Jamieson Well Supported

On the other hand Harry Jamieson hurled one of his best games. He has been bothered with a sore arm all summer and has again rounded into form. He kept the six hits, one a double by "Pessey"

Mills, well scattered and in one instance were unable to score. He struck out five of the Nationals and did not issue a walk. He used principally a straight fast one but kept it well inside and the heavy hitters of the locals were lashed to the mast. It was not alone his hurling that won the pastime, but the excellent and sometimes sensational support that he received from his team mates. In this respect Jake Quinn must have a niche in the hall of fame. It was his steady playing at the keystone sack that turned defeat into victory. Twice when Belleville were staging a rally Quinn went far to his right, the hardest play in point for an infielder, grabbed torrid grounders and threw his man out first. He literally robbed Alex Weir of two hits by his brilliant fielding. McQuade and Vince gathered in tricky hoists in the other garden with Scrutton standing the strain right with a near shoe string catch. The Nationals fielded well excepting for the fatal fifth and it was simply bad baseball.

Comedy of Errors

Bob Scott has been in the habit for some time past of pulling his throws to the first sack but this cost the Nationals at least two runs in the game on Wednesday. Twice he had an opportunity to throw a man out at the plate and each time his throw was inaccurate. In both instances, he was playing too far back for the situation at hand as the bases were filled and it was necessary to cut off the run at the plate, providing the ball did not go through the infield. Cretney Pointer made a bad 'oss in this frame and Alex Weir and Earl Green both made boners at critical times, although the error of Weir's probably was not so costly as the man was turned back at the plate.

Still Have Chance

Walter Cerow has still another bet up his sleeve and will use it on Friday in Kingston. "Hoot" Gibson will wear black the day thicker and he should turn the Ponies back. Jamieson will likely be sent back at the Nationals and full credit must be given him if he can turn the trick again but a hurler's arm don't recuperate after a tough game that fast. Cretney will be used in the game in Kingston, but where he will be placed is a problem. Darrah is a better fielding first baseman than Cretney but he will not hit as heavy and that is what wins the ball game. The players are dumbfounded by the result of the game but they are not down-hearted. The Nationals have been in tougher spots before and they will be in there fighting on Friday night. A goodly number of the fans should accompany the team. The game will be played at the fair grounds in Kingston and it will start sharp at five-thirty daylight saving time.

RENDERING A REAL SERVICE TO BELLEVILLE

Ernie's Tasty Yeast Doughnuts Healthful and Delicious Product

Foremost among the leading commercial enterprises of this section is one of more recent inception concerned, namely: Ernie's Tasty Yeast Doughnut Bakery; this business started only three short months ago with an idea, and has expanded in that short time until today it is employing eight men and has two trucks giving a daily service to over two hundred dealers throughout this territory. Most of you will recall the pleasant memories of youth when without permission you found your way into mother's doughnut jar after the morning bake. With our modern ways we cannot experience that thrill again unless we patronize this modern concern, Ernie's Tasty Yeast Doughnuts are a yeast raised doughnut made from carefully selected ingredients, and baked by the most sanitary and up-to-date methods possible. They are delicious and nutritious, and are daily meeting with greater favor as is evidenced by the growth and expansion of this business.

This firm is doing a large and increasing business although the territory and have a host of satisfied customers who insist on having Ernie's Tasty Yeast Doughnuts. Anyone who has not experienced the pleasure of biting into one of these delicious doughnuts should visit their local grocer, or call the bakery direct and learn for yourself what a substantial and tasty dessert is a light meal these doughnuts make.

This local home-owned and home operated business is to be commended not only for its modern business methods but for the fact that it has given recent employment to five Belleville people and also for the fact that its unsold doughnuts are daily distributed among the less fortunate at the County Home, City Old People's Home and the Children's Shelter. We predict for this firm continued prosperity and a bright future, so you know how many dozen Tasty Yeast Doughnuts have been made by this firm since it became established?

Kenneth Grills, 29 Isobel St., was adjudged the winner in today's "Do You Know" contest. The answers submitted by him were original and correct in every detail.

The "Do You Know" contest consists of several news stories each day which appear in The Ontario Intelligencer. The stories, describing various Belleville businesses, are scattered through the paper. Six of the articles will be found distributed through this edition. Each of the stories end by asking a question, however, this is not a guessing contest. To compete in the contest it is only necessary to call the firms of which the stories are written and they will gladly give you the answer to the question in the article regarding them.

Do not enter the answer alone. Only complete sets of answers are eligible for prizes. Each day a complete list is filed. By way of example, there are six articles in this edition. All of the six firms must be called, and the set of six answers submitted. The Ontario Intelligencer is paying daily a three dollar cash prize to the reader submitting the nearest best constructed answers.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 10

(Metropolitan Newspaap er Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

During that first year, Greystoke was several times attacked by the great apes. But he never again ventured outside without both rifle and revolvers. He had straightened the cabin and fitted locks to the door, so he had little fear of the huge beasts now continually infesting the vicinity.

In his leisure, Greystoke read, often aloud to his wife from the store of books he had brought. Among these were many for little children. Also he wrote in his dairy recording the details of their strange life and this book he kept locked in a little metal box. It was written in French.

A year from the day her little son was born, Lady Greystoke passed quietly away in the night. Her end was peaceful and the horror of the situation came to him very slowly—the fearful responsibility that had devolved upon him with the care of his still nursing infant son.

The last entry in his diary was made the morning following her death and there he recites the sad details in a matter-of-fact way that adds to the pathos, sorrow, and hopelessness of this cruel blow: "My little son is crying for nourishment—O Alice, Alice—what shall I do?"

And as Lord Greystoke wrote the last words his hand was destined ever to pen, he dropped his head wearily into his arms upon the table. For a long time no sound broke the death-like stillness of the jungle save the piteous wailings of the tiny, hungry man-child. Then game the appeal

Get Back Into Position Looking Towards Play-off

Under a barrage of hits the Ciaco girls pulled themselves back into a playoff position by running from the Belleville Fruit by the score of 21 to 10 last night. The game was filled with hasty hitting throughout and it was a battle royal in the fifteenth with the girls from Corbyville outslugging the Fruit lassies.

Both teams were forced to use two pitchers in order to try and quell the heavy hitting that was in progression. Ada Hull led the hitters with three home runs and two doubles out of six times at bat. Right fielder Hall was also in the limelight with the Ciaco team collecting five of the eight four-base clouts.

Tonight the Belleville Fruit play the Kingston Capitols in the Limestone City and a defeat for the "Orealites" will cause a tie for second place with the Maple Leafs. Ciaco and Belleville Fruit battling it out to see what team meets the National Maids in the final series.

Line-ups:

Belleville Fruit—Cains, Bonley, Leavey, M. Cruji, Bailey, Finger, Rushworth, J. Cruji, Cook and Lewis.

PRINTERS 12 FOXBORO 11

In a game packed with thrills and excitement in which both teams participated, the Printers nosed out the Foxboro entry in the Belleville and District Softball League by the odd run in the seventh innings at Queen Mary School grounds last evening.

It was a hectic battle from the start with Foxboro leading the newspaper men all the way until the seventh frame when the Printers ran wild and landed the opposing teams pitcher all over the lot. In the eight innings both teams collected a number of runs but owing to darkness the game was called with the score reverting back to the seventh innings which gave the Printers a one-run victory.

A large crowd was in attendance and thoroughly enjoyed the exhibition.

SUBSCRIBERS
GET REPRIEVE

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—(CP)—Regulations governing the revised duties against foreign newspapers, magazines and periodicals mailed into Canada, were issued by the Department of National Revenue. They will become effective Sept. 1 except the 15 cent duty against newspapers and newspapers which will not come into force until regularly proclaimed by the Government.

It was set forth in the regulations that the higher duties will not become effective until April 1, 1932 against Canadians who had subscribed to foreign magazines or periodicals before June 1, 1931. This delayed action will mean several months' grace to bona fide subscribers of the latter date.

The effect of the duties and the regulations was to segregate magazines and periodicals. Daily newspapers will continue to enter this country free of duty. Magazines with an advertising content ranging between 30 and 80 per cent. of the total space will pay a duty of two cents a copy. When the advertising content exceeds 80 per cent. the tariff will be five cents a copy. Magazines in which the reading content does not exceed 20 per cent. of the total space are those in the interests of religion, education, science, agriculture, fraternal or fraternal organizations will bear no duty.

Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal treatment must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. FOGGY WEATHER HOLDS UP FLIER

Nemuro, Japan, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Foggy weather forced Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh to abandon hope of resuming their flight to Petropavlovsk today and prepared to spend another night afoot off Paramushiro, northernmost link of the Kurile Archipelago.

Messages to Colonel Lindbergh's wireless station here from the steamer Shinsyu Maru said that vessel had towed the Lindbergh's pontooned monoplane to a more sheltered cove of the island than that in which it landed late yesterday upon being forced down a second time in the attempted flight from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, to Nemuro. Changing breezes prompted the moving of the plane.

McMULLEN AND TOWNSEND PICNIC

A very enjoyable time was had on Sunday last when through invitation of Mr. and Mrs. George O'Neil, Deloro, Ontario, brought about a reunion of the Townsend and McMullen kinsmen.

About seventy-five partook of a great feast, after which ice cream and cold drinks were served. Later in the afternoon the young people flocked to the bathing beach.

Everyone being in favor of another picnic next year, a council was held by a few of the ladies present to decide what would be done. It was decided that it should take place the last Wednesday in August at Oak Lake. A number of officers were elected to carry on the program for the coming year.

It is hoped that a larger crowd will gather another year. Any reader who on either side are heartily invited to attend the next reunion picnic.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Panchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Panchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Panchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, who she never saw. The plane crashes and Panchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn. A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Collin Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapade and her self-righteous attitude when his mother entered aid, but Panchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Panchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Panchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances. Tony informs Panchon that Evelyn is alive but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Panchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Gilli."

CHAPTER XXI

She said scornfully,

"Your word against mine! You have no proof. Or if you have, it is the sort of proof which would place you, yourself, in the hands of the police."

"I think," he told her, with a certain deadly courtesy, "that you don't mean that. Or, haven't thought ahead. For word of her niece, Mrs. Carstairs might be quite willing to keep my presence in New York from San Francisco headquarters."

Panchon said, fighting for time,

"But Evelyn—not there—in an institution!"

"She isn't out there," he told her gently, "she is here with me. I was permitted to bring her here. She is perfectly harmless. I have a woman to take care of her. A perfectly responsible woman, of excellence of comp, I had every right to look after her. She is well treated. It would not rest easy on your conscience, would it, if she were less well treated.

"Tony—"

"Listen, Panchon," he went on, as she grew cold and sick all over, "listen! If you will do as I ask—and what I ask of you is simplicity itself, I will say nothing. You may go on being Evelyn Howard for the rest of time as far as I am concerned. This girl upstairs, with the child's mind, shall not suffer. If it becomes expedient for me to change the manner of my living and my household, I will put her in some home where she will be well cared for the rest of her life. No danger from her; for you. Of course," he went on, "if they should decide to operate."

"What do you mean?" asked Panchon, frantically.

"There is just a chance of her regaining her memory and her wits. A very faint chance. There is something at the base of the brain, an abscess, I understand. In all events, some pressure. It is a dangerous operation, and when I first saw her her general health was not good in physical condition. It was out of the question to operate then. Build her health up," they told me. They also told me that the best brain specialist, the best brain surgeon, was in this part of the country. I have not consulted him. Perhaps I never shall."

Panchon said, slowly:

"You must. I must."

"Not so fast.....It is one chance in a thousand. She might, she is very likely to die under the operation. Better play the game my way. Let's me send in Cesare Gilli's card to you. I ask nothing more."

"But what is your game?" she demanded, desolately.

"Oh that," he smiled, "I am not so sure. But I am sure that unless you comply—Would you care to see Evelyn?" he asked suddenly. "Of course, strangers upset her....and it will be something of a shock to you....."

She said, desperately:

"No....no.....not that!" Then pulling herself together she thought, I must. I must go through with it. Then, I suppose, of my punishment. She said, aloud: "Yes, Tony ..."

He looked at her and his dark eyes flickered. He shrugged and said:

"No, I have—changed my mind. Another time, perhaps."

She rose to her feet. It was growing late. She must get back as soon as possible.

"Have you decided?" he asked her.

There was no way out. She said, faintly:

"Very well."

There was a dark flash of triumph in the eyes holding her own. He said:

"Thank you." And bowed, with a stilted, formal courtesy.

"When?" she asked, dimly.

"Let me see, I must," he looked down at his lounge suit, well cut and dark in color but a little worn. "I must prepare myself to do justice to your unexpected invitation. Shall we say, the day after tomorrow? If you are not at home," he added quickly, "I shall come again."

He took her to the door, opened it, leaned against it and watched her down the steps. When she had walked a step from the house, he laughed shortly and turned indoors again.

Panchon picked up a taxi at the corner. She directed the driver to take her to New York and to leave her at a corner some blocks below the apartment house. She walked the rest of the way and fear and self-disgust walked with her. One of the worst moments in her life was when, a few minutes later, she had to reply to Mrs. Carstairs' affectionate greeting, had to hear from Collin, pacing the living room with his hands in his pockets, that he thought she'd never come home, and had she bought out the shops? She hadn't, she told them, remembering, bought anything at all.

Jennie Carstairs and Collin watched her that night with some curiosity. She looked tired. She had used rouge, an unusual camouflage for her. Her gaiety was forced, over a bridge table later, and her laughter. What, they wondered, had happened to her? Jennie, however, had her own heartsick solution, for it would not be long now before Collin would be sailing, for England, on the first stage of his journey to the Far East. Jennie thought unhappily, she does care for him; I was, after all, mistaken.

Two days later, when Jennie Carstairs came home from an afternoon spent in arguing with the other members of a certain charity committee and came home tired, thinking of a quiet talk with her son and her niece, thinking of rest and relaxation, she was met at the door by Jameson with the information that Miss Evelyn had not yet returned to the apartment.

On her way to her bedroom, Jennie glanced into the drawing room, fancying that perhaps Evelyn was entertaining one of the girls she knew or one of the unlimited young men. To her astonishment, she saw her niece deep in animated conversation with a man who was perfectly strange to Jennie. A dark young man, very Latin in appearance, very graceful, very well dressed, who stood over by the window and held a cigarette loosely in his fingers. Jennie moved away, but Panchon looked up and saw her.

"Aunt Jennie," she said, and Mrs. Carstairs noticed her painful flush. The stranger move away from the window.

Jennie Carstairs came into the room. She had a magnificent silver fox fur over one arm. She had pearls at her throat and in her ears. All this the young man noticed. The Carstairs jewels were rather famous. Some of them Jennie rarely wore as they adorned a safe deposit vault instead.

Panchon rose.

"Aunt Jennie, may I present my old friend, Mr. Cesare Gilli?" she said, quietly, but her heart was leaden within her.

Demand Removal of Those Liberal Leaders Connected With Beauharnois

Toronto, Aug. 20—Young Liberals of Toronto stepped into the political picture last night with an unqualified demand for a full discussion of campaign funds at the big rally of Ontario Liberals at London next October.

In a carefully prepared statement, John L. Wilson, president of the 20th Century Liberal Association, not only outlined the attitude of his association in regard to the Beauharnois mess, but came out unequivocally for a clean-up within the party.

Contending that Liberals were in an embarrassing position, Mr. Wilson declared his association ready for a thorough house-cleaning, and announced that they would seek the removal from positions of influence and trust those in the party who were responsible for accepting contributions from Beauharnois interests.

Text of Statement

The statement follows:

"We feel that the recent disclosures with respect to contributions to the campaign funds of the Liberal Party makes necessary at this time a statement of our position.

"Organized a little over a year ago, this association has met with success and has contributed in no small degree to the election of many Liberal candidates. We attribute our strength to the fact that we have appealed to the young people of the province to take a wholesome, active interest in politics to the end that we may enjoy sound progressive government.

"As a result of the recent disclosures, however, we are placed for the moment in an embarrassing position. It is unthinkable that the whole Liberal Party is under a stigma as the result of the actions of a comparatively few individuals. We therefore condemn absolutely those, wherever they may be, who were responsible for accepting the contributions which have humiliated the party. We think, moreover, that the only course of action which can be taken to restore the party to its position is that which calls for the removal from positions of influence and trust those who were responsible for accepting the contributions referred to above.

"There will be an annual meeting of the Ontario Liberal Association at London on October 25. At that meeting we will demand a full discussion of campaign funds contributions and that effective steps be taken to ensure that the Liberal party will not be tied to particular interests, but will be free to consider the welfare of the people at large."

COL. LAWRENCE IN A FRESH ROLE

Plymouth, England, Aug. 20—Aircraftman T. E. Shaw, known to the world as Colonel Lawrence, the uncrowned King of Arabia, is the central figure in a secret Royal Air Force development at the seaport base here.

One of the most spectacular craft to take part in the preparations for the Schneider Trophy race next month is a blue and aluminum 100 horse power speedboat of mystery-ship, which dashes across Plymouth Sound at fifty miles an hour.

Watchers from Plymouth Hoe, torturing telescopes on the strange boat, see at the tiller a small swirling man in Air Force blue, with fair hair, and blue, resolute eyes. He is Aircraftman Shaw.

He is sometimes in charge of a three launch, which, with the speed boat, will be held in readiness during the Schneider race. Their terrific speed has been developed that they may dash to save the lives of the world's fastest airmen should new seaplane crafts in the sea.

Aircraftman Shaw has been test ing these craft, and their maximum speeds are known only to him and to the authorities of the Air Ministry.

She was rushed across the lake to Pleasant Point, where Dr. Morgan, eye specialist, has his summer home, and afterwards to Ross Memorial Hospital with the hook still firmly lodged in the eye.

SELECTION OF PROPER HAT IS IMPORTANT

Outstanding Millinery Service is Featured by Mr. Maude Campbell

No part of a woman's wearing apparel makes or assists her appearance more than does her hat, and what style is needed to set just the right touch to complete the costume is always found at Miss Campbell's Millinery Shop. The proprietress of this establishment has keened judgment and is always glad to help one in selecting the proper hat. Her taste is unerring and the people of Belleville and vicinity are indeed fortunate in having a millinery shop under her capable management so conveniently located. To successfully operate a millinery store and to make a study of human nature is necessary, together with the study of colors, and one's suitability to different colors. Miss Campbell is a past master in such studies and shows a discrimination seldom found outside of metropolitan centres. Snappy, high quality hats at reasonable prices have ever been her motto.

During the time this establishment has served this section, it has gained a reputation that reaches far beyond the limits of the community. There, at least expense, may be obtained the best in millinery. Keeping in the main the thrill of changing seasons, all the lovely new creations will be found displayed at Maude Campbell's Millinery Shop—the smartest for informal wear; the most exclusive for formal wear.

The discriminating women and misses for miles around will find it advantageous to visit this exclusive and attractive establishment. WIFE OF PREMIER MAY BAKE BREAD

Toronto, Aug. 20.—Premier Geo. S. Henry's wife is considering following out Premier Farmer-husband's suggestion that she bake her own bread in order to overcome her present staling-laying down process for baker's bread while her husband's wheat is worth only 46 cents a bushel.

"My son and I were just talking about the difference in the price the farmer receives and the price the consumer pays," Mrs. Henry told the Star as the reporter arrived at the premier's Oriole Lodge farm to ask the son about dairying conditions.

"Isn't the difference terrible?" she said. "Mr. Henry was saying the other day that if I didn't want to pay so much for bread, I could bake my own. I think I'll take him up on that," she laughingly confided.

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference it makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without fear of indigestion.

GRASSHOPPER PLAGUE

Winnipeg, Aug. 20—Farmers of Canada and the United States are being urged by governments to check a threatened grasshopper plague in 1932, by using man-made devices to destroy the millions of eggs. A rainy season would keep down the pests to normal numbers, it is asserted, but preventive work is advocated.

Two methods have been suggested. One is to plough the land this Autumn so deep that eggs now being laid in the ground will not hatch. The other is to cultivate the surface of the ground late in the Fall so as to expose and destroy the eggs.

The Flavour could not be improved upon

So now we have added the Sunshine Vitamin D to Quaker Corn Flakes

WE could not make Quaker Corn Flakes taste better. No one could. On every package we print our guarantee: "If you do not agree this is the finest flavoured corn flakes you have ever used, we will remit you the cost of the package."

And we fully preserve this matchless flavour . . . this wonderful crispness . . . by the triple-sealed, wax-wrapped package. That is why Quaker Corn Flakes reach you with all their oven-crispness.

Now we have added the Sunshine Vitamin D, by Prof. Steenbock's process. Quaker Corn Flake is the only corn flake with this precious vitamin, which everyone needs to help them use the mineral in their food. Your teeth and bones demand mineral every day for building and repair.

Vitamin D does not alter the supreme flavour or the crispness of Quaker Corn Flakes. It does not change the price. It is a new feature which puts Quaker Corn Flakes in a class by itself as a health food. That as Quaker Corn Flakes always has been superior for its flavour and crispness.

All Quaker Corn Flakes in the stores contain Vitamin D whether so stated on the package or not.

ROMANTIC DRAMA
STARRING LILA LEE
OPENS AT CAPITOL

"Woman Hungry" is without doubt one of the most exquisite Vitaphone pictures ever filmed, Today (Silverware Gift Night) this drama of the East and West opens for a two-day run at the Capitol Theatre.

Natural colors are used throughout and many of the sequences are laid in the Navajo country of Arizona, in the midst of brilliantly colored scenes with snowcapped mountains as a background. The effects remind one of Remington paintings. The brilliant cameramen of Patrick

"Woman Hungry" is a picture of the East and the West, however, as the heroine, portrayed with such understanding by Lila Lee, is a Boston girl who tires of the humdrum of society, and decides to go West in search of adventure. There she finds more than she bargains for, goes without question.

She is bidding farewell to her brother and his wife who have been visiting her on the ranch where she is billeted, when three ruffians ride in, take possession, and at once begin threatening die for possession of her. Sidney Blackmer, brilliantly plays the leader of the trio, as Khaid, a mine owner, and his two bristling companions are brought to life by Fred Kohler and Raymond Hatton.

Lila Lee as the vivid Judith, pleads with Khaid to save her from his men, and pledges herself to him. He beats up his pals, dismisses them, captures the girl, rides with her to a justice of the peace and marries her against her protests. It is when follows, however, that makes one of the most dazzling dramas yet filmed.

Others in the cast are Kenneth Thomson, Clive Brook, J. Farrell MacDonald, Tom Dugan and Blanche Frederici. The story is based on the play by William Vaughn Moody. It is photographed entirely in Technicolor and Clarence Badger directed.

In addition there will be a comedy entitled "Hearts and Hoofs," a Sportlight Review and the up-to-the-minute programme, Giovanni Martelli singing Love's Garden of Roses. This is indeed a programme to be seen and enjoyed!

VALUE OF LIFE-SAVING KNOWLEDGE

The value of having knowledge of life-saving methods in cases of near drowning was made apparent at Windsor Fairgrounds afternoon, when a young Oshawa lad had a narrow escape from drowning. He was brought out of the water in an unconscious condition, one of those who helped bring the boy to life being Eugene Henry, another Oshawa boy. The young man happened to be a member of the Royal Life Saving Society, and his knowledge of artificial respiration methods was at once brought into play with the result that after a half an hour of hard persistent application of that knowledge, the victim was brought back to consciousness.

It might well be added that this Oshawa boy who was so nearly drowned owes his life to the fact that Mr. Henry had a thorough knowledge of the various methods to be adopted in cases of this kind. This dedicated value of every young man acquiring this same knowledge, because one never knows when it can be called into use, and lives saved thereby. There should be some opportunity presented in every community, so that life-saving can be taught, and while it is true that the boy scouts and sea scouts are given training of this kind, there is still a very wide field for useful effort in this connection.—Oshawa Times.

EMERGENCY PARTY CONFERENCE MEET TODAY

Motor Party Turn Triple Somersault Strike Tree, Escape Injury

Predictions of Fall of MacDonald Gov't Over Budget Crisis

Sudden Call Sent Out to Party Leaders This Evening

FAST CHANGES

Change in Situation Came Late in Day as Call Goes Out

London, Aug. 21.—(By George Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—The swiftly changing political scene again.

Apparently summoned in haste, the members of the Cabinet were returning to Downing Street early this evening, after the Cabinet had previously dissolved with no further meetings indicated until next week.

The Prime Minister and Chancellor of the Exchequer were joined in their conference with Liberal and Conservative party spokesmen by members of the Labor fire office Ministry—Lord Passfield, Arthur Henderson, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster; Lord Amulree, Secretary for Air; Rt. Hon. Tom Shaw, Minister for War, and H. B. Lees-Smith, President of the Board of Education.

London, Aug. 21.—(By George Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Writer—Canadian Press Cable)—The Labor Cabinet concluded its session for the day at 5.45 p.m. and no announcements have been made for Cabinet meetings tomorrow or Saturday. With this temporary cessation of Cabinet meetings the situation seems at a standstill. But it remains full of dangers and uncertainties.

As the Ministers left Downing Street they gave no indication of impending disaster, although newspapers were publishing rumors the Government's resignation was possible, and were printing the informal decision of the Trades Union Congress Council that it was opposed to the Government's economy measures.

London, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Resignation of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's Government gave a possibility today as an outgrowth of the financial emergency.

The situation became more complicated and difficult as the Cabinet maneuvered in an endeavor to reconcile Socialist divergent views as to how the budget is to be balanced and the threatened deficit of $600,000,000 extinguished.

The Prime Minister, in the face of a non-committal but clearly sympathetic attitude of the Trades Union Congress toward certain aspects of the Government economy programme, was closeted all day in action of facing a special session of Parliament and trying to put through his proposals with the support of parts of his own party, against a section of his own party.

Alienation Feared

The alienation, apparently, was to risk alienation of the Opposition for the sake of national Government. At the same time no official statement was issued as to the forthcoming, and it was not impossible that an agreement could be reached.

Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative Leader, cut short his holiday in France and hurried back here. Resignation is probably the last step Mr. MacDonald would resort to, for the presence of the leader of the chief Opposition party is considered desirable at this stage.

The Cabinet resumed its deliberations today and continued after luncheon, and the general council of the Trades Union Congress also met again.

Many Measures Fail

The latest phase of the crisis was precipitated by the Trades Union Congress which informed the Prime Minister it is entirely opposed to the economy measures effected in the past ten days by the special subcommittee of the Cabinet's "Big Five."

The council said it would favor a general tariff for revenue purposes in preference to any reduction in the social services or unemployment benefit; payment in kind would seems to be, "Hands off the Dole."

The Trades Union Congress comprises practically all the Labor Unions of the country, and has a membership of close to 4,000,000.

The Council, however, has taken no formal decision and will not do so until the annual Congress at Bristol next month. It is generally assumed the Government will go ahead with its programme in the meantime, without further negotiations with the council.

FIREMEN BUSY WITH 3 FIRES

Barn Burned on West Side and Sawdust Pile Blazes

Sweeping behind a strong east wind a marsh fire started about 3 p.m. Sunday on the Houston Lumber Company. The wind drove the flames due westward and threatened the lumber piles which belong to the Houston Company.

At time of going to press The Houston Co. stated over the telephone that they did not think the fire would reach their buildings unless the wind changed, and that so far the lumber piles had not been endangered. A shack of two rooms occupied by an employee Earl Godfrey had been damaged by smoke and water. This shack is about 100 yards from the main building.

A boat house that was in the path of the flame was somewhat damaged but the fire department by using hose streams of water checked the flames from getting to the boat house and also from behind the plant. The fire has been smouldering in the marsh for some days but it was almost impossible to completely extinguish the embers.

The department had a call this morning to No. 2 Sand Point, where a small grass fire was soon extinguished.

Following this they were called to the "Bridge" at Wilton, Trent Road, where a barn was completely burned. The department could not run a lead of hose as the blaze was too far away from the city. All they had to work with was their fire extinguishers and they were of little assistance in such a large fire. The barn was almost a complete loss.

RECORD JUSTICE FOR TORCH SLAYERS

Justice set an enviable record in Ann Arbor, Michigan, when, six hours after three men had confessed the atrocious crime of attacking and killing four high school students before burning their bodies in a "lover's lane" sentence was passed and writs had been started to prison to serve life terms. Left to right, above, are Frank Oliver, Fred Smith and Nathan Blackstone, the three self-confessed slayers of the youthful couples, as they tearfully awaited sentence in the Ann Arbor court. They got the maximum penalty, there being no capital punishment in Michigan. Lower photo shows incensed throngs milling about the courthouse at Ann Arbor. The slayers were saved from lynching by the mob only through the efforts of National Guardsmen and extra guards.

Thousand Million Dollars Crime Cost Yearly in U. S.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 21 (CP) —The Wickersham Commission places the annual cost of crime in this country at beyond a thousand million dollars.

Its latest report reached no lump-sum estimate but contained series of staggering statistics which even in their conceded incompleteness showed a tremendous toll taken yearly by criminality.

The Wickersham commission, 13-page document, made public today after resting for at least a week on President Hoover's bookshelf, as a busy contributor to this high cost.

It was estimated that $34,828,550 or two-thirds o fall the government funds appropriated for the administration of Federal criminal justice during the year 1929-30, were expended toward prohibition enforcement alone.

Police Chief Succeeds in Running Car Into Pole

CHIEF BEATEN

Aurora, Ont., Aug. 21 (By The Canadian Press)—Clinging to the side of an automobile, Chief of Police Dunham last night succeeded in recovering the machine, allegedly stolen, and one of the youths charged with the theft. A second youth escape.

Registration of Idle Goes Forward Steadily

Registration of the unemployed in Belleville and district is daily being added to, the Ontario Government Employment Bureau on Campbell Street is accepting registrations from all parts of the district this office is supposed to serve including Belleville.

Major Green, manager of this office, said today that as the city is also receiving registration of the unemployed resident in the city these are, no doubt, some duplications of names in the figures arrived at by his office and by the city authorities. Up to noon Friday, 54 married men and 140 single men, a total of 200, have registered at the Ontario Government Employment Bureau.

The report from the City Clerk's office up to the same time gives 225 as being unemployed. This number includes about eighty young unmarried men.

SECOND RIVER OVERFLOWING

One of Greatest Calamities of Modern Times Has Taken Place

Thousands of Chinese have drowned and millions of dollars worth of property has been destroyed by floods sweeping over vast territory in what may prove to be one of the greatest calamities of the kind in modern times.

The swollen Yangtze has taken its heavy toll of life and left 30,-000,000 homeless. Hankow itself, a city of 826,000, was threatened with destruction, and there was faint hope of saving any of the livestock in the flooded area.

Eighty counties in the north covering an area of 40,000 square miles are under three to ten feet of water pouring from the Hwai Ho River. The summer crop has been wiped out there is no hope of winter crop and engineers say the flood conditions will last for several months. There is no estimate of the loss of life, but it is believed to be heavy.

The government at Nanking is floating a $10,000,000 bond issue for flood relief.

Second River Overflows

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (AP). — Another Chinese river, the Kan, is on the rampage today, causing floods hardly less destructive of life and property than the great inundation along the Yangtze River which already has killed thousands and left upwards of 30,000,000 persons homeless.

The newest inundations were along the banks of the Hwai Ho, which runs through Northern China, linking the Grand Canal to the Yangtze.

Hankow, Aug. 21 (AP).—Hundreds of thousands of residents of Hankow and six other cities, Wuchang and Yanyang felt the depths of despair as they saw the treacherous waters advance once more after having receded from the record levels of yesterday.

The majority, however, were unable to escape, and hundreds of these, death was a welcome release from conditions in which further existence seemed impossible.

Despite the repugnance of suicide among the Chinese, this means of escaping the horrible circumstances of the flood was being used by an increasing number.

WASHAGO ASKS FOR FIRE AID

Woods Dry as Tinder, Says Report From North

Orillia, Ont., Aug. 21 (CP).—Reeve Denis of Washago, a junction town on the Canadian National Railway and No. 12 Highway, about 12 miles northeast of here, have asked for assistance in fighting a bush fire two miles away and believed to be threatening the town. Fears are expressed if the fire reaches Washago a change of wind might sweep it through the populous summer resort district of Sparrow Lake and on to Gravenhurst, ten miles north. The fire is running through abnormally dry marshes and second growth hardwood and pine over a wide front. Up to last night it was being fought by a local force which was given extra assistance in the arrival of equipment from Powassan.

Calls League Nations French Office Branch

New York, Aug. 21.—Lord Beaverbrook, British newspaper publisher, termed the League of Nation "a branch of the French Foreign Office" upon his arrival today from Halifax on the liner Belgenland.

He expressed the opinion Great Britain should retire from it "to build up its nationality" and declared the United States is better off outside of the League.

To a question whether he thought the Labor Government would continue long in office, Lord Beaverbrook replied that he hoped not and that it was his guess the Conservatives would carry the next general election. As to the ten per cent tariff suggested by the MacDonald ministry to balance the budget, the newspaper publisher pronounced it as a good idea. "It is true."

With him on the ship were Allan Aikey, a younger brother and Lord Castlerose, a journalist.

NO ANXIETY FOR AVIATORS

No Word Received From Preston and Collignon

Ottawa, Aug. 21 (CP).—Despite lack of radio contact no anxiety is felt here for Kevin H. Preston and Robert H. Colligon who took off Thursday from Cochrane, Ont., for Rupert House, lonely trading house on the east side of Hudson Bay. This was the one lap on a projected flight from Detroit, Mich., to Denmark, over the far northern route.

No word had been received from the flyers at or their takeoff yesterday but this has led to no anxiety on the part of government or radio officials here. Because of the comparative weakness of the transmitter on the plane and the immense distance in the far north to the Eastward it was deemed almost impossible to communicate with the plane until it arrived in the neighborhood of Hudson Straits. The nearest government radio station to Rupert House is Hope's Advance on the Straits, about 700 miles north and east. Every station in the north has been ordered to Maintain a 24-hour watch for the plane's call signals but they were not expected to be received until today or possibly tomorrow.

In the lonely and desolate country over which the flyers will travel there is no means of communication by telegraph wire or railway.

SCHOOLS WILL OPEN SEPT. 1ST

This is Date Set For All Schools in Province of Ontario

Under the act the public and high schools of the Province of Ontario open on Tuesday, September 1st. This information was received today by Mr. J. B. Finlay, secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education in answer to an inquiry of his in regard to the date about which there have been so many rumors in the city.

Under the School Amendment Act the high school and collegiate year is divided into two terms as in the case of the public schools there no longer being any division at the time of Easter. The amendment in this matter reads as follows:

"The school year shall consist of two terms, the first of which shall begin on the first day of September and shall end on the 22nd day of December and the second of which shall begin on the third day of January and end on the 29th of June."

Schools will open on the dates specified by the Department unless some local condition should arise which would postpone the date. In that event there would of course be due notice given through the press of any change of date of opening.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 21.—(By The Canadian Press)—Repeal of Section 98 of the Criminal Code of Canada was urged at a meeting last night of the Toronto District Labor Council. It was this section under which the recent arrests in Communist leaders were made. The measure would have a direct effect upon the Trade Union movement in Canada, said one delegate. He feared it might hinder the progress of Trade Unions.

A resolution asking repeal of the embargo on Russian goods was also approved. The Canadian Pacific Railways had proved unjustifiable since it was imposed, the resolution maintained and had a tendency to disrupt peace between the nations of the world.

Dominion Legion For Women Likely

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 21 (By The Canadian Press)—The possibility of organization of a Dominion Command of the Ladies Auxiliaries of the Canadian Legion looms up as one of the prospective features of the Legion Dominion Convention at Niagara Falls from Aug. 31 to Sept. 2. So far, owing to the lack of Provincial Commands in some Provinces, it has not been possible to create a Dominion body for the Ladies' Auxiliaries, but organization of auxiliaries has now progressed to such a stage that there is every likelihood that this will be a subject of discussion at the Women's conferences which will be held in conjunction with the convention.

18 YEAR OLD LAD BATTLES OBSTACLES TO ENTER SWIM

Tommy Pedder of Belleville Trains in Lake Ontario

HE LOOKS GOOD

Has Difficulty in Getting Ride at Times to Training Place

Staking everything on his ability to win the C. N. E. marathon swim or at least gain a place in the final showing, Thomas Pedder of Belleville, staked to train for the big event in earnest last week. Young Pedder, who is but eighteen years of age, started swimming only four years ago but he took to the water like a duck and has made such rapid progress that he entered in the Moira Lake swim during the Madoc old boys' reunion. Pedder was swimming with some of the best swimmers in the east at this event and met. The boy was in fifth position most of the race but finished seventh due to the fact that he did not have sufficient training.

After making such a brilliant showing in the recent race in Moira Lake Pedder came home and started to train under the watchful eye of his chum "Vic" Morris, who is acting as trainer. The swim at Moira Lake was Pedder's first attempt in the moneyed ranks and as he has no financial backing it is rather hard for the boy to get the necessary training. He is a natural swimmer and loves the sport. His best time in the water was on July 28th when he swam six and a half miles in a little less than two hours and forty minutes in the Trent River just south of Frankford.

At present trainer Morris takes young Pedder up to Brighton, each day when they can get transportation so that Tommy may be trained for the coming event. Paddling, swimming and other means of exercise form the day's work for young Pedder. The hardest trial the boy experience is the question of transportation to and from their training quarters. At times when they cannot get anyone to drive to the training site the boys try "hitchhiking" as far as Brighton, from where they run to their training camp. Young Pedder is surely a lad and is all wrapped up in his new enterprise as does not permit interested in the art of swimming.

The lad may not win the big event at Toronto this year but if he continues training there is little doubt among his friends that with in a very short time he will be up with the leading swimmers of the world. The reason for this is the fact that he has the perfect build of a swimmer, being short, very stocky and has a very fine muscle development. All the lad needs is a little encouragement from the public at large and he will no doubt be a credit to himself and the community at large in years to come.

SECRETARY OF FAIR 21 YEARS

R. H. Ketcheson Soon to Begin His 22nd Year in Office

Serving as Secretary for the Belleville Agricultural Society for the past twenty-one years, Mr. R. H. Ketcheson starts his 22nd year as active secretary at the Belleville fair next month. Mr. Ketcheson has worked under eight presidents since he took over the duties of secretary some 22 years ago. He has served long and well and the success of the coming fair is largely due to the way that he has the directors working so harmoniously. The duties of a fair secretary are not to be envied as their work is spread over the entire year for as soon as one fair is over the work of settling the business takes considerable time and ability. As soon as one fair is over arrangements have to be made for the following year's exhibition showing that the work of a fair secretary is spread over the entire year.

The Belleville Fair board held their regular meeting last night and all committees reported that their work was well in advance of previous years. It was well to note that the report of the harness racing was most pleasing, as we expect the largest field of horses ever seen in Belleville. Enquiries have been received from Quebec, the city of Ottawa and many points in Ontario as to the classes which are to be put on at the coming fair. It is expected th is field of well over 60 race horses will be housed in Belleville during fair week. Some of the horsemen have their stables at the local Fair grounds already, showing the interest that is being aroused in the coming harness meet. As Belleville track is reputed to be the fastest half mile track in Canada a good meeting of races should be seen at the annual exhibition in Belleville next month.

"Nursery Suite" by Elgar Played at Old Glamis

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

...London, Aug. 21.—On the eve of the celebration at Glamis, Scotland of the first birthday anniversary of Princess Margaret Rose, the first performance was given at Queens Hall last evening of Sir Edward Elgar's "Nursery Suite" dedicated to the Duchess of York and her two young princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret.

Sir Edward, a distinguished composer, holds the title of Master of the King's Music, a post vacant for nearly two centuries until King George revived it in Sir Edward's favor seven years ago.

The new work is along the lines of the "Wand of Youth" suite which he composed in his own childhood, unless one heard the "Nursery Suite" last evening acknowledge his general beauty but are not disposed to consider it another striking manifestation of Elgar's genius. Some of them however express relief that it shows no disposition in Sir Edward to become "up-to-date."

In English law there is a provision forbidding the public discussion of evidence until the case is closed.

THE SIZE OF A MOLECULE

Molecules, the tiny unseen building-blocks of matter, are as much smaller than a man as the stars are larger.

This striking scale of sizes was set forth in a radio address by Dr. W. F. G. Swann, director of the Bartol Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute, delivered under the auspices of Science Service. Dr. Swann is thus quoted in that Service's Daily Science News Bulletin (Washington):

"Science teaches us that the objects which we see around us and which present to our vision a continuity of structure—the chair, the table, or own bodies—are really aggregates of much smaller things which our eyes could see as separate entities had nature designed them to that purpose. In a crude sense, the stars are to the great nebulae what the atoms and molecules, of which matter is made up, are to the objects of every-day experience. Between the atoms and the stars a man stands about half-way in magnitude, for it takes about a thousand-million-million-million million atoms to make a man and about ten times this number of men boiled down and seasoned with the necessary ingredients, to make a star.

"The imagination of man is taxed almost to the limit to comprehend the magnitude of the stars, but it is taxed to no less a degree to comprehend the smallness of the atoms and molecules. I should like to cite an illustration once given by Dr. Aston of Cambridge University:

"'Suppose that we should take an ordinary glass of water, and suppose that we could label the molecules in that glass so that we should know them again. Let us empty the glass of water into the middle of the Pacific Ocean; and, after it has become mixed up with all the waters of the world, let us go to the nearest faucet and fill that glass once more. How many of the original molecules will be found in the glass? The answer is, about 2,000.

"'It is highly probable that there is in the body of each one of us a number of atoms which went to make up the blood of Julius Caesar. The story as regards Napoleon is not quite so true. He is not yet "mixed up" enough.

SUPERPOWER AT GREATER DISTANCE

A new system of electrical transmission will carry many times more power than is now sent over the greatest transmission lines, and will take it twice as far as is now possible.

The invention is expected to make possible the construction of projects heretofore impossible, because power plants would have to be too far from industrial centers where the electrical energy would be used.

Two such projects said to have become economically possible as a result of the invention, according to its inventor, are the development of the St. Lawrence River and the building of a huge steam plant in the heart of the Pennsylvania coal-fields to supply New York and Philadelphia with electricity.

The inventor of the system is a Pittsburgh engineer, Clarence A. Boddie, says Science Service News Letter, a Science Service publication (Washington):

"With the new system, engineers would also be able to send power 500 miles from the Sea, several times as far as industrial centers of the East, whereas with present lines it is possible to send electricity only about 250 miles in useful large blocks without too great a loss.

"Mr. Boddie's transmission line is exactly like those in use, except for one simple change: Instead of using only one wire at a high voltage, he uses two, or three, or four, all at the same voltage—the more, the better, within practical limits of construction."

DICKENS UP TO DATE

A big gray overland bus roars into the station. Cincinnati, Louisville, and Indianapolis are the stopping places painted on its sides, gleaming like porcelain. Sanction, bird center, and mill pond run are stamped on the faces of most of the outgoing passengers, says the Chicago Daily News, describing the bus station, which it calls "Americana at the crossroads." Glass of rural walkways and accents amid the brittle sophistication of Chicago's loop."

Here are the scenes represented in this stage, young and old, serene, innocent, lacquered, sinister.

One station is a long-legged chap, black-mustached, wearing a greasy vest—but no coat—blue denim shirt, wide-brimmed soft hat—a deputy sheriff or a moonshiner from Kentucky! Then an old couple from somewhere in Hoosierdom, Ma—fanning herself—in gay, printed dress and a girlish white hat; Pa, in pants and coat which do not match, fingering his watch-chain apprehensively as he gazes at the tall buildings. Still bewildered, although in friendly hands, they are tucked into son-in-law's snappy roadster and whisked away.

A prairie girl-wife, thin, worried, with an abundance of flaxon hair, brings her baby on a pallet of cotton blankets. Her husband, an undernourished youth, fetches out their cardboard suitcase and awkwardly tied bundles. Some country young folks, with all the zip and semi-nudity of their city cousins, tumble out.... "We had more fun—singing Rudy Vallee songs all the way in from Elkhart!".... And lastly the driver, smiling, important, in his trim, blue uniform. No coach-and-four whip of Dickens' era had more aplomb.

The thin young husband has taken the baby, while the little mother nervously examines a scribbled address..... All the world's in a stage, when it arrives at a bus station!

In my low cottage on the hill
A little lamp I light,
And set it on the window-sill
To bear me company through the night.

Its rays, I know, will never shine
Upon his eyes for whom
I set this little lamp of mine
A-glow across the gloom.

But with the bravery of its gleams
That pierce the quiet deeps
My lamp will lure me moth-like dreams
From out a world that sleeps.

And they will flutter up on wings
As beautiful as flowers,
The memories of joyous things,
And sweet and happy hours.

BOOTLEG RADIO is a new expression and refers to temporary fifty watt stations put up to evade the law in the United States. Collier's last week had an interesting article on the subject. Radio in the U. S. A. is subject to federal laws the individual states having nothing to do with broadcasting. Hence fakirs, fortune tellers, miracle medicine men and their ilk are able to broadcast their swindles as long as the broadcast does not carry outside the state. If it does it is a cost of $10,000 quickly or five Uncle Samuel. Special test cars are being sent out by the government to locate these bootleg stations and get evidence against them of broadcasting beyond the state line. Photographs are used to catch the broadcast over the state line and photographs are made of the surroundings to use as evidence against the bootlegging broadcasters. Just another development of a wonderful age.

EAT MORE CHEESE is a good slogan for Canadians. Our cheese is known the world round for its excellence, and Belleville cheese particularly is noted for its high quality in overseas markets commanding at all times a higher price. Strange that Canada cheese should be appreciated more across the ocean than right here in Canada. Perhaps the big reason is that Canadians have been accustomed to eating new cheese which is not to be compared to cheese which has been aged for a year or more. Go into any grocery store and you will find a new cheese on the cutting board, and in only a few stores in a community such as Belleville will good old matured cheese be found on sale. Folks who cut old cheese for a while will never go back to new cheese. It tastes better and it digests itself. The cheese industry in Canada is one of great importance and in the Belleville district alone brings millions of dollars into local circulation. We should all eat more cheese, because it is a complete food, beneficial to the human body, easy digested, and because the more cheese Canadians eat the more the industry will prosper, with indirect benefit to everybody. EAT MORE CHEESE and give prosperity a boost in the right direction.

WAR, WORRY AND WANT have killed millions. Saul has slain his thousands and David tens of thousands, which was considered good hunting in those days. The world war killed millions. Famine war and plague kills millions in China. Worry kills more people than war and the past year or so has been rather hard on the folks who worry about the things that may be but seldom happen. Canada looked the re-adjustment period square in the eye and is taking care of the situation in true British fashion. No one need go hungry or cold this winter when there will be public works created which will be a credit to Canada for all time to come.

SOUND GROWTH

Preliminary analysis of Canada's census returns shows that 21 cities and 61 towns have shown an increase of population in the past ten years, while 4 cities and 60 towns show a decrease.

It is not a startling manifestation of population growth, but it should more than satisfy those who have the best interests of Canada at heart. This country is of immense acreage and has immense natural resources. In point of fact, it is one of the richest areas on the surface of the globe.

But the profit to be derived from the development of Canada's resources will come through additional population growth. With this promotion is assured of its material heritage. What it needs as a guard is the well-being of its racial blood-stream. The question for Canada to consider is not quantity population but quality population.

The foreign elements that have been absorbed into Canada's population have proved themselves worthy. We have now the blending of race that makes for success. Neither economic nor racial ills are we anxious just now for an sudden normal increase in immigration.

The normal census figures indicate that Canada is keeping her population small and her standard high. It is good, sound natural growth.—Chatham Citizen.

CHINA TASTES CANADIAN MILK

It is a great many centuries since humankind took to drinking cows' milk and found it good, but China for the most part is a flock of centuries behind the rest of the world and hasn't got around as yet to this particular beverage. Paul Sykes, Canadian trade commissioner, writes from Hong Kong to the Commercial and Intelligence Journal: "Milk is a commodity which is not widely used by the bulk of the population of South China. There have never been any but a very few dairy cattle in all this country, and the bulk of such quantities of milk as are now taken are imported. Practically all is imported. As for cheese, butter, fresh eggs, fruits and vegetables, conditions are changing as a result of the rising standards and the adoption by wealthy Chinese of a small part of the population of some customs of the Western world."

There is a milk trade developing, however, in the way of evaporated milk. Canada, which sold $102 worth of this commodity to China, in 1930 shipped $15,000 worth in the year ending last March, and from all sources the country imported milk to a value of $1,400,000. That is about one-third of a cent per head of population.

Probably the Chinese never intended dairy cattle to exist in a country which raises chiefly tea, bamboo, rice, grasses, soya beans and tobacco. Otherwise it would probably have cured its cattle of famines. But that is no barrier to the Chinese acquiring a taste for milk products, and if they ever do it on a large scale it will result in the greatest market ever dreamed of. Take the variety upon which they have started—evaporated milk. Canada produces annually about $5,000,000 worth and exports it to a value of only $1,000,000. Evidently this population of 10,000,000 uses $4,000,000 of evaporated milk in a year. Proportionately, China would need $170,000,000 worth, and in fact a great deal more in the absence of more portable milk products which are staple foods here. What would happen if a population of 427,879,000 developed an appetite for cheese baffles the imagination.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

PET SUPERSTITIONS

In an interesting article recently on the subject of quackery, on this continent and abroad, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, declared it is generally recognized that in his country, the United States, there are more quacks and a greater variety in the field of medicine than any other country in the world. However, he points out that there is nothing approaching a monopoly, each country having its pet superstitions on which the quacking profession batten at the expense of the credulous. Dr. Fishbein quotes from the writings of Dr. Otto Neustatter, one of the leading health educators in Germany, who tells about phonia, gods, astrologers and miracle men who afflict his people. In Germany, where some of the most remarkable advances in the field of medicine and surgery have been made, prevail some of the silliest superstitions, the German folklore of disease and its treatment being so varied as to seem incredible. They think in some sections of Germany, for instance, that paralysis can be cured by putting the patient to sleep on the straw in a stable where a donkey has slept and another popular belief is that a person will be sick all through life if some one gets a lock of his hair and burns it in a cemetery. Dr. Fishbein, seeing both the comedy and the tragedy involved, submits that one's beliefs depend on the environment in which he grows, the thoughts and beliefs of those about him, the amount of education and the ability of the mind itself to reason. The simplest tree of medicine is sympathetic reasoning, he believes —the tree which makes people believe that a yellow flower, like dandelion, will cure jaundice; that a red flower or ruby will cure diseases of the blood; that heart-shaped flowers will cure diseases of the heart, and that the way to get strength is to use the bones or organs of strong animals. And there will be many Canadian grandmothers who will chuckle over the silly superstitions of the German peasantry, yet continue to place reliance in the copper coin which, if carried on the person, will ward off attacks of rheumatism, and the little bag of sulphur which, if suspended around the neck, will beat the most pestiferous case of bronchitis.—Hamilton Spectator.

Columbite Vein Found in Renfrew

Production of tantalum, a metal believed by scientists to be superior to tungsten for use in the manufacture of incandescent lamps, may take place in Ontario. Recent exploration work in Renfrew County has revealed the presence of columbite in considerable quantities. Columbite and its twin mineral, tantalite, are the sources of tantalum and columbium in varying quantities.

The columbite of the Renfrew district has been analyzed and found to contain 15 per cent of tantalum. It is found associated with beryl, ferguosnite, rose quartz and other rare minerals in a vein which has been traced for a distance of some eight miles on the properties being explored by the Madawaska Syndicate in Lyndoch and Raglan townships.

Bear Picks Blue-Berries With Girl

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 21—Up the Algoma Central Railway, blueberry picking is such an engrossing occupation that Miss Annie Pruce of Taber worked side by side with a bear without either of them realizing that another picker was in the field, a signed letter to James W. Curran, editor of the Sault Star, today revealed.

Miss Pruce was reaching for some extra large berries when she felt something furry and suddenly realized that she had slipped her fingers between the paws of a big black bear.

Miss Pruce was frightened. So was the bear. Both took to flight.

Taber is a section house at Mile 141 on the A.C.R. The letter, written in a most convincing style by J. Hill of the section crew, is as follows:

"Dey days ago Miss Annie Pruce goes pick the blueberry about one-quarter of a mile away from Taber section house. Attached her blueberry pickins she never see the bear on same hummock with same reason as she before her fingers she had between the jaws of the beast. Both get scare of each other meeting, but that the only punishing she get by the bear.

(Signed) J. Hill."

500 RUN FROM BULL BUFFALO

Trees, Trucks, Posts Used To Escape Rush of Angry Beast

Oshawa, Aug. 21.—While 500 yelling humans scuttled for safety for cover, a great red-eyed bull buffalo had a field day of destruction inside his enclosure in Lakeview Park at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, and was conquered only after a quarter hour of wild excitement.

Apparently resenting that he had been trussed up and dragged by a team of horses from his field for shipment to Ottawa, the big beast unleashed his way out of a temporary wooden crate while the others of the herd were being similarly corralled.

As his huge buttocks began to bulge backward through the stout crate bars, several men rushed to place their shoulders against the bending bars, but they might as well have tried to check a shunting locomotive.

The old buffalo backed out into the open with flailing hoofs, swung about, snorted, glared and tossed his massive head at the petrified spectators.

In five seconds there was no longer a crowd. Some of the 500 were up trees, some were on trucks, platforms and posts. The rest were half-way home. One man fell in front of the animal and almost was trampled.

Meanwhile, Walter Armadon of Lansdowne, an animal trainer who had the contract for taking the bull safe herd to Ottawa was corralled by a dozen fruitless advances and retreats, managed to loop a lasso about the charging buffalo and while his assistants and policemen shot at the animal and dragged him into the crate until a new and stronger crate had been built.

SHAM BATTLE AT EXHIBITION

Attendance at Picton Fair is Far Ahead of Last Year

Picton, Aug. 20—Thursday marks the closing of the 80th Picton Fair. Prize weather has prevailed and attendance to date is greatly above that of last year.

Wednesday night's celebration attracted several thousand people. The local veterans staged a thrilling sham battle and at points line-works were set off, making a colorful display. The R.M.C. riders from Kingston delighted the crowd with their skilful riding and the Kilties band from Cobourg rendered splendid music throughout the evening.

The horse races were the best held here in years. Nearly sixty horses were entered for the five races and it was found necessary to add another race. Many of these horses are going on to Ottawa for the fair there next week. Sixty is a record number of race horses to enter in races in Prince Edward County. Cattle at the fair number one hundred and fifty, an unusually large number. Competition in Holstein classes is especially keen. Beside the Holstein awards mentioned in yesterday's article, there are Jersey exhibited by Garner Kerr of Bloomfield and W. H. Tripp of Bloomfield, Ayrshire by C. N. Kerr of Northport, Shorthorns by J. F. Werden and Son, Picton R. 8, Allen Manor of Peterboro and Archie Kerr of Picton, Ayrshires by H. M. Wood of Ivanhoe.

The Boy Scouts presented a pageant depicting their work before the grandstand last night.

The fair closes tonight and it looks as if it will be a great success.

Sub-Surface Track For Street Cars?

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Sub-surface street car tracks on Yonge Street, is proposed as a joint solution to the traffic and unemployment problems now facing the attention of civic authorities.

Displacing the subway or underground tube plan which has been advanced from time to time in connecting with Yonge Street, the new idea is to dig a ditch wide enough for two tracks down the centre of the thoroughfare and roof it over with pavement for auto traffic.

There are 400 clocks in Windsor and Buckingham palaces.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 11 (Metropolitan Newspaap er Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In the forest of the table-land a mile back from the ocean old Kerchak the Ape King was on a rampage or rage among his people. The younger and lighter members of his tribe all scattered to the higher tree branches, risking their lives to escape his uncontrolled anger.

The other males scattered in all directions, but not before Kerchak had crushed one between his great foaming jaws. A luckless young female slipped from an insecure hold. With a wild scream he was upon her, striking her viciously with a broken tree limb until her skull was crushed.

Then he spied Kala, returning from a search for food, with her young babe. Ignorant of the state of the King's temper, the shrill warning of her fellows caused her to scamper madly for safety. But Kerchak was close upon her—so close that he had almost grasped her ankle.

She made a furious leap far into space—from one tree to another—made it successfully. But as she grasped the limb of the further tree, the sudden jar loosed the hold of the tiny babe. She saw the little thing hurled—lurking, twisting—to the ground thirty feet below.

With a low cry of dismay, Kala rushed to her babe's side, thoughtless now of danger. When she gathered the wee, mangled form to her bosom, life had left it. Nor did Kerchak attempt to molest her. His fit of demoniac rage passed as suddenly as it had seized him.

A tense moment from Bruce Graeme's "The Hate Ship," which opens at the Capitol Saturday.

Greta Nissen lends with her heart in the game with Edmund Lowe for high stakes on the high seas in "Transatlantic," now at the Belle Theatre.

"THE HATE SHIP" AT THE CAPITOL SATURDAY

Of recent years there have been many stories of the mutiny, but none have surpassed the ingeniousness of Bruce Graeme's "The Hate Ship" in hiding the identity of the culprit, and the manner in which the deed is committed.

"The Hate Ship" comes to the Capitol Theatre on Saturday for two days, and is the true embodiment of supreme mystery intrigue.

A yacht, the "S. S. Sylvia," sails lazily through the South Seas, a floating contrast to the sinister happenings taking place aboard. The company are amusing themselves in divers ways, some chatting and playing cards, hate ever present.

A shot rings out, and a guest, Arthur Wardell is found lying in a chair in another stateroom, critically wounded.

The fact that Wardell has just refused to sign a document at the behest of Vernon Wolfe, the owner of the vessel, points to the latter's guilt, because the signing of such a document by the wealthy Wardell would have the direst effect for the harassed Wolfe. However, as he was in another part of the ship when the crime was committed the shooting cannot be fastened onto him.

Here we have as pretty a mystery as you could wish for, and the lover can wish for. The secret is well preserved, and even when it is found to be most ingenious and plausible.

The director of "The Hate Ship" has caught the true atmosphere of eerie mystery and the underground rumbling of plotting with great success. Also the atmosphere of tense drama pervades throughout the whole production.

Chief acting honors go to Jameson Thomas as the suave Vernon Wolfe, the owner of the yacht. A web of romance is woven into the fabric of the plot, Jean Colin and Mary Maine being the participants. Henry Victor, in the role of Count Boris Ivanoff adds a characteristic touch which is so finally etched as to cause a great deal of comment.

The whole of the cast speak their lines with amazing clarity and pronunciation, from every angle, "The Hate Ship" is a picture which will satisfy the most critical audience.

The African Series

In addition to "The Hate Ship" at the Capitol, another episode of that fine series, "Adventures in Africa" will be shown. This time under the title of "Trail of the Hunt" more exclusives of the primitive, yet effective methods adopted by the natives in battling with their natural enemies, the beasts of the jungle will be shown. The running commentary has been found to be exceptionally instructive, and the scenes themselves extremely entertaining.

The News will also be included in the programme.

"WOMAN HUNGRY" WELL RECEIVED AT THE CAPITOL

Dramatic, romantic and magnificent in color, especially in the sequences which are taken against the vast panoramas of the high Sierras, is "Woman Hungry," which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre. The picture which was photographed under the direction of Clarence Badger, for First National, as an all-Technicolor drama is the finest of this type of work yet seen.

The story of "Woman Hungry" is that of a man whose love comes to an afterthought in passion. The principal roles are taken by Sidney Blackmer and Lila Lee. Nerv has Miss Lee been seen to such advantage as in the Bettina society girl who goes West in search of adventure.

Blackmer is distinctly a new type of hero. There is strength, sincerity and personal magnetism in his portrayal. He looks the part of the renegade of the early sequences and of the changed personality as the story progresses.

Raymond Hatton as always, gives a unique and delightful performance, as Joao, a rascally Portuguese miner. Fred Kohler is also excellent as the hearty Dutchman, Wahl Kampen, companion of Blackmer.

In addition to the feature, Giovanni Mantinelli was excellent in "Lovers Garden of Roses" and a comedy and spotlight completed the fine programme which ends tonight.

ARRESTED THRU RADIO STATIC

Three Men Arrested at Montreal On Transformer

Montreal, Aug. 21.—Three men, whom officials of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated identified as among their former linesmen who are on strike, were arrested here Thursday night following an alleged attempt to cut off a transformer from a power pole.

Police withheld the names of the men until their court appearance on Friday. The arrest had come about, authorities stated, when an electrician of the company, while listening to his radio, heard a note which his technical knowledge informed him came from a nearby transformer.

He dashed out and saw a man at the top of a pole wielding a pair of pliers. Another man stood at the bottom of the pole. The electrician jumped at the man at the foot of the pole and the man on the top of pole threw his pliers at the assailant's head. The shot missed, the electrician picked up the pliers and knocked out his opponent with them. Police arrived and arrested the men as well as another man who was in a nearby automobile.

Chiropractic meeting with Increasing Favor of Late Years

Chiropractic is a modern day science and has met with increasing favor in the last few years its development has been rapid and all new discoveries of the science have been carefully followed by Dr. H. R. and Wm. R. Pinder, two prominent practitioners of Chiropractic have diligently applied themselves throughout this section. Their excellent training has given them a most comprehensive knowledge of bodily ills.

Drs. Pinder fully understand the symptoms and causes of the various diseases and how to cope with them. They know the science of adjustments. It is based upon the principle of spinal adjustments, and many diseases are obtained by removing pressure on the nerves. Nature will keep the body in perfect health if there is no interference with her ways. Through knowledge of this science, the interference is removed and nature helps. This is done by these eminent Chiropractors in a scientific and painless manner—gradually and by degrees the spine is adjusted and then health is restored. Drs. Pinder are highly skilled, meticulous and obliging. Their professional services are much in demand as is shown by their ever increasing patronage. If their methods were not beneficial you they will unhesitatingly tell you so, and will accept no cases where they cannot be of help. Under the adjustment methods of these distinguished chiropractors, many so-called operations may be avoided. Their field of operation is needed and would rather not see through with it, consult Drs. SYNOPSIS

Lovely Panchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Panchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Panchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Panchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Collin Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Panchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Panchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Panchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances. Tony informs Pan, chon that Evelyn is alive but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Panchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Gilli." Although claiming he has Evelyn in his apartment, Tony refuses to let Panchon see her. Two days later he calls at the Carstairs home.

CHAPTER XXII.

Collin Carstairs postponed his sailing. It was perfectly evident to him that quietly, almost unobtrusively—and it were, naturally, Cesare Gilli had become an intimate of the Carstairs household. He was a rather silent young man who spoke of his past Florentine existence rarely and then with a deep melancholy which his hearers, not in the least understanding, still respected. He had excellent manners, good looks, and a great deal of charm. Mrs. Carstairs found herself liking him—with reservations. The reservations had to do with her niece. She found that, for some curious reason, the girl was not herself when Gilli was around. Had it not been for this strange effect upon his "old friend," Jenie Carstairs would have liked him far better. But as it was, her long experience of Europe and Europeans created a little intangible doubt of this almost too correct, and sometimes quite evasive young man, in her mind. It was nothing she could lay her finger on and something she kept to herself, even when Collin, losing no time in expressing his disapproval informed his mother, in no uncertain terms, that there was something decidedly "fishy" about their new acquaintance. He, too, had noted Gilli's effect upon the girl he loved. He said to Jenie: "She's afraid of him."

"But," said Mrs. Carstairs, "that is nonsense! It is your imagination."

"No, it is not. She is always on her guard when she talks with him, when any of us are there. Several times, when they have been alone together, I have come into the room suddenly, I've found them arguing —oh, not loudly, but still none too pleasantly, that was obvious."

He was silent, remembering that on one such occasion he had heard Gilli say, under his breath: "You'll play the game my way or not at all." Whatever it meant, it was pretty high-handed and Collin grew more and more to dislike the intruder.

Panchon, tactfully questioned upon her knowledge of him, said evasively, that she had met him some years ago, that he had turned up in San Francisco and had been very kind to her there. She had not attempted to establish the fiction that her friendship with him dated from Hawaiian experiences. Tony, she knew, had never been to Hawaii and there was no sense in making things more difficult than they already were.

Evelyn and her present plight was very much on her mind and heart. On several occasions she had conquered her fear and horror of seeing the girl and had begged Tony to let her do so. But he refused.

"You will only upset yourself—and her," he had said. "There is, really, nothing to be gained."

She was forced to agree with him. She lived in a constant state of fear concerning his unknown next move. For the present, he seemed content to drop in for tea, to be asked to dinner, to join them at the opera or at the theatre or at a supper club. To be introduced to various of the Carstairs circle, with whom he became very popular. He was something new; he was, to all intents and purposes, vouched for—and he was—he must be—eligible. He dressed well, appeared to have money, and now and then returned the invitations given to him by small, perfectly correct little parties. The girls found him a "knockout," the men agreed that he was a good sport.

But Panchon knew he was marketing time.

One day, in early winter, she had a letter from him. She opened it with a sinking heart and read the few lines it contained.

"I must see you, alone," it began without preamble. "Please arrange a time. I spoke the other day of visiting the Van Dorn Observatory. Museum. Unless I hear from you I will call for you at three."

He had moved to a small, good hotel—in New York and was living there for the time being. To Panchon's inquiries, "Evelyn—?" he answered carelessly that she was still in Brooklyn and was cared for; he saw her often.

On the following day he called for Panchon and they walked the short way from the apartment to the museum together. They went into one of the less frequented rooms—cozy as it happened—and that occasion, save for the incurious guard near the door, Leaning his arm on a case containing ancient Egyptian swords, Tony came to the point.

"There is to be a masquerade ball," he said, "at Mrs. Van Dorn's dam'n. In two weeks. I have read it. You will get that an invitation. You will persuade Mrs. Carstairs to wear the emerald she bought, wisely, in a safe deposit vault."

"Tony, what are you planning?" Panchon whispered, white.

"Nothing you don't know, need know," he said, "no further responsibility. She said daily;

"I won't, do it."

"I think you will. After this, if I am successful, you will not be troubled with me any longer. Unless you wish it. You would be wiser if you decided to care. To come with me. I doubt very much if we would ever be found. And perhaps we would not be looked for Panchon, for after all, the Carstairs would not care to make a scandal in their own family. Yes, I think you would be very wise to come away with me. Otherwise, you may be questioned....closely. Otherwise a number of unpleasant things might happen."

She realized that although he was apparently giving her a choice, he was in reality issuing orders. There was much unspoken threat in his words. Leaving him did not—go over and it would mean perhaps something worse than happening to Evelyn.

A risk no woman should take health risk in ill-made substitutes for Kotex

NO woman should deliberately risk health by using a sanitary pad of doubtful hygienic value. Yet that is what you do, if you accept a substitute because it merely looks like Kotex.

You should ask how this substitute was made. Where? By whom? Would a hospital use it?

Be assured

Trust no pad that cannot answer these questions to your entire satisfaction. Every woman, at these times, should be a purist of Kotex. Its absolute immaculacy. Kotex is made with hospital care. Its use in hospitals proves that. This assurance is worth everything to you—far more than the few pennies you may save by accepting a substitute of whose makers you know nothing.

Kotex is packed by machines and hygienically sealed in dust proof boxes. Kotex is adjustable. May be worn on either side with safety. The gauze is specially treated to make it amazingly soft and non-chafing.

KOTEX
MADE IN CANADA
1927

WEAR ON EITHER SIDE

1. Can be worn on either side with equal comfort. Self-evident reasons.
2. Kotex is soft . . . Not merely an apparent softness that soon packs or hardens. Kotex is a cotton-like wadding.
3. The Kotex absorbent is the identical cotton-like wadding proved in Canada's leading hospitals.
4. Disposable, instantly, completely.

MADE STUDY OF SCIENTIFIC FOOD

French and Smith Distribute Many Well Known Feed Products

A few years ago practically all fowls and animals were fed the food that happened to be plentiful in that particular locality. To-day much thought and attention is given to the proper feeding of fowls and animals as is given to any other line of business. Because we have learned that properly fed, housed and handled, all fowls and animals thrive practically as well during one part of the year as another. Scientific remedies are now given for sick fowls and how and keep the producers absolutely fit, therefore efficient.

French and Smith made a thorough study of the requirements and have on hand or may procure all that is required to keep fowls or animals in the best of condition. This information and service is at the disposal of anyone who is having difficulty with their livestock and one may be assured that it is the best information obtainable. It has ever been the aim of this drellable concern to handle honest feeds at honest prices and they are able to offer you the famous Pratt's Regulator, Full-O-Pep and Motherwell's Feed. These feeds are made from the very best materials and they maintain the same uniform formula from year always. By using carefully balanced rations, one will be assured of profitable results. By way of completeness this reliable firm has available for such high-grade flours as Purity, Robin Hood, Quaker and Royal Household. Do you know the different feeds handled by this firm and for what each is best adapted?

Too Late Now To Take Action

Certainly the city council deserved censure for not taking immediate and drastic steps to have this great menace to the safety of the citizens removed. It is a long time now since the matter was brought to the attention of the council committee and it is not likely that any thing will ever be done about it now. Citizens were greatly incensed and annoyed at the laxity and the "Don't Care" attitude shown. The press, too, took the matter up at the time.

Now, no one worries about it for the old street cars, whose lack of fenders, causing all the stir, is long since made their last run from the station to the wharf. Here is the story told in an Editorial note from the files of thirty years ago:

"Is it not about time that the Belleville Street Railway put fenders on the street cars? We read of accidents happening in other places every day; Belleville's turn may come at any time. We respectfully suggest that the authorities look into the matter. Prevention is better than a mess on the street.

Truly the hazards of those days were nerve-wrecking.

"TRANSATLANTIC" IS SMART AND ORIGINAL

Anchors aweigh! Full Speed Ahead! Those who like their thrills and romance sprayed with the brine of the sea and flavored with the lingery of a deluxe ocean liner, should see the smart and original Fox drama, "Transatlantic," which is the feature attraction at the Capitol Theatre Saturday matinee daily, with Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran in the leading roles.

From the moment Edmund Lowe, as a suave and debonair gambler slips aboard the S. S. Transatlantic, to escape the district attorney's grafi probe until the ocean greyhound docks at its European port things begin to happen rapidly, and not only to Lowe, but to his fellow passengers who include Lois Moran as the daughter of a German lens grinder, impersonated by Jean Hersholt, and an absconding banker, played by John Halliday, whose nefarious operations have cost Hersholt his life savings.

To add to the complications Halliday is accompanied by his wife, Myrna Loy, and aboard ship is also Halliday's light o' love, a role portrayed by Greta Nissen.

"Transatlantic" offers the spectator a chance to travel the ocean in de luxe style, as a passenger aboard a luxurious liner, and at the same time enjoy a romantic comedy drama replete with thrills and laughs.

The population of Italy has increased from 33,618,000 to 42,118,000 since 1921, or 8.6 per cent.

LAURA MILES WINS CONTEST

Daily "Do You Know" Contest Becoming More Popular Every Day

After a great deal of deliberation the judges of the "Do You Know" contest finally awarded today's prize to Mrs. Laura Miles, who submitted a most original set of answers to the queries in yesterday's stories. Day by day in every way this contest is becoming more popular with the readers of the Ontario Intelligencer. A deluge of answers were received, but just a little more originality by some of the competitors will assuredly put them over as winners.

The rules are simple. The contest consists of news stories that appear in the Ontario Intelligencer each eodmy with a question. The articles tell you about what services are offered by worthy firms, and the questions ask something pertaining to the concerns that the stories describe. This does not mean that it is a guessing contest. There is no guessing at all. It is necessary for you to call the firms and ask them for the answers, then arrange your answers in the most artistic, original or clever manner and bring or mail them to The Ontario Intelligencer "Do You Know" editor. Prizes are awarded to the contestants who submit the best arranged answers, if correct are the same. By "best arranged" is meant cleverness of construction. This may be accomplished by printing the answers or writing them in colors or putting them in the form of poetry—or clipping the stories and pasting them upon sheets with pictures in keeping with the services they describe, or in any way that you may wish to construct them. They are merely suggestions, however. Originality is the deciding factor.

Look through this issue right this moment, find the eight articles that appear today, call the firms and get the answers, arrange your answers as you wish and send them in. You may be today's winner.

Biggest in point of numbers participating and over the longest course yet attempted in Canada, the Tip-Top Aerial Derby will be run September 8 as the feature attraction of Aviation Day at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. Present indications point to forty or more of the speed aces of Canadian aviation participating in the 440-mile event, the course for which is laid out between Toronto and Windsor and return.

Conditions governing the race are similar to those under which the King's Cup air race, annual classic of the Old Country. If success attends the efforts of those promoting and organizing the Tip-Top race for the current year, it is probable that the course will be length ened and the prize money increased in succeeding years, making it the counterpart in Canada of the King's Cup race in Britain.

Some skilful and maybe fortunate aviator is going to win the tailor-made airway into the small fortune of $2,500 in addition to a handsome trophy, which comprises first prize. Second money is $1,500; third, $750, and fourth, $250. The $5,000 in prize money and the trophy are being donated by Tip-Top Tailors, Ltd., Toronto, sponsors of the aerial derby.

An international flavor will be given the race if two of Great Britain's foremost aces, one a woman, decide to enter. An invitation has been extended to Wing Commander Atcherly, a member of the 1929 British army-air team which carried off the Schneider Trophy emblematic of the world's speed supremacy of the world. He raced his machine on that occasion at a speed in excess of 330 miles an hour, or more than five and a half miles a minute. Wing Commander Atcherly is now in Cleveland competing in National Air Races there, flying one of the speediest planes manufactured in Great Britain.

The "woman in the case" is Miss Winnifred Spooner, noted British aviatrix, who has competed several times in the King's Cup race around Britain and who has a number of noteworthy flying achievements to her credit. Miss Spooner, who is also competing at Cleveland, is staying in Montreal with her brother, Capt. "Tony" Spooner, instructor for the Montreal Light Aeroplane Club, who has already signified his intention of entering the Tip-Top Derby. This, if Miss Spooner enters, the unique spectacle will be witnessed for the first time in Canada of sister competing against brother on an equal basis so far as ability is concerned, but with the machines handicapped according to performance.

Miss Spooner has already inquired as to her eligibility, and has been informed that her entry will be accepted provided she secures a Canadian private pilot's license. This, it is believed, she has already done, and on receipt of the certificate she will forward her entry to the race headquarters.

A former transcontinental record holder, has entered in the person of Capt. E. L. Burnien, who will fly the Great Lakes aeroplane owned by Frank Treibwey, president of Skyways, Ltd., Toronto. Capt. Burnien, formerly a Royal Air Force officer in England, is well known around Toronto, having been an instructor there in 1930. In November last he left for California to accept an appointment as pilot for W. C. Durant, motor magnate, and was flying a Lockheed Vega, a similar type of machine to that used by Post and Gatty in their record globe encircling trip. It was while so employed that he hung up the unofficial record of 64 hours and 50 minutes for the trip from Los Angeles to Cleveland, a record which was subsequently shattered by the internationally famous speed ace, Capt. Frank Hawks.

Among the various types of machines which will be entered will be Gipsy Moths, Puss Moths, Fleets, Fairchilds, Avro-Avians, Hawker Hart's, Great Lakes, American Eagles, and a couple of Canadian designed and built machines—the "Valkyr" designed by Norman A. Thomson and constructed in a Chatham factory, and the "Canadian Cub" designed and built in Montreal.

Besides the pilots already mentioned, Capt. W. F. Shaylor, organizer for the race, has been notified that the following will be among the entrants: Capt. P. G. M. Sparks, dean and ace of light aeroplane racing pilots, who is now instructor for the Toronto Flying Clubs Ace Club at Walkerville, Ont.; E. Leigh Capreol, chief test pilot for the de Havilland aircraft of Canada, Ltd., whose aerobatics at the Canadian National Exhibition two years ago furnished numerous thrills for the hundreds of thousands who witnessed them; Major Geoffrey O'Brian, test pilot for the de Havilland company; Capt. "Jack" Sanderson, president of Fleet Aircraft of Canada, and formerly instructor of the London (Ont.) Flying Club; Jack Young, instructor of the Toronto Flying Club; J. R. Booth of Ottawa; Canadian Vickers pilots; and others from Eastern Canada whose names cannot at present be disclosed.

The course of the race is laid out over a 440-mile route, starting at the de Lesseps Airport just outside Toronto. The first leg takes the competitors to London, 114 miles away, with turning points at Hamilton and Brantford Airports. A control stop of one hour will be made at London. Then on to Windsor, 100 miles away, with a turning point at the air mail beacon at Chatham. Another stop of one hour will be made at Windsor. The third and longest leg takes the machines 226 miles, or 452 miles in the course of which the competitors will turn at the air mail beacon at Tilbury, then go due North to the lighthouse at Sarnia, over Wesleyville, Ont., and then turn on the Stratford Airport and land at the Centennial Waterloo Airport. The last leg of 55 miles runs from Kitchener to Exhibition Park, Toronto, with turning point at the railroad bridge at Oakleigh.

Machines are being handicapped so that, if possible, a bunched finish will result, which is expected for the throngs of visitors at the Canadian National Exhibition on Aviation Day.

CAR RUNS OVER FOOT OF GIRL

C. A. Mills of Tweed in Passing Bus Swerves to Road Shoulder

The Trenton-Belleville bus, driven by J. G. Rathbun, moving on the highway westward on Thursday afternoon slowed down at Bide-a-Wee camp when C. A. Mills, Tweed Ont., said to be trailing fairly close behind, applied his brakes to avoid hitting the bus with the result that his car climbed to the south side of the highway and went into the ditch. Miss E. Reddick, who is staying at Bide-a-Wee camp, was standing off the shoulder of the road in the driveway. On his way to the ditch a wheel of Mills' car is said to have passed over Miss Reddick's foot bruising it badly. Mills, the police state, claims that his wife went through the wind shield. Mrs. Mills, however, sustained only bruised legs. Mills suffered a sprained right arm. The left front wheel and fender were considerably damaged and the wind shield broke.

Constable Byles, of the Ontario Provincial Police, investigated.

THE ROAD TO YESTERDAY

Seeking the road to yesterday
The business man, the worldly-wise,
And some all bent and gray;
They seek the old ancestral home
Beneath the maple tree,
And live again the days of youth
In blissful memory.
But oh, a mist obscures the way.
The road they cannot find.
Tho' friends outstretch a welcome hand
And speak in greeting kind;
The road to yesterday is closed.
Tho' near it sometimes seems,
For those who seek this long-lost road
Find it alone in dreams.
—Helen B. Anderson.

POULTRY ENTRY GREATEST YET

Belleville Fair Exhibition to Excell All Past Records

Reports from the directors of the Belleville Fair are that they have the largest entry of poultry ever entered in any fair ever held in Belleville. Every class from the small Bantams up to the largest Rhode Island Reds is filled to capacity, showing that the surrounding district is paying more attention to their fowl than in past years. Besides the many classes of hens and cocks they will have large entries of pens that include a cock and hen, also a cock and two and three hens.

There are also classes for water fowl, such as ducks, geese and other fowl of the water. Turkeys also will be shown and it might be added that this class has more entries than ever before.

Pigeons, rabbits and other domestic pets will also be shown in the Poultry Building. There are 117 classes for poultry and prizes for each class will be given. Besides this there will be 22 special prizes for domestic pets. Taking all into consideration the Pet and Poultry Show at the Belleville Fair has a wonderful outlook.

Reynolds of Toronto, who died as a result of an auto crash on the highway seven miles east of Napanee Tuesday night. At Napanee General Hospital on Wednesday night it was stated that the condition of J. H. Dixon and D. G. MacNeish, the husbands, who were injured in the accident in which their wives were killed, was good. Wesley Dixon, who was also injured, is making good progress. The boy was more seriously hurt than the two men and for a time it was not expected that he would live, but hope is held out for a complete recovery.

Strange Accident Claims Human Life

Morin Heights, Que., Aug. 20.—(CP)—A strange accident claimed the life of Kenneth Kilpatrick, 21, and injured three of his companions.

The four men were members of a road gang engaged in blasting on the highway. They had set a charge of dynamite to blow up a section of rock bordering the road and dispersed for protection while the dynamite went off. Eleven of the men went into a barn while four including Kilpatrick, hid under a truck 300 yards away.

A huge stone, weighing well over 300 pounds, flew high in the air and crashed down on the body of the truck, driving its way through the floor boards and penetrating the men to the ground. Kirkpatrick was crushed to death while the other man, Victor Morvan, 20, Robert Black, 30 and Fred Black, 30, were injured about the back and ribs. The victims were all from Ile Jales, Que.

Must Not Carry Off Human Skulls

Uxbridge, Aug. 20.—With a thorough check by Oshawa provincial police underway to discover the person who have been carrying off skulls unearthed on the farm of Richard Carruthers, six miles south of here on Concession Seven, Crown Attorney J. A. McGibbon of Oshawa, declared last night that irrespective of whether the bones were those of Indians or white men the practice of molesting them, which carries a penalty of five years imprisonment, must be stopped immediately.

Since the discovery of the burial spot a few weeks ago, the crowds of curious seekers who have visited the spot to dig and carry away skulls has increased until on Sunday Mr. Carruthers estimated that 500 persons came from Toronto and other points. Provincial police are conducting a thorough investigation today to discover if possible the names of the persons who have been carrying off the skulls.

Canadian Factory recently com pleted at Peterborough, Ontario, by the large British firm of manufacturing chemists, A. Wander, Limited, London and King's Langley, England, makers of Ovaltine and other well-known products.

Another Industry Has Come to Canada

A. Wander Limited Establish an Ovaltine Factory at Peterborough, Ontario

One of the hopeful signs of the times is the confidence with which British manufacturers are building for the future prosperity of Canada. Among those who have proceeded with Canadian expansion plans is the great firm of A. Wander Limited, Manufacturing Chemists, London, England. Manufacturers of Ovaltine, the famous tonic food beverage, Ovaltine Malt and other well known products.

The Canadian factory is four stories high, situated on an eight acre site and contains floor space of fifty thousand square feet without counting the boiler room or the garage. Its exterior of white brick and masonry suggests a library, a banking building or a church rather than a factory, and realizes the ambition of its builders to make it one of the most beautiful of modern manufacturing plants. Beauty of architecture, which is one of the tendencies of modern times, has been achieved in a high degree.

One of the definite conditions set down by the Wander Company when choosing the site for their Canadian factory was that cold water which by analysis would measure up to a very high standard of purity should be available, because in the process of manufacture cold water is used for condensing purposes. The "company's tests are very rigid and many sites were rejected because the water available was not good enough or could not be obtained in the necessary quantity. At Elmwood Park, Peterborough, clear, cold, spring water of just the right quality was found and from a well sunk in the factory grounds this pure water flowed, by test, at the rate of 300 gallons per minute over a period of forty-eight hours. The well is pumped by electricity and the flow is automatically controlled.

The plan of the factory is splendidly worked out to maintain the high standards of Wanderism identified. Each one of the large production rooms is unusually well lighted and ventilated. Sunshine literally pours in through large windows, set close together. Most of the rooms have glass fine windows on two sides, and some rooms have them on three sides. Packing, storage and shipping rooms have the same advantages and a trip out on the roof of the building makes one think of days in the country, balmy atmosphere untainted by city grime and smoke.

Equipment Purchased in Canada

Practically all of the factory equipment of machinery, tanks, etc. was built to the company's specifications by Canadian firms. A malt mill and a certain very sensitive machine had to be secured in England because they are not made in this country.

Gives Employment to Canadians

When in complete operation the new factory will employ about sixty people to begin with, under direction of a plant superintendent, who came from the great home plant in England.

The ingredients used in Ovaltine are fresh eggs, fresh creamy milk and ripe barley malt will be the products of Canadian farms. Ovaltine is a great consumer of fresh eggs. In the English plant some 12,500,000 fresh laid eggs are used in a year. The company maintains a special egg farm of Indian running ducks in Hertfordshire which when fully developed will be the largest farm in the world developed exclusively for egg production. Special breeds of poultry are kept on this farm and the eggs are collected and used the day they are laid.

The dairy farms in the Peterborough district may be relied upon for the supply of rich milk required by the Ovaltine manufacturers. Malt extract, the third ingredient, will be obtained from barley grown in Canada.

"We are not use commercial egg powder, powdered milk, or dried beer malt," said Mr. Glaspel. "Our ingredients must be absolutely fresh." This means that Canadian farmers will also profit enormously from the establishment of the Ovaltine Canadian plant.

WINTER PLAN FOR RELIEF ANNOUNCED

Governments Will Grant Two Thirds Share where Idleness Great

STARTS SEPTEMBER

Henry Promises 50 Per Cent of Cost of Approved Works

Toronto, Aug. 22.—The Federal and Provincial Governments will bear two-thirds of the cost of direct relief, commencing Sept. 1, in those municipalities where there is excessive unemployment, and where it is impossible to provide work for citizens. Last year the Governments bore two-thirds of the excess cost of the direct relief. The new arrangement will lift a burden from the shoulders of municipalities suffering from excessive unemployment.

Premier Henry completed last night that there had been a certain amount of looseness on the part of the grant in discussing unemployment relief plans of the Federal and Provincial Governments. He said it had been referred to at yesterday's Cabinet Council meeting. He made it plain that the burden of the Government were applicable to municipalities confronted with extreme unemployment.

Normal Situation

Premier Henry pointed out that there was nothing beyond the normal amount of unemployment existing in more than two-thirds of the municipalities of the Province, and as a consequence the Government could not be expected to apply its program to them. He said in some municipalities there was no unemployment.

"The Governments are giving 50 per cent. on municipal undertakings such as water mains, storm sewers, grading, and so forth," said Premier Henry. "Mayor Stewart of Toronto referred to street maintenance yesterday. Costs of labor in tearing down buildings are a burden from the street-widening can come under this arrangement. All is contingent, of course on what the census on unemployment shows.

SINGLE MEN IN HIGHWAY WORK

Married Men Maintained at Less Cost at Home

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 22.—(By The Canadian Press)—Following a conference with Premier George S. Henry, Mr. W. Laven, Commissioner of Public Welfare, reported to Mayor Stewart that single men, except in rare exceptional cases, would be the only ones used on highway construction. This was decided on the assumption that married men could be maintained at less cost when they live at home with their families ruling. This, however, the Premier intimated, would not apply to married men residents in the districts where the work is being carried on.

Transportation arrangements are in the hands of the Federal and Provincial Governments, Mr. Laver said.

The men will be paid at the rate of 30 cents an hour for an eight-hour day, the Premier added. Again this men will be charged $1 a day for board.

Although Premier Henry's original estimate was that about 10,000 single men would be used on the highway work, he said he was prepared to double or even treble this number if such an occasion should arise.

Work on the new trans-Canada highway is expected to commence shortly after Sept. 1.

Disarmament by Limit on Budget Expenses

Lorodo, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Disarmament by limitation of budgetary expenditures for military purposes was stressed in a note from the British Government to the League of Nations, published Saturday as a preliminary to the 1932 disarmament conference.

The point was made by implication alone, for the official summary given out by the Government calls attention to the limitation of the memorandum to facts and figures and says "while the publication of a memorandum of the French Government it contains no discussion of it."

BARON STANLEY PASSES TODAY

Fifth Baron Stanley of Alderley Was Former Liberal M.P.

London, Aug. 22 (CP).—Arthur Leyloh Stanley, Fifth Baron Stanley of Alderley, died today at the age of, 56 years. His son, Hon. Edward John Stanley, who is 30 years of age, succeeds to the title.

The Fifth Baron came into the title six years ago. He was Liberal member of the House of Commons for the Eddisbury Division of Cheshire from 1906 to 1910 but renounced allegiance to the Liberal party earlier this year, following in the wake of Lord Snowy and Lord Rosebery.

Baron Stanley was Governor of Victoria, Australia, from 1914 to 1920.

Most Serious Food Crisis Since 185. Menaces China

Church of England Mission Expected to Feed Refugees

HONAN FLOODED

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP)—Yellow, silt-laden waters, surging from the melting snows on the mountain ranges in distant Tibet, have contributed each year to fill millions of families with the fear of impending starvation, according to the record serious food crisis since 1853.

Threatening grave reports to indicate the most serious situation within the past three quarters of a century, Bishop William White, head of the diocese of Honan, and of the Church of England mission probably would undertake the feeding of refugees, Bishop White, who has just arrived from China to attend the coming general Synod, said the destruction of crops by the sweeping floods would mean that twenty million people at least would be affected but not so seriously.

Human Life Less Not Great.

Loss of life from the actual floods would not be so heavy, Bishop White pondicted but he feared the subsequent epidemics of fever and disease resulting from the lack of food, would take a heavy toll.

Still bearing the scars of battle, all eastern Honan, which bore the brunt of the heavier fighting during the civil war, is heavily inundated. Already the crops have been wiped out and only negligible—if any—will be ready for October planting with the result that millions of families will be forced to depend entirely on charity.

Low lying Areas

It would be mainly the low lying rural sections, Bishop White observously, Bishop White said. The Yellow River, which has built up mounds of refuse tossed into the streets through centuries, has made little protection from the overflowing waters. Great gullies drilled silt blocked rivers and channels, carried off normally, and scattered over the countryside. Rail lines and its numerous tributaries overflat farm lands, Dykes, Bishop White, provided only tra-porary relief. When the banks fell, however, practically all would be able to flee to safety, taking with them only a little clay mounds and would be drowned. Of, he said, there was little to defeat the elements. The Chinese, he declared, had long since attained there was no use attempting to fight them.

Their miserable existence, living from "hand to mouth," Bishop White said, made them indifferent to life, and death usually was welcome.

No apprehension was felt by Bishop White for the safety of Canadian missionaries at the Anglican mission in Kweieh, Honan.

FIVE DAY ULTIMATUM IS GIVEN BY SPAIN TO VATICAN

Madrid, Aug. 22—A protest sent to the vatican against alleged anti-government activities by Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura Saenz and Bishop Muguiza of Vitoria includes an ultimatum allowing the Holy See five days in which to explain whether it had knowledge of documents recently found in the Catholic cleric the border, it announced today.

The documents were said by government officials to have been found on Justo Antonio Echegaren, Vicar-General of Vitoria, who was arrested by the Spanish last Friday while on his way to visit the exiled Bishop Mugica.

Minister of Interior Miguel Maura said that anti-government feeling in the northern provinces was running high under Catholic and Basque Nationalist inspiration, and the government had decided to "take severe measures" against activity men and three divisions of troops there as a precautionary measure.

HITCH HIKER IN CAR WITH MAD YOUTH FLEES

Policeman Struck on Head by Maniac With Ball Bat

YOUTH DEFIANT

London, Ont., Aug. 22.—Highway traffic between Lobo and Poplar Hill on Sunday, 32 west of London, was halted while the police engaged in a strange battle with the young son of a prominent farmer.

The youth, who had formerly been a patient at the Ontario Hospital in that municipality, was sought his father's car when attention was attracted by his unusual behavior.

A short distance up the road he had picked up a hitch hiker, also a suspected nothing.

Traffic Constable John Witty halted the driver, and when he asked for his driver's license, the young man tried to knock him out with a baseball bat. Witty was taken unawares and fought desperately.

The maniac, however, held to the club and brandishing two other officer's grasp, retreated to a fence corner where he maintained his ground. The Rich-hiker, meantime, had fled in terror from the scene.

The first report that reached County Police Headquarters was that a policeman had been murdered in a gun duel on the road near Lobo. Immediately, cars were rushed from the County Police garage and from the London police officers, sped to the scene.

In the meantime, Divisional Headquarters of the Provincial Police received a similar call from a nearby farm, and Constables Rex Caverley and Mason Bowman left Caverley Amey, sped over the 75-mile course from the city at a mile-a-minute clip.

They arrived to find that the road had been closed down somewhat though he still stood, club in hand, defying anyone.

The police used a combination of persuasion and authority, and the man was taken without further struggle to the jail. Constable Witty is under Jail. He is to be sent back to the Ontario Hospital.

TODAY'S PARLEY

Opinions Differ as to how Long Labor Gov't. Can Endure

London, August 22.—(Canadian Press Cable)—His Majesty has decided to return to London immediately from Balmoral Castle, Scotland, where he went only yesterday with Queen Mary.

It was stated by some newspapers that His Majesty's return was connected with the political-financial crisis.

Rumor succeeded rumor in London this afternoon as the Cabinet resumed its sitting, following apparent conclusion of the talks between spokesmen for the three parties.

There were stories of a dissolution of Parliament, a dissolution which no party leader and almost denies stories of a settlement. So far, however, the Conservatives and Liberals have not returned to Downing Street.

The King will return by special train from Balmoral to Ballater, nearest railway station to Balmoral. He leaves at six o'clock this evening and will reach London early tomorrow morning. According to the Evening News the King's return "means only one thing—that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has not been able to obtain sufficient support for his composite government from either his own party or from the Opposition, and that the resignation of the Labor Government is imminent."

Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party, the largest Opposition group, is also back back from Paris. The full Cabinet remained in session this afternoon.

London, Aug. 22 (C P Cable)—The Labor Cabinet adjourned this afternoon for the week-end after a morning. Conferences between representatives of the Liberal, Conservative and Liberal parties have apparently ended. His Majesty is returning to London from Scotland and will be here early tomorrow morning. Hon. Stanley Baldwin will be back tonight. These known facts led to a host of speculations and rumors in London this evening which some commentators hazarded the opinion the King was returning because of the political crisis, and that his unexpected return meant Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was ready to resign.

If the Premier's departure is contemplating resigning—and there is nothing definite to indicate—except the King's return — no announcement would be made tonight for in the ordinary course of events the Prime Minister's resignation is announced when he goes to attend His Majesty.

Still no official statements have been made. The Prime Minister and the Cabinet met in full council for two weeks and apparently no progress was made. Each party spokesmen have agreed to say nothing at the present juncture. They have left London, while the Prime Minister and Chancellor Philip Snowden remain at the office, adjourned for luncheon today.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Press Cable)—The conferences between the Conservatives, Liberatives and Liberals over economies have concluded, the arrangements has been made for their resumption. but, the spokesman for the three parties are holding themselves in readiness for a possible call from the King, if needed.

From this brief intimation it, is inferred—although no official announcement has been made—that their-party understanding has been reached; that all that remains is for Prime Minister MacDonald to report the conclusions of the party Cabinet this afternoon and secure his sanction to whatever agreements has been made. The inter-party discussions occupied an hour and a half today, taking place after a morning meeting of the Cabinet had adjourned for luncheon.

Hamblelon, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Agreement between the Government and Opposition parties on the economy programme is apparently in sight.

Each day shows an increase in the number of unemployed registrations being received at the City Hall and at the Labor Bureau, Mayor Ellis stated this morning.

From Friday noon up to noon Saturday, sixty more registrations were received including both officer, and men, bringing the total at Ex-City Engineer's Office, 169 married men and 93 single men, total 262.

HITCH HIKER IN CAR WITH MAD YOUTH FLEES

Policeman Struck on Head by Maniac With Ball Bat

YOUTH DEFIANT

London, Ont., Aug. 22.—Highway traffic between Lobo and Poplar Hill on Sunday, 32 west of London, was halted while the police engaged in a strange battle with the young son of a prominent farmer.

The youth, who had formerly been a patient at the Ontario Hospital in that municipality, was sought his father's car when attention was attracted by his unusual behavior.

A short distance up the road he had picked up a hitch hiker, also a suspected nothing.

Traffic Constable John Witty halted the driver, and when he asked for his driver's license, the young man tried to knock him out with a baseball bat. Witty was taken unawares and fought desperately.

The maniac, however, held to the club and brandishing two other officer's grasp, retreated to a fence corner where he maintained his ground. The Rich-hiker, meantime, had fled in terror from the scene.

The first report that reached County Police Headquarters was that a policeman had been murdered in a gun duel on the road near Lobo. Immediately, cars were rushed from the County Police garage and from the London police officers, sped to the scene.

In the meantime, Divisional Headquarters of the Provincial Police received a similar call from a nearby farm, and Constables Rex Caverley and Mason Bowman left Caverley Amey, sped over the 75-mile course from the city at a mile-a-minute clip.

They arrived to find that the road had been closed down somewhat though he still stood, club in hand, defying anyone.

The police used a combination of persuasion and authority, and the man was taken without further struggle to the jail. Constable Witty is under Jail. He is to be sent back to the Ontario Hospital.

FIGHT TO THE DEATH

Auto Halted by Truck and Three Slayers Killed by Volleys

New York, Aug. 22—Five persons were killed yesterday and a fourth year old girl so seriously wounded that she may die, in a battle between police and bandits that ended through the streets of upper Manhattan.

For an hour and a half automobiles careened through crowded streets spouting bullets indiscriminately. In addition to those killed twelve persons were injured and taken to hospitals.

Among the dead are the two bandits and the driver of the taxicab in which they escaped from running fight.

The recklessness of the bandits was shown by the fact that they fought and died in defense of the comparatively trivial sum of $4,-618 which the paymaster and manager of the Mendosa Fur Dyeing Works. They shot down policemen on traffic duty without no warning of their approach, they started flaming pistols from the clearing the way with bullets when they found their escape blocked.

Pedestrians idling along the residential streets of Washington Heights and the Bronx, had no time to take cover. They heard the staccato of the shooting above the whine of sirens, saw a cab out of which bursts of flame were coming, then by followed by eight automobiles filled with policemen. Here and there a person too close to the line of fire stumbled to the sidewalk wounded as the battle line went past.

An unwieldy truck, backing out of a Dyeshire Street alleyway, halted the fighting, for the bandits' taxicab could not go and the occupants settled in the rear seat to fight it out.

Major Power Says Liberals Will Carry Quebec Election

Montreal, Aug. 22 (CP).—Claiming that at least 23 out of the 38 constituencies in the Province district will go Liberal, Major, C. G. Power, Chief Liberal organizer at Quebec, has issued an official statement of confidence in the result of the general election on Monday next. There are 90 constituencies in the province.

Continuing a campaign in which he has spoken for over a week, travelling Mayor Camillien Houde, leader of the Quebec Conservatives last night pleaded his case before a gathering in the Monument National, Shawinigan Falls. Vigorously denouncing the social legislation of Quebec as inferior to that of Ontario, Mayor Houde promised pensions for widows, "regardless of old people; guaranteed he would co-operate with the Federal Government in meeting the unemployment problem; and advocated revision of the workmen's compensation act in the interest of the workmen. The conservative government under his leadership, said the mayor, would also arrange a loan to farmers at two per cent with the purpose of stimulating agriculture and keeping young men on the land.

Trade Balance is Turned Favorably

Ottawa, Aug. 23—(CP)—Canada's favor balancing her foreign trade in her own favor, according to the department of trade and commerce. Latest figures show that in the months of June and July of this year exports exceeded imports by well over two million dollars as compared with an unfavorable balance last year of $11,000,000 for June and over $8,000,000 in July.

Trade statistics for July show a decrease in imports of over $38,000,000 from July of last year and a decrease of only $27,000,000 exports. While the volume of exports was considerably larger in July than in the corresponding months of last year, some commodity prices accounted for a large percentage of this decrease. The average price of wheat per bushel in July was 47.3 cents as compared with 98 1-2 cents in July of last year. The average value of wheat flour dropped by $1.94 a barrel and the value of planks and boards dropped by $2.80 per thousand feet. The reduced valuation in three commodities alone accounted for nearly one-fifth of the total reduction in Canada's exports.

Other Government statistics issued during the past week show a continued increase in the output over last year of leading mineral products like gold, nickel, zinc, feldspar and petroleum, an increase in the warehouse value of building permits issued in Canada, particularly in the city of Montreal and an increase of over 23 percent in the number of radio licenses issued to the end of July of the current fiscal year as compared to the corresponding period last year.

He also declared he could see no hope of going to London unless the government changes its present course.

Now, however, the Viceroy is expected to give the Mahatma a friendly overture and have the Nationalist leader here from Ahmedabad at once.

TWO MEN HELD AS ASSAILANTS

Accused of Brutal Attack on Chief of Police Wilson

Port Credit, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP)—A few hours after Chief of Police Telfer Wilson of Port Credit had been attacked and beaten by Edward Owens of Islington, was arrested, charged with assault on the chief.

Owens was arraigned in Brampton police court and remanded one week on bail of $500. Later in the day a second man was taken into custody and held as a material witness. Owens declined to disclose his name.

Chief Wilson was set upon shortly after midnight Thursday night and beaten by two men as he entered the telephone exchange building. He received a severe forehead gash; a badly cut eye and a mangled thumb in the encounter. Marvin Nelson of Port Dodge, Iowa, marathon swimmer, who is training at Port Credit, discovered the chief's notebook, torn and mutilated, near the scene of the attack.

The whole affair would be sifted to the bottom without delay, Reeve W. B. Hare said.

CRIME AMONG YOUNG PROBED

Approach to Problem will be Revolutionized

Port Carling, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP)—"The Canadian Press)—Approach to the problem of juvenile delinquency would be revolutionized by methods now being used, predicted Hugh W. O. Mackenzie, Director of Public Welfare for Ontario, at a meeting of Social Service leaders here Friday night.

Recent amendments to the industrial schools act were producing results, he said. The co-ordinating method of securing a complete report as to the child's home environment, educational standing and physical and mental conditions and the investigations by the Juvenile courts is enabling the Department of Public Welfare to build up a system that will give a definite answer to the question as to the relationship of broken homes to juvenile delinquency and to the relationship of mental deficiency to behavior problems."

Segregation of mentally defective delinquents from those of normal type was essential, young men were to be guided into lawful and law-abiding citizens, said Mr. Mackenzie.

Pinewood Importations Blamed for Diseases

Ottawa, Aug. 22 (CP)—Importation into Canada of small early varieties of pinewood has been banned by the Department of Agriculture because of insect plagues, the account of the white pine blister rust every summer. Trees harvested spected from all countries has been denied entrance to Canada since the importation of Austrian, Scotch and Swiss timberlands, which has been prohibited because of the European pine shoot moth. Recent shipments of pine from these countries have been found to be infested with the moth.

Restrictions have been placed by the Department of Agriculture on the movement of poplars and willows from districts infested with borers and certain areas in British Columbia because of the satin moth.

Here and There

Canada's total wool clip is about 21,000,000 pounds annually, while Canadian mills use 140 million here as much as this every year, and Canadian consumption of manufactured woollens equals about four times the clip.

Take Louise Icelandic poppies one of the glories of this part of Canada. Their seeds are in demand in thousands of gardens all over the world. Gardeners at the Chateau are now busy gathering seeds which will later be mailed to guests of the hotel this season.

Representing an increase of 31,000,000 pounds over the same period last year, 193,989,900 bushels of grain were marketed on Canadian Pacific Railway western lines during the twelve-month period since August 1, 1930. This gives the railway company a percentage of 22.3 of all the grain handled in that period.

More than 475,000,000 fish eggs, fry, fingerlings and yearling fish and a few older fish were distributed last year from the hatchery establishments operated by the Fish Culture Division of the Canadian Department of Fisheries, Ottawa. Canada has now 24 fish hatcheries in the Prairie Provinces.

Nipigon River Bungalow Camp Trophy competition is getting some fine entries this season. Recently a trout of 14 pounds and one ounce was put in, and shortly afterwards a six pounder and a ten-ounce trout was taken. Catches of three to four pound fish are frequent and one of the best fishing years in years is reported from the camp.

J. O. Turcotte, Canadian Exhibition Commissioner, who visited Regina recently, in connection with interior decoration in the Manufactures Building, stated that it will house the World's Grain Exhibition and the exhibit of grain that a start on this work will be made immediately. Manufactures will be in grain seeds, no paint of any kind will be used.

The Dutch wheat misting law, effective July 4, enforcing a maximum of 25 per cent. of soft offal in wheat flour for the making of bread in Holland, may lead to an increase in the export of wheat and should have the effect of creating a demand for Canada's hard bard wheat, says J. C. Magill-Wedderburn, Canadian Commissioner at Rotterdam.

"Development of Canada's ocean ports is not a matter of local interest but is a matter of international concern to the British Empire as a whole as well," is the conviction expressed by Sir Alexander Gibb, C.B.E., world famous engineer and authority on port development and operation, who has been called in to supervise the rebuilding of the Saint John port facilities, recently destroyed by fire.

Stay of the King and Queen of Siam at the Banff Springs Hotel during the latter half of August will be the feature of the season at that famous Canadian Rockies resort. Big Swim Lottery Under Investigation

Toronto, Aug. 22—Two different sets of lottery tickets were seized by the police yesterday and a number of persons questioned. Tickets on the "Creaserwitch," on a Chinese gambling lottery were confiscated and it was learned last night that tickets on the Manitou swim, one of the feature events of the coming Exhibition, were being sold in Toronto and arrests are likely to be made.

Sylvester Cherry, 311 George St. was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective-Sergeants Crowe and McAllister with Plainclothesmen Knox and Weldrick. Cherry is charged with selling lottery tickets. Eleven books and a number of loose sheets of stakes tickets were found in his possession. Later the police arrested Harry McIntosh, 343 Jarvis street, on a charge of having lottery tickets in his possession.

The tickets Cherry had in his possession, police said, were sent here from Dordrecht, Holland. The pool according to literature seized, is for $400,000. The drawing takes place in list of awards, including cash prizes for the sale of the tickets on the first three horses to finish in the race. A 15 per cent. rake-off is taken on all the money received and the remainder is pooled.

Precaution is Urged By Chief Against Fires

"We had seven rans yesterday," said Fire Chief William J. Bruch today commenting on the fire hazard created by the dry condition of grass and bush, "and I would ask the citizens of Belleville to exercise every precaution in the prevention of outbreaks of fires. At one time yesterday we had as many as four apartments into three platoons to battle three fires, one in Bridge Street another on Emily Street and the third on Front Road.

"This is the first time in history that I know of where the Belleville fire department had to be split into three parts in order to cope with the situation.

A three hours' battle on the dump ground on this fireman yesterday afternoon and evening. No damage was done though if the wind had not veer all the time the flames would be fighting.

This morning a truck of the Ashton Co-operative organization took fire in its storage in the Grandview Hotel lane and showed out to the street. The damage was confined to the wiring of the truck and the radiator, but damage was caused to the building.

RANCHES IN PATH OF FIRE

Ring of Flame Surrounds Many Properties Near Fernie, B.C.

Fernie, Aug. 22 (CP)—Pinned by high winds and aided by dry climate conditions, the fire demon is again terrorizing settlers and stands of mercantile timber in the Elk Valley district.

At Fernie the fire which was checked last week within three miles of the town, broke out of control and split into two sections. The largest conflagration is burning directly into Dickity-wood area of the Bonnery's Ferry in Idaho and the East Kootenay lumber companies Agricultural boo men are striving desperately to fight the rapid progress of the flames.

The other branch of the fire is burning along the east side of the Kootenay river between Elko and Wardner. In this vicinity apprehensions are felt for the safety of several ranchers. The Brewer and Ingham ranches are almost surrounded by flames and no one has been able to break through the ring of fire.

THINK FUMES CAUSE DEATH

Others in Plant Under Observation by Health Board

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 22.—(By The Canadian Press)—Coroner Dr. Crawford is investigating a report that the fumes from a benzol solution used in a local factory has caused the death of two men and serious illness of others engaged in the work. Albert Bayman died July 3, and William Gaskin August 11, and two other workers are suffering from a similar disease. The Provincial Board of Health authorities ordered Bayman's body sent to Kingston instead of "spalistic analysis" as stated at first. Others employed in the same plant are under observation.

Relatives of the afflicted men say the attacks were signalized by extreme dizziness, gradual weakening of the system and complete collapse. The attention of the Provincial Board of Health was directed to the cases when one of the victims applied for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Board.

The fume, it is said, rises in the "japan" room of the factory and the benzol solution is used to put a floral surface on leather.

Veteran's Tryst With Old Pals

Pittsburgh, Aug. 22.—John Pitzgerald, his health shattered by shells and gas on the western front, lay on a cot at the Aspinwall Veterans' Hospital here and estimated the span of his life to be only a few weeks.

He estimated too, that his comrades-in-arms, with whom he soldier's bonus totalled $280. And it occurred to Fitzgerald that he could spend $300 because the Government would bury him.

In the long days on his hospital cot he had often pondered the fate of other men who had come out of the war with their health intact, but who were doomed to a life-time of poverty. The weeks coasted by, and one evening Fitzgerald regretfully bade his idea.

"It was no easy matter to rise from the cot and struggle into his clothing," he said. "He slipped through the door, expending a small sum on a hospital attendant who promised would guide him to the street.

There are cabarets and restaurants in Pittsburgh where the dying man might go to eke out the last few hours with excitement. Fitzgerald went to the 'Helping Hand' Mission, and gathered a number of men who were destitute. Some of them were war veterans, some only swapped yarns with him. The dying man promised into the hand of each fellow veteran a bill. Maybe it was enough to buy a meal ticket, a pair of shoes or a ticket home.

This casual philanthropy endured for a week. Fitzgerald's money lasted for a bill to aid a man and found only a quarter and a fifty-cent piece in his pocket. He went out of the mission to a cheap lodging house where he registered under an assumed name and went to his room.

That night he died, alone.

NO GAG SAYS COL. H. LENNOX

Beauharnois Committee Member Denies Any "Agreement"

Newmarket, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP)—Denying there had been any "gentleman's agreement" or any "whitewashing" in the report of the Beauharnois committee of the House of Commons, T. K. Lennox, K.C., M.P., York North, addressing his constituents here, said a party loyalty attended meeting here last night declared the committee had "given all in the power to reveal dere fictions of those connected with the affair."

Col. Lennox, who was vice-chairman of the committee which probed the Beauharnois scandal, said he felt proud of the course taken in the matter by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, and he believed this way attended meeting here last night declared the committee had given all in the power to reveal dere fictions of those connected with the affair."

Col. Lennox, who was vice-chairman of the committee which probed the Beauharnois scandal, said he felt proud of the course taken in the matter by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, and he believed this was the sentiment of every Canadian regardless of political affiliation.

The committee, he proceeded, was appointed for a specific purpose and so far as "our jurisdiction extended and so far as our powers went, nothing was left uncovered that could be brought to the attention of the people of this country. One only suspects the publication of the newspapers that we were a committee appointed for the purpose of whitewashing anything which had been made to either of the political parties for the benefit of either. That, of course, was not our duty. We had a power and the right and the authority to deal with any contributions which had been given or made to either of the political parties or the Dominion itself. Those contributions related to and arose out of the Beauharnois situation.

Betty Carstairs Will Not Race But Watch

New York, N.Y., Aug. 23—Betty Carstairs, famous English woman pilot, has arrived for the Harmsworth trophy race at Detroit Sept. 5 it but her role this time will be solely that of a spectator, she said.

Twice before in her attempts to win the trophy from Gar Wood of Detroit Miss Carstairs charged unfounded rumors that she would compete against Wood and Kays Davis of Great Britain in this year's contest.

"I do not care to say who the pilot will be," she said, "but depend upon her arrival on the Berengaria, "I am too good a friend of Gar Wood for that. I have a boat, you know that she's fast. Just what he can do with it and how the Detroit River remains to be seen. I think Harmsworth trophy races are not for women. I do not know whether Don's boat has been conditioned for the final on the Detroit."

TERSE TALKS on TIMELY TOPICS

THE HOLE IN THE DOUGHNUT PILLOW CITIZENS:

For some time there has been considerable discussion as to just why there is a hole in a doughnut. Some say that it is to allow room so that somebody could make that wisecrack about the quantities being the fat content and the greatest being the hole. Others claim that the hole was first put in the doughnut by some fresh air fiend.

In a restaurant which caters to tourists, that is, that caters to any tourists, it was found that the owner restaurants until they get that far, but in a restaurant frequented by citizens, so it is said, he used either a doughnut or an anchor.

In California the hole is put in so that with every doughnut you also get a little of the famous California climate. Whatever the doughnut does to your insides, the climate will probably set it. In California a great many people have eaten doughnuts all their lives, yet have lived until they died, from natural causes, regardless of some of the climate.

Some say that the hole in the doughnut represents the doughnut manufacturer's profit. Many a man has gone into the business of making doughnuts and has come out with the hole. It is said to be seen that it is a good deal like any other business. All you have to do is get through is a O. Whereas a doughnut costs but a few cents, about 8 per cent.

A couple of men went into the doughnut manufacturing business and made a fortune. Many a man has failed. They started with a bright idea. As it costs practically nothing to put a hole in a doughnut, he figured that the larger the hole the larger the profit. But after the cost a lot per doughnut they found that the larger the hole the more doughnuts it took to go around the hole.

After all, the best way is to buy the best material and make the best goods, even if it does take a little money.

Youth Decoyed Into Selling Liquor—Fined, Costs

Simcoe, Aug. 22—Found guilty of selling illicit liquor, Lucie Leclou, aged 17, of Middleton township, was fined $200 and costs or committed to 30 days in jail.

Scoring the methods employed by the police in obtaining evidence, Colin A. Gunn, K.C., counsel for Leclou, exclaimed.

"Imagine a corporal of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and his assistant, securing a noted bootlegger to lodge a false information to obtain liquor for them. The facts in this case are almost repulsive. Is that all that the mounted Police are for—to induce boys to sell them moonshine?"

Corporal E. G. Weeks testified that Leclou had sold liquor to him and handled the case. On August 8 he went to the Leclou home with a man named Grant Griffin jo see the lad, ostensibly for the purpose of negotiating for a supply of moonshine liquor.

The officer admitted in court that he was acting as a purchaser and distributor. Tr-ti nglch. Leclou had brought three quarts to the Griffin home. Corporal Weeks and Constable Weeks offered to purchase it, offer, however, letting Griffin buy the liquor.

The price paid was five dollars Griffin was later convicted of an excise act violation and fined.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Gunton observed that although the methods of the officer were not to be criticized, neither could they be approved. "It is very regrettable," he said, "to drag a 17-year-old boy into business of this nature."

SUMMER'S HEAT

Those who have survived the present summer's heat will live to tell to future generations the wonders of perhaps the hottest summer in memory. Not one hot spell only, nor two, nor three, but more than that, has been the mark of the summer of 1931.

For the summer resort and the picnicker the days and nights have been a delight and a pleasure, so much at variance with the experience in some years when not a single heat wave struck the country. This has been the finest summer for tanning and using a minimum of clothing for many years.

On the obverse side is the drought condition. Lawns have parched which once were green, while farmlands have ceased looking for rain in any quantity to benefit agriculture. Then there was almost water famine in the cities owing to the unexpected demands upon the water supplies of the corporations.

But for those who did not look for crops, who led the idyllic days of holidays the summer has been the finest on record.

Can the autumn and the winter equal in their own way this wondrous summer?

THE UNIVERSE, PRESENT AND FUTURE

A remarkable summary, in a few paragraphs, of the present state of physical science and its future possibilities, taken from an address by Leon Lecornu, delivered at a public meeting of the Paris Academy of Science, appears in Commaed in (Paris)

Mr. Lecornu is quoted as saying:

"Have the ether waves any influence on our health?

"It is certain that this is the case with light and heat rays, and with the ultra-violet rays as well as the Zones and the alternating currents used in medicine. As for those used in wireless and in radio it would appear that such influence, if it exists at all, is absolutely negligible, for even at a very short distance from a transmitting station the energy received is too feeble to act effectively. We need not, therefore, suffer any anxiety on this account.

"To hear at all distances is already possible, but we wish to go further and realize television. The moving-picture became a 'talkie'; now we have the reverse problem of turning telephony into television.

"We have almost solved it.

"The day will come when, comfortably seated in a closed room, we shall see the inhabitants of the antipodes as well as hear them speak.

"The reverse of the medal is that the enthusiasm roused by great discoveries now scarcely moves us.

"Besides this is the inconvenience, inherent in all relations at great distances, that, as with Balzac's wild ass's skin, the surface of our planet seems to have shrunk in proportion to the satisfaction of our desires.

"It is true, of course, that we know only its outer skin. Below that, we should have to travel some 4,000 miles before reaching the center.

"There lies the kingdom of Pluto, about which we possess only the vaguest information.

"In the other direction, that is, away from the earth, we are much better served. Everything indicates that about three hundred miles there is an atmosphere layer that opposes the passage of wireless waves and so increases the horizontal distance that they will cover. Above that begins the void occupied by distant celestial bodies that the telescope —and spectroscope enable us to study with daily increasing precision.

"Meanwhile, if the investigator, instead of directing his attention to the infinitely large, turns toward the infinitely small, he finds there other marvels.

"In every atom he divines a central star called the nucleus, surrounded by a swarm of planets, obeying, in their revolutions, laws very different from those of celestial mechanics; nevertheless he believes, as a fundamental dogma, that here also the law of the conservation of energy holds.

"This is not all. The nucleus, despite its prodigious smallness, is susceptible of spontaneous evolution, decomposition. This is the case with radium, which we have been able to attack, with radiation that is sufficiently penetrating.

"It has been shown that this microcosm contains formidable reserves of energy which in the future we may be able to utilize. This would be the greatest industrial revolution that humanity has ever known.

"Will it make us happier? That is quite another question!"

LOCAL WORK PROGRAM

Interest is rife in Belleville as to the program which is to be recommended for work under relief plans during the coming winter months. With the registration proceeding so that the city council may have some idea of the amount of work to be required to keep the jobless busy, plans should soon take form.

THE JOURNEY
By Aline Michaelis

I plan to make a journey,
And I will take along
The frills and furbelows I love,
The hats as gay as song.

I'll pack my shoes and slippers,
My gloves for night and day,
My hose and handkerchiefs and pearls,
My loveliest negligee.

Oh, very far away I'll go
(Hills climb and breakers roar!)
My eyes will look on many lands
They have not seen before;

I'll sail beyond the farthest sea,
Tread loftiest mountains' crown;
But through it all, Dear One, I'll be Right here, with you, in town!

JACK DEMPSEY is evidently attempting a "come back" for he has signed up for several four-round bouts in the west. Thus far he has had little trouble crushing over the lads matched against him. Jack is getting plenty of publicity through his divorce proceedings against his wife, Estelle Taylor, moving picture actress, and also his memoirs in Saturday Evening Post, edited by a noted writer of short stories, Charles Coe. Jack's version of the battle of Toledo when he dethroned Jess Willard from the championship pedestal is particularly interesting. The promoters were afraid that Willard being so much larger, would murder Jack, and spoil the fighting game for all time. Jack and Doc Kearns, his manager, bet ten thousand dollars that Dempsey would win by a knockout in the first round. That first round at Toledo will never be forgotten by those who saw it in person or in pictures, and Jack may be forgiven for thinking that he had won in the first stanza, leaving the ring and being carried around the stadium on the shoulders of frenzied admirers. Kearns frantically called him back in the ring to find that Willard had recovered considerably and that he had gone back as the result of relaxing and thinking he had won that ten to one bet of $100,000. However, he won the championship and money flowed freely his way after that.

JOY IN THE JUNGLE, the hobo's jungle, i work for the winter in the labor battalions. No joy for the real hard-boiled hobo, however, who will either have to go to work or go hungry. For hoboes found hereafter without a work registration card are going to be used just a bit roughly by the railroad dicks, the soft shoe sleuths and the city flat-foots. Work registration cards are going to be regarded as evidence of willingness to work and to be without one and on the loose will be just too bad.

LOTS OF FUN AT THE FAIR THIS YEAR
Belleville Fair Has Many Special Attractions of Interest on This Year's Program Including ATHLETIC MEET
Bigger and Better Than Ever is much over-worked phrase but it can truthfully be used in connection with Belleville Fair, 1931 version. Nothing has been left to chance to provide four days of the finest entertainment possible and everything is lining up to the king's taste with the officers working overtime to put this year's fair over as the biggest and best ever. President Charlie Hanna and the veteran Secretary Joe Ketchem, are enthusiastic at the prospects, and their optimism is only a reflection of that of the joint Directors and Publicity, Chas. J. Symons, who is sending the grand news far and near that this year's Belleville Fair will stand as the end of depression and the beginning of an era of prosperity for all.
Hence this should be called Prosperity Year.
Entries in the various classes, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry are large and from every side comes word of showing of horses will be worth travelling miles to see. Agricultural products, vegetables and all the other lines will be well filled, while the women's section this year will contain many surprises.
Many special attractions have been arranged for and there will be something doing every minute before the Grand Stand where the famous Ryckman Girls Orchestra will entertain with fine music, while Miss Louise Van, beautiful acrobat will do unbelievable things on the flying trapeze assisted by her partner, Morton Brown.
The speeding events promise great and exciting contests with the fastest horses in Canada entered and large purses offered.
Fire works displays every evening will add brightness and gaiety to the scene and there will be fun, entertainment and education for all.
Meet the Boys Overseas at Belleville Fair, will be the popular expression used on the midway and promises many weird and wonderful surprises, full of thrills and mystery.

Cabinet Resignation is Unlikely in Extreme

London, Aug. 21, (CP).—Rumors that the Labor Government might resign were denied in authoritative circles today. The measures for handling the financial crisis were discussed in informal quarters and it was said such a development was considered to be unlikely in the extreme.

The rumors rose out of reports that Prime Minister MacDonald had met with serious obstacles to his economy proposals yesterday. On one hand, it was said the Conservative leaders were dissatisfied that no sweeping cuts in the dole or other sufficient economies were proposed.

TRIPARTITE AGREEMENT

From Staff Writer:)

London, Aug. 22—Promptly at 9:30 this morning the curtain again rang up the great drama of Downing Street.

Summoned to the first Saturday Cabinet in years, the Ministers of the Labor Government were grave of air as they passed to the cars of spectators on the pavements in front of No. 10. The inevitable press photographer was there again, joined this morning by his brother of the moving picture camera.

Liberal and Conservative Party representatives were expected later to resume the Three Party discussions.

The day, it is expected, will decide whether the Government of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, the second Labor administration in British history, will stand or fall. The "Government is on the brink."

London, Aug. 23—After a full day of conferences which put a heavy strain on Premier MacDonald and Chancellor of Exchequer Philip Snowden, it was believed the Prime Minister had decided not to risk further delay in deciding the Government's policy.

A tri-party conference was held Friday night and, when it was ended, well-informed sources said Mr. MacDonald had taken the attitude that the Government, "and less the Trades Union Council, must govern the country."

The Trades Union Council has attempted to dictate terms to the Government to maintain unemployment relief funds.

Menaced Fruit and Rear

Caught in a crossfire, the Labor Government is menaced front and rear—"famine tariff turned down —"fury ultimatum to the Government" run black headlines in the Daily Herald, Labor's semi-official organ.

And signs are multiplying of uneasiness in the trades union ranks.

"The Ministry," declares the post, an organ of the union of postal workers, "are faithfully obeying the bankers to save that which we have proved betimes to be all vanity or something worse. What a role for the erstwhile revolutionary socialist who set out with all the ardor and clairvoyance of youth to prove that capitalism would ultimately burst from its own excesses...the blood test of the Labor party is about to be taken. Will there be found so many germs of another malaise inoculated already so to have thinned the stream to an apologetic pink or will the robust scarlet be in evidence?

London Times Opposed

The Times declares the Government cannot expect the opposition parties to countenance their plan for economies, necessary in view of a threatened budget deficit of $600,000,000. "The Prime Minister has himself declared the responsibility for the proposals will fall solely on the government," the Times adds. "All that he can expect from the opposition is an undertaking, which it might be supposed would be given without hesitation, that every measure for wise retrenchment will have their willing support."

Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party, is due back in London this day from Paris. From his sickbed, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, follows the changing scene.

Miss "Ll. G."

Everywhere the fears express opinions of regret that the mercurial Welshman is absent. With his swift moves and countermoves, it is a play in which "Ll.G." would be starred.

As nobody wants a general election, the probabilities are the government will again ride out the storm. The deserters predict it is the beginning of the end.

The present emergency came to the fore two weeks ago when the budget committee, consideration of the report of the May economy committee declaring there would be a budget deficit of $600,000,000 and recommending cuts in the dole, teachers salaries and various other economies. The special-sub committee of the cabinet and the full cabinet up to last night had failed to reach agreement with either the trades union executive or with the opposition parties, although the national executive of the Labor party decided to leave the position in the hands of the government.

London, Aug. 22 (Canadian Press Cable)—Labor Cabinet ad-journed for luncheon, but will meet again this afternoon, in the meantime the Three-Party conferences will continue and the Prime Ministers will receive the result when the Cabinet reassembles.

Scarcely had the main body of Cabinet Ministers left Downing Street at 12 noon when Sir Herbert Samuel and Sir Donald Maclean, Liberals, arrived to meet Prime Minister MacDonald and Chancellor Philip Snowden. Sir Samuel Hoare and Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Conservative, arrived a few minutes later.

The Three Party conference proceeded during the Cabinet's luncheon adjournment. The Cabinet was to reassemble at 2:30 p.m.

Commemorate Vincent's Attack at Stoney Creek

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 22—Commemorating the spot where General John Vincent assembled his troops prior to an attack on the United States' forces at Stoney Creek in June 1813, a monument will be erected in Harvey Park on Burlington Heights. Permission has been granted the Parks Land Branch of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa by the Hamilton Parks Board for the building of the monument.

DODGING RE BEL BULLETS—

The cartesman risked his life to take this photograph of Cuban Federal soldiers seen ducked to storm an abandoned house defended by rebel troops near Havana. The factory had been used by the insurrectionists to store arms for use in the uprising against President Machado. Shots were being exchanged even as this picture was taken.

TAX CHICKENS FOR SCHOOLS?

Talmud Torah Executive Proposes Step to Prevent Closing

Toronto, Aug. 22—Levying of a two-cent tax on every chicken sold in Kosher butcher shops may be the means of preventing the closing down of the half dozen Talmud Torah schools of Jewish religious learning in Toronto, due to lack of funds.

Confronted with empty exchequer and with no prospect of being able to pay the teachers two months' back salaries, the executive of the Talmud Torah has appealed for financial aid from the Jewish community through the medium of local Hebrew papers.

It is understood that the situation has become so grave that officials of the Talmud Torah have asked the Kehillah, the body of Jewish laymen which adjudicates in all disputes concerning the dietary laws and other matters relative to the conduct of the orthodox Hebrew community, to impose a two-cent tax on all chickens bought at kosher shops. On this request it is understood the Kehillah has agreed in principle as far as either meat is also advocated. It is estimated that approximately $10,000 annually can be raised by the two-cent tax and this money would be used for the relief and maintenance of the Talmud Torahs.

Girl "Legally Dead" Is Refused Marriage

Paris, Aug. 22.—Mlle. Helene Arnoud, 22, wanted to post her wedding banns but the registrar refused her request because she is "legally dead" and therefore cannot enter into wedlock.

Three years ago Mlle. Arnoud, a cashier in a dairy shop in the Champs Elysees district, disappeared, leaving a note saying she was going to commit suicide. Her accounts were not in order. Later a body was found in the Seine and her mother identified it.

The body was buried, her mother put flowers on the grave every week and mourned her daughter until a relative recognized Mlle. Arnouvel at work in another Paris dairy as Herblay. She returned home and was forgiven. The police complained and the wedding date was set, only to encounter legal obstacles.

A court decision officially resurrecting the girl will be sought, but it will require several months to clear up the case.

Forest Fires Raging Men Battle Flames

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 22.—A score of fires are burning in the Sault Ste. Marie district, two of them of serious proportions. With the bush dry and the humidity unusually low, fire hazard is high.

Fifty men have been despatched to fight two fires north of Rawhide Lake, the fire having run over an area of 50 acres. It is burning in slash and travelling fast. The other is at Silver Is. Creek on the Puskaww area and another 50 men are battling against it.

Rose Township was the scene of four fires, said to be incendiary. Two other fires, both under control, broke out in Hodgins Township. Numerous other small blazes have, broken out, but all are under control, it is said.

The Mississauga and White River roads have been closed until further notice, as an emergency measure.

NATIONALS DEFEAT PONIES AND FORCE CENTRAL LEAGUE SERIES TO THREE GAMES

Green's Timely Hitting Accounted for Victory Over Kingston

SCORE 8-4

Third Game to be Played in Kingston Next Wednesday

Playing inspired baseball behind the steady and superb pitching of Hoot Gibson, Belleville Nationals slipped the Kingston Ponies a bitter pill yesterday afternoon at the Fair Grounds in the Tomb — pardon, Limestone city. The dose was administered in the form of an 8-4 defeat which stretches the championship series to three games. The locals having lost the opening battle for the bunting here on Wednesday afternoon.

In turning the tables on the Kingstonians, the Nationals surprised even their most ardent supporters. "Sunny" Green grabbed two knockdown drives yesterday. He warmed up at Hewitt Smith's offerings for a timely single and a scoring dunkey, driving in four runs which silenced the home town fans and had a disastrous effect on the aspirations of Ada and company. He wielded a potent bat in the time of need and came through like the gallant little fighter he is.

Considerable argument centred around the time and place of the third game. President Robert Colling of Belleville went into a huddle with both managers and finally the issue was settled with the tossing of a coin. Walter Gray, pilot of the Nationals, yelped a "heads" but he was all wrong and the shilling turned up with His Majesty in the dust and as a result the crucial struggle will occur on the Kingston ball park next Wednesday. Manager George Ada of Kingston threatened all sorts of things should the encounter take place at Kingston Fair Grounds and even went so far after the game, to openly assert that he would not be in the line-up. He was determined that the affair should be played at the Kingston Athletic Field or in Belleville. In doing so, Ada came in for more than his share of verbal barrage from the "Pany executive" and Kingston fans He left the park voicing in no uncertain terms his feelings toward his colleagues and should he carry out his assertions he will be an absentee when the series is concluded.

Seven Errors

As to the ball game itself, it left several things to be desired although from a Belleville point of view, the result was quite satisfactory. It was not by long odds the best game that has been witnessed in the central league at Kingston. No less than seven errors were committed during the afternoon by the two teams but nevertheless these all helped to create some interesting and highly speculative situations.

"Feeney" Mills who was injured the first game here last Wednesday was a victim again yesterday and while not rendered "hors de combat" entirely, had Ada's nerve such that he played under a handicap during the remainder of the game. On the first pitched ball he was the recipient of a nasty finger wound, while he took two foul tips on the arm which did not help matters any. Despite these he turned in a masterful performance and even went within ten feet of first base to take a long bolot amid the plaudits of the rabid Kingston fans.

Incidentally a new record was hung up in the Central League yesterday, "Hoot" Gibson, a consistent hitter struck out for the first time in his central league career. Always a dependable boy with the wilow, he succumbed to Smith's slants in his first visit at the plate.

Point Anne contributed more than its share to the victory. "Pewee" Hutchings having accepted seven chances without the semblance of an error. Harmer Green raced in to take two or three short Texas Leaguers and on one occasion picked an almost impossible catch off his shoe tops.

Belleville had a made-to-order opportunity to break into the score column in the first inning with three on base but Earl Green ended it all by flying out to Scrutton.

Gibson was in hot water several times but timely fielding on the part of the Nationals saved him. Manager Walter Gerow is likely to pitch Poitier on Wednesday and should he perform as well as last Wednesday it is altogether likely that the Nationals will cop another Central League pennant.

TALKING OF COME-BACKS!

Rub your eyes fans and sit up. Has the day of color came back into the drab life of the light fan? Or is this just a bit of midsummer balyhoo? One morning the hottom is as clear as a bell, next we hear that Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard are back in the ring ready to take on all comers. Bob Fitzsimmons took 'em all on till well into his forties—and so maybe even Dempsey and Leonard can stage a comeback. They may come back in the ring—but it looks to this department as if the million dollar gate that home boys brought with them in these palmy days will take a lot of wooing. The big gate and the monster ballyhoo may come back but right now the pendulum is swinging very very much the other way.

The Sport Eye Column

Contributed By FAIR PLAY
Boosts and Fair Criticism

Fifteen hundred people saw the debacle in the eastern metropolis yesterday afternoon. But Walter Gerow and his merry men are in the driver's seat now. They have Tommy Peister parle to go next Wednesday and if the little southpaw duplicates his performance of last Wednesday the series is as much as over.

The Kingston fans did not like it one little bit yesterday and it's going to be harder for them from now on. The Nationals with their backs to the wall exhibited the old fighting spirit and if they show the same power in the third engagement, it's dollars to doughnuts that the Ponies will go down to defeat. It's too bad that Belleville did not win the toss but the locals played splendid ball yesterday and they are playing the best ball of the year right now.

Well, both of the local golf clubs were on their toes on the ball holiday, I see. The members of the Country Club had very little trouble beating the Gananoque golfers.

Well folks it is hard to decide just the standing of player Patterson of the CIACO team. It is about time that the executive of the league made a ruling one way or the other. (The rule was supposed to come before the B.A.A.A. long ago) (?)

"It is said that Manager Shaw of the Kingston Capitols stated that the said player would never play against his team in the Eastern Association play-offs. (Why?)

There is no question to the fact that there is "something rotten in Denmark."

But the question is —WHAT.

Well that's the last of softball.

Did you know that Belleville had a swimmer entered in the C.N.E. swim? His name is "Tom" Pedder and he is only 16 years old. The boy is training in Lake Ontario, south of Brighton.

The kid has no backing at all and depends on his few friends for transportation to and from his training. It is too bad that some local sports do not get behind this boy and give him something to work for.

He entered in the swim at Nadoo with some of the best in the country and was fifth. The kid swam 7 miles in the Trent River in about 3 hours, he says.

The boy is very bashful but he has all the earmarks of a swimmer. It is safe betting that he will be "in there" next year. All he needs is transportation to and from training at the present. (Come on you sportsmen.)

The kid just loves swimming so it is up to Belleville citizens to get behind him. He may not win this year but there are other years coming.

It is likely that "Red" Wilkins will do the hurling for the Association kids and if they play the same class of ball that they have lately, they should win today's game.

The kids are still worrying over the loss of "Chit" Smith, but Manager Vern Wole is still trying to get the C.N.E.A.A. to let him play "Trotsky" Smith of the Moose Janiers, in Smith's place.

Again we say, "if the Forest Body are interested in the development of miners, they should let 'Ernie' play with the B.A.A.A.

"The juniors of today are the seniors of tomorrow."

After a ten inning game Gilbards of Napanee won from the Kingston C.I.C. team by the score of 6 to 5 Thursday. Walt Gerow sure worked hard to bring the first win of the series to Napanee.

The second game of the series will be played in Kingston on Saturday afternoon. These intermediates play real snappy ball.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 12 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When the tribe saw Kerchak's rage had ceased they came slowly down from their aboreal retreats. They had passed an hour or so pursuing their various occupations when Kerchak called them together and with a word of command to them to follow him, set off toward the sea.

And all the way Kala carried her little dead baby hugged closely to her breast. Shortly after noon they reached a ridge overlooking the beach where below them lay the tiny cottage which was Kerchak's goal. He had made up his mind to explore the interior of that mysterious den.

He wanted very much to own that little black stick that had often roared out its terrible message of death to some member of his tribe. Today there was no sign of the man about. Slowly, cautiously and noiselessly they crept through the jungle toward the little cabin.

Kerchak himself slunk slowly to the very door and peered within. Behind him were two males and then Kala clasping her dead babe. They saw the strange white ape lying half across a table and a figure covered by a sail cloth. A plaintiff wailing came from a tiny cradle.

Kerchak entered. Greystoke rose with a sudden start and faced them. The sight that met his eyes must have frozen him with horror! His revolvers and rifle hung on the far wall. Within the door stood three great bull apes. Behind them crowded many more—HOW MANY HE NEVER KNEW.

RUTH'S 600TH HOME RUN IS SEASON'S 35TH

Homer Starts Yanks Off to Winning Rally Over Browns

MORE SWATTING

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

It isn't the home run one home run means much to Babe Ruth. It's like to hit them, of course, as much as say ball player and perhaps more because homers in large quantities are the principal reasons for the Babe's big salary checque. But for a man who holds nearly every known record for hitting homers, one more base clout is not much cause for excitement.

Yet Ruth hit a homer yesterday that aroused even his indifference. the club lounge of the Yankee-St. Louis game he drove one of George Blaeholder's fast ones far over the bleacher roof at Sportsman's Park and into the street. It was four bagger of the current season and brought Ruth's total for 15 years of his major league career up to 600. He was not taking a bow, lathed or even threatened by any other major league record. Elation of the event, the Babe reclaim ed the pellet from the youngster who found it in the bleacher boxyard, giving in exchange $10 reward and a new autographed ball.

Besides setting this record, Ruth's homer drove Lefty Stewart off on their winning rally in their 11-7 victory over the Browns. Loyd Christ Gehrig duplicated the feat a moment later and together the pair limbered the count at 4 all four times Wings ready for a really rabbit game in the eighth frame to clinch the verdict. The Babe and Wings collected 11 hits off three Baltimore hurlers, Moncrief also had to come from far behind to overturn the Braves.

REDWINGS IN PENNANT RACE

Shaved Full Game Off Bears and Orioles' Lead

(By the Associated Press)

Having shaved another full game off the lead held by the Newark Bears and Baltimore Orioles, Buffalo moved into second in the International League race, the Rochester Redwings today were in the thick of the pennant fight.

The Red Wings defeated the Orioles by only a game and half and the second game was won by only half a game.

Ray Starr's great relief hurling accounted for Rochester's triumph. Starr came in to relieve Irvin in the first inning. They trimmed Baltimore only four hits the rest of the way and holding the Orioles scoreless. Paul Florence's home run with one on in the fourth netted the count at 4 all four times Wings ready for a really rabbit game in the eighth frame to clinch the verdict. The Babe and Wings collected 11 hits off three Baltimore hurlers, Moncrief also had to come from far behind to overturn the Braves.

Use 30,000 Veterans To Check Crime Wave?

New York, Aug. 22—(UP)—State Adjutant Commander Maurice Stember of the American Legion announced that he would renew an offer to-morrow to place 30,000 Legionnaires on the State Reserve of New York City as vigilants to stop the rapidly growing crime wave.

The Legionnaire army, equipped with steel helmet and bumperless rifles can be mobilized within two hours through special-tested system, Stember declared.

The Grand National Assembly of Turkey recently passed a law, effective in 1932, adopting the metric system of weights and measures.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Panchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Panchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Panchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Panchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past; she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A genial band of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Collin Carstairs, the aunt is at first antagonistic because of the "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when His mother offered aid, but Panchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer in Southampton, Panchon makes her debut in New York. Collin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannob resist pestering him. Panchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a Stranger Man comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances, only informs Panchon that Evelyn is alive but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Panchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Cilli," although claiming he has Evelyn in his apartment. Tony refuses to let Panchon see her. Two days later he calls at the Carstairs home. Collin and his mother are skeptical about him because of Panchon's strained attitude in his presence. Months later, Tony tells Panchon she must inform Mrs. Carstairs to wake her emeralds to the Van Surdam Ball. He suggests that Panchon go away with him.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Panchon said slowly, but thinking rapidly:

"And if I — decide to come . . ."

He flushed deeply, the dark blood staining the olive skin.

"If you decide to come you will never regret it. I will be good to you, Panchon. We will leave this country, we will go, perhaps to a little place in Sicily which I know of, where no one will find us. We will live — happily, luxuriously. I will arrange that Evelyn be taken care of. I will indeed not worry on that score. The Carstairs will never know of that part of your masquerade."

She said, evenly:

"There is nothing to keep me here."

"Not even — Collin?" he asked, keenly.

"No. Why do you think that?"

"I have seen him—look at you —"

"A Cinderella boy looks at a countess," Panchon said, with hard lightness, "and remember that, Tony, in all intents and purposes I am his cousin!"

"I have thought of that. What," he asked, looking at her queerly, "has changed your mind toward me?"

"I'm bored," she said, "tired of playing a role."

Tony raised his heavy brows.

"Yes—you do not love me?"

"No, Tony, I must be honest with you. I do not. But," she said, and sighed not wholly acting in this moment, "I did once—"

She let him to interrupt the sentence as he wished — and as she wished. He did so eagerly, as she had thought he would.

"And so — you might again?" he questioned.

She did not answer; she raised her strange blue eyes and smiled. She put her hand to the pearls at her throat as if to still some emotional impulse.

"I—cannot," he told her, "believe you. Yet I want to." His lean brown hand shot out and grasped her wrist so that she winced and bit back a cry of pain. "If you double-cross me— I'm threatened and he, too, left his sentence unfinished.

It was, somehow, the old Tony who spoke.

She said steadily:

"I am perfectly aware of what will happen if I do. What is your plans, Tony? If I am to go with you, it is better not to keep me in daytimes."

"You will get me an institution to this affair," he said, releasing her wrist, "and you will find out what Cesare Carstairs is wearing. Before it is ever you will complain of a headache, and I will take you home. You will instal upon the Carstairs invitation. When you come in, you will not have gone to bed. You will be dressed, for travelling under a negligee. You will stay up to amuse Cesare until he is quite all right. You will also insist upon letting the servants go to bed on your return and will yourself help Mrs. Carstairs to undress. You will bring her something to drink — water — milk—it doesn't matter. Cesare will probably have a drink, too, if you join him. Then, shall we say a highball? I will tell you," he said, "how to prepare these — night-caps. You will put them in Mrs. Carstairs' jewels and put them away for safe keeping. She will not be able to return them to the safe bank until the next day. When she has put on an pleasantly sleepy and you will take the jewels and slip them into me. Then you add that I shall not have left the apartment, so there is no use in questioning the coverage of these plans," he said pleasantly.

She said after a time:

"Very well."

His eyes were black with triumph. "I will see you before then," he told her, "and we will go over the plans again and the next time I am at the Carstairs' home you will please show me over it more carefully, remembering that I am always interested in American architecture."

That was all. Presently other people came into the room and they left, talking of trivialities. Or, rather, Tony talked and Panchon listened.

She was thinking, however. She knew with an immensity of dull despair that there was just one thing for her to do.

Events played into Tony's hands. It was Mrs. Carstairs herself who suggested that he be included in the party. Mrs. Carstairs nearly Van Surdam Ball which was held in the Van Surdam house, one of the last of the great stone 'mansions' on Fifth Avenue. And as Mrs. Carstairs always gave a dinner before the ball, he was asked to that also.

Collin, laughing, protesting his boredom on such an occasion, was nevertheless persuaded that he must not disguise himself in a domino or allow it to overshadow his evening clothes. When he learned that his mother planned a ballet costume for her niece, he promptly elected himself Romeo to Panchon's Juliet. Romeo was a tragic sort of ass. Appropriate enough. Still, Mercutio has always been a more appropriate character for me. . . . 'Tis not so deep as a well nor so wide as a church door; but 'tis enough, 'twill serve—"

Panchon's ballet gown was conventional enough, in line and fabric and in the manner Mrs. Carstairs liked. Her dark blue-black curls were bound with the Juliet-cap—and the pearl pearls quite genuine. Her mask was a charming frivolous affair of satin. She wore her pearl necklace, lovely, the turquoise eyes brilliant under the pearl-shaped drops, hair, her golden skin flushed with excitement. Her mother thought her even deeper scarlet than was natural with rouge. And Collin in glittering black velvet and gold of his doublet and hose was an interesting foil for her.

But Cesare Cilli arrived in an almost identical costume. They might men looked at one another and exclaimed . . . for, with their eyes hidden by masks, they looked very much alike . . . they were aware of what the same build, they were both dark animals, they wore small mustaches.

Collin felt an illogical anger at the introduction of a second Romeo, while the other guests crowded about them laughing. For a moment Panchon was almost as white, save for her lips, as her ivory and pearl gown.

"But," said Senor Cilli, apologetically, "I had no idea my costume was to be like Carstairs. What an absurd coincidence!"

Mrs. Carstairs remarked, laughing: "Our Juliet deserves two Romeos, does she not?" and the pair went in to a dinner which Panchon, for one, barely tasted.

HOUDE SAYS TACTICS VILE

Declares Efforts to be Made to Link Party With Murder

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Mayor Camillien Houde says he himself may be among prominent Conservatives to face an arrest Friday on murder charges, and the murder in question, he says, is that of Henri Bouchier, wealthy Belgian, found dead at Laval-des-Le Laval in July last, supposedly a victim of gang vengeance mixed either with diamond smuggling or with alleged police protection for disorderly houses.

At a huge meeting Thursday night in Bonsecours School, Papineau Avenue, in his own riding of St. Mary's, the mayor announced that "theft is all that remains if the Liberals are to win the election, and they will take any means."

His reasoning: "They are ready to go to any length. It is very possible, indeed, the plan is all ready for the arrest of friends, or people around me, and perhaps of myself, to be charged with the Bouchier murder. All is fixed for Saturday, I tell the Liberals of what they can do no better than that they are indeed in dire straits.

"Another thing. Sealed envelopes have already been sent to different parts of the province. They are not to be opened until Saturday, and they are to tell the people of the province of the supposed particulars by myself and friends in the murder of Bouchier, a murder in the jurisdiction of the provincial police. Long ago we would have known the murderer had not the provincial police stock its nose into the affair. Perhaps the provincial police do not know the murderer.

"Campaign of Lies"

"The other side are out on a campaign of lies and cowardice, of worse than that, all their remarks to them is theft of the elections if they are to win. (Cheers). What do we see? Obscene pictures distributed throughout the city . . .

I suppose you have seen the one they have of me? (Cries of shame and scorn). . . . Professional imperialonaires being shown as special constables. Anything will do; they must beat Houde. Padded lists, court charges against the impossible . . . anything.

"Oh, said the mayor angrily squaring up to the radio microphone, 'that's long to get down to Quebec to put you fellows in your place.' (Cheers). 'You are electioneering; have been for the past two years; but people this time are going to put the election back in their place. For eight years I have been running after you; now I have you (Cheers). Look out election thieves...I tell you, look out, Monday."

Churchill Ready To Handle Grain

The Pas, Man., Aug. 21—Except for final touches, Churchill today is ready to handle the first of a hundred thousand bushel test shipment of grain, that will pass through The Pas starting Sept. 6, C. G. Gowrie, chief engineer of Canadian National Railways, announced on returning here.

Modern elevators will have no difficulty in handling the grain, he said. Five hundred cars will be unloaded from the track at the rate of one every two minutes.

The grain will be stored in the 2,500,00 bushel elevator by September 15, and Canadian farmers will dock at Churchill between Sept. 15 and Sept. 30. No other boat will be engaged in shipping the grain from Churchill.

Dr. Crawford Named Ontario Chief Coroner

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 21 (CP)—Dr. M. M. Crawford, for some years chief coroner of Toronto, has been appointed chief coroner of Ontario. This appointment, officially announced today, has been rumored for some time. It is understood the provincial government desires to centralize supervision of the activities of the coroners throughout the Province and provide a central authority in that regard.

LIFE IN SOUTH-WEST AFRICA

Missive Takes But Month to Arrive in Hastings

Gilding, Aug. 23 (Special).—One of The Ontario Intelligence's correspondents received a letter from Walter's Bay, South West, Africa, on Wednesday, August 19th, with date of mailing July 19th. Pretty quick travelling, eh? The following is the part of the letter: "We are a few people make a living in these parts but there there is no fishing, nothing but rocks and sand dunes—Well! This is a natural harbour, we have a wharf to berth three big steamers, and our cold storage will hold over 1,000 tons. That's there is the whaling industry as stored in one. Just there are thousands of these fish caught every season and they are shipped to Cape Town. There are also large deposits of copper in the country and the copper is sent down here by rail for shipment to Germany. The South Oil Company have just built large tanks here and two Vancouver Oil Companies are also expecting to build shortly; at present all their oil is stored in one. Just a matter of about 25 to 30 miles away, there are farms on the Swakopmund River where we get our vegetables from. They have fine potatoes, I am told, although I have never been there; there is a lot of water up there some miles out, there is also a mine there, the name escapes me at the present there has been a very big rainfall and all the country in South West Africa is overflowed with the result that the river here which has been dry for the last fifteen or sixteen years, overflowed and found its course through the dunes and into Walter's Bay and consequently the town was flooded; it came over about five o'clock one Saturday afternoon and by midnight the water was a good three or four feet high in the deepest parts. The water subsided and it was quite a week before I got down town. They had to fix up the bridges and if I wanted to go down town, I had to put wooden footings, put on tennis shoes and walk through the water. After it went down for a fourth time, we were all sick of it, and it is quite nice now to dry up, the place is so muddy. We are having unusually cold weather; inclined to think it is quite warmer, it gets colder, and the evenings are chilly."

Obituary

The funeral of the late Mr. Joshua Richardson, of River Valley, was held in the Frankford United Church on Monday, August 17th. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hall, assisted by Rev. Mr. Thompson. The casket bearers were Messrs. Reddick (Dolly) at home, Mrs. Frechette, Belleville, Mrs. Ramsay (Bessie) Cooney, Stirling, and Mrs. David Lamb, and five sons, Bruce of Trenton, Gilbert of Toronto, Morley and Murney of River Valley, and Ross of Belleville. The deceased had been in ill health for some years, but was not confined to any trouble, but was only confined to bed three weeks at the end. He had reached the age of seventy-three years.

The floral tributes were as follows:

Wreath—Family.

Basket—Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Richardson; Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Doyle; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lynch; Mrs. J. Frechette.

Sprays—Royal Bank Staff of Toronto; River Valley Women's Institute; St. Andrew's Presbyterian Choir; Mr. and Mrs. C. Frechette; Mrs. D. Reddick and son Harold; Mr. and Mrs. E. Morrow; Mr. and Mrs. D. Welch; Mrs. Perry; Mrs. Playter and Miss Laura Richardson, and the Lamb family.

In reporting the funeral of the late Harold Wannamaker, the floral tribute, Gates Ajar given by the family, was unintentionally omitted, it is regretted.

Disastrous Fire

A very disastrous fire occurred on Tuesday, August 18th, at about 5.30 p.m., when the spacious barn, driveshed and henhouse on the Edmond Dreany farm on the 7th Concession of Hawden was completely gutted by fire. The man was milking at the time and at once he heard like an explosion above him in the barn, and rushing upstairs he found the hay and grain all in flames. As the nearest of the family were away at the time, very little could be done by the neighbors who were able to assist in removing the flames, so the whole buildings were a total loss as the insurance was nearly all in the barn with the exception of a bale of grain. The loss is partially covered by insurance. Evidently spontaneous combustion was the cause of the fire. All animals were saved.

No Large Amount Involved

London, Aug. 21 (Canadian Press by Cable)—It is understood that no large amount is involved in the recent order in council for an appeal on the petition of Sir Edward Kemp and Edgar, native of Montreal who has been resident in the Bagot Ward district of London for some years.

Neither is it believed that no large interests in the "city" are likely to be involved. Sir Edward has not been so prominent in finance here of late.

6 HOUR DAY?

Washington, Aug. 21—The Farm Board has offered to sell Chinese Government 10,000,000 of its 200,000,000 bushels of wheat on a two or three year credit.

It was brought out also that the board is discussing the advisability and possibility, of distributing some of its wheat among American relief this Winter Such distribution would necessitate congressional authorization, because the board is empowered only to sell its holdings, not to give them away.

The board's offer to sell China when he met in closing him among the millions of sufferers from the Yangtze River floods was forwarded via the State Department and the American consul at Nanking; capital of the Nationalist Government. China is expected to reply promptly through the same channel.

Chairman James C. Stone said today that the board's recent suggestion that American growers plow under every third row of the crop was made to call attention to the seriousness of the situation. It would not admit abondonment of the idea intimating that the generally unfavorable response from cotton state growers was not vital. He said he believed the board's suggestion would result in important reduction of acreage.

Threat of Sending For Police Brings Retraction

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 21.—(By The Canadian Press)—Threats of summoning a policeman to remove Deputy-Reeve W. A. Thogood caused the Councilor to withdraw certain statements he had made at a meeting yesterday of York Township Council.

The statements were made during a discussion of unemployment. They were retracted at the same meeting when Acting Reeve Alfred Gray said he would have to ask "Togood to leave the meeting and added: "If I have to bring in a policeman I'll do it."

Councillor Togood stated the Unemployment and Relief Board of the Council was "saturated with politics." He complained of the Council's decision not to establish registration offices for unemployed in each ward.

OPPOSE CLOSE DUCK SEASON

Jack Miner League Begins Opposition to Proposal

Windsor, Aug. 22—Opposition to the proposal for declaring an international closed season on wild duckshot green has been launched by the Jack Miner League. In a letter to Victor J. Cobb, M.P. for Essex South, E. R. Kerr, Walkerville, secretary of the league, sets forth the reasons for the exception taken to the suggestion.

Though the organization admits that wild, fowl are dwindling in numbers through indiscriminate hunting, it considers that a general closed season for both the United States and Canada would be unfair to Canadian and Canadian hunters.

The reason, according to Mr. Kerr is that, while 85 per cent. of the geese are hatched and bred in Canada, 85 per cent. of the slaughter takes place in the United States. This, he declares, is due to the fact that there are 10,000,000 hunters in the United States, as compared to about 100,000 in Canada. Also, the American hunter uses methods such as live decoys and artificial feed beds, which are forbidden on this side of the line, Mr. Kerr maintains.

The Jack Miner League has counter proposals which it wishes to bring before the International conference now taking place on the question.

1. A closed season of two years in the United States, and Canada for two months of the open season in Canada. 2. The prohibition throughout North America of the use of live decoys and artificial feed beds in hunting ducks and geese. 3. Protection of the Canadian bag limits by one-half during the period perfected in the United States.

One of the benefits of such a system, Mr. Kerr points out, would be the elimination of many American hunters to this side of the line, with much resultant revenue to the Dominion.

This revenue, Mr. Kerr suggests, could be used for the establishment of many more sanctuaries in the permanent interest of wild fowl in Canada.

Mr. Gott has expressed himself as completely in accord with the League's suggestions, and has promised to bring the arguments to the attention of the international representatives now meeting in Ottawa.

Four Passengers Escape While Car Turns Three Somersaults

LITTLE DAMAGE

Orillia, Ont., Aug. 21 (CP).—Residents of Washago, a junction town on the Canadian National Railway and No. 12 highway about 12 miles northeast of here, have asked for assistance in fighting a bush fire two miles away and believed to be threatening the town. Fears are expressed if the fire reaches Washago a change of wind might sweep it through the populous summer resort district of Sparrow Lake and on to Gravenhurst, ten miles north.

The fire is running through abnormally dry marshes and second growth hardwood and pine over a mile front. Up to last night it was being fought by a local force which was given extra assistance with the arrival of equipment from Powassan.

Residents describe the country as "dry under and inflammable as oil." Present winds though not high are favorable to the spread of the fire, coming in the direction from north-east to south is hoped for. This would drive the flames towards the Severn River.

The Dutch elm disease, which made its first appearance in North America in 1930, is spreading from tree to tree by an elm bark beetle, it is supposed.

AMUSEMENTS

"TRANSATLANTIC" SMART AND ORIGINAL

One of the most interesting pictures this summer is on display at the Belle Theatre, where it had its premiere showing - before a large audience last night.

It is "Transatlantic", a Fox production which has a long list of screen favorites, headed by Edmund Lowe, in its cast.

"Transatlantic" briefly has to do with the tangled lives of a dozen or more men and women who set out from an American port for Europe aboard a de luxe liner, Unknown to each other before the vessel slips its moorings, they speedily become involved in a web of which also the entire voyage across the Atlantic is unmarl.

Aboard is Edmund Lowe, a high-class gambler of the Robin Hood type. We also find Lois Moran, class painter of an old German engraver, played by Jean Hersholt. Then, too, there is John Halliday, wealthy banking man, his wife Lora Loy; a Swedish dancer—Greta Nissen, and other fashion figures.

Lowe befriends Miss Moran, and she immediately falls in love with the handsome, debonair gambler. Miss Loy enlists his aid in saving her husband from Greta Nissen, and Lowe has plans of his own for pulling over some of Halliday's surplus cash, with which he is fleeing from his tottering bank.

Lowe is convincing as the light-hearted and light-fingered gentleman who lives by his wits.

Miss Moran is sweet and lovely as the young German-American girl concerned over the fate of her father who loses his mind at the news of the bank disaster. Hersholt of course, gives an excellent account of himself in the character role or the old German.

"Transatlantic" which ends its engagements at the Belle tonight, is a picture you will not want to miss.

GREAT WORK BY JAMESON THOMAS AND SUPPORT IN "THE HATE SHIP"

Today at The Capitol

Although Jameson Thomas must be proclaimed for the excellent work of the direction Norman Walker, and the whole of the technical staff responsible for the production of "The Hate Ship", the British International picture, which opens at The Capitol Theatre today, chief honors undoubtedly go to the star. This cast is remarkably strong both from the point of view of featured players and also from the support, for we find Jameson Thomas supported by Henry Victor, Jack Raine, Jean Colin and Randle Ayrton. It is somewhat in the nature of a surprise to find Jameson Thomas playing the part of a polished criminal, but the por trayal is nevertheless at once compelling and entirely convincing. He is supported in his villiacy by Henry Victor who plays the part of the Russian Count. The feminine interest is in the hands of Jean Colin a newcomer to the ranks of screen players, but well known as a musical comedy star, having taken the place of June as the star of "The Five o'clock Girl" upon the latter's becoming identified with the stage. The hero, played by Jack Raine who makes a very whimsical figure in the role of Captain Roger Peel, Jack Raine is also a new-comer to the screen, having previously carved out a niche for himself on the stage.

The majority of the action of this picture takes place aboard a luxurious private yacht owned by Vernon Wolf (Jameson Thomas) and the atmosphere of mystery, together with the exciting action and touches of delightful comedy, make this story, from the pen of Bruce Graeme, excellent dramatic fare.

Wolfe has invited a party of guests aboard his yacht for the purpose of furthering a financial scheme. We know him to be unscrupulous, and when young Wardell is found shot for refusing to sign a certain document the case looks pretty black against Wolf. The development, however, cleverly suggests the impossibility of the latters guilt, and it is on the bridge with the Captain at the time and a number of those aboard is accounted for satisfactorily, we are presented with Jameson's wife—

Trail of The Hunt

An added touch of proven popularity is "Adventures in Africa" a series of authentic "shots" taken in Africa of human and animal life.

Today and Monday "The Hate Ship" will be supplemented by an episode of this series entitled "Trail of The Hunt". Imagination needs no aid to vision the sterling qualities of this series.

The Pathe Sound News completes the programme.

COUNSEL TO A YOUNG SISTER
Carry your little head up proud and high
Thinking no goal unworthy of a try;
Fashion your life more from the things ? preach
Than from the mold my poor examples teach.
Choose while the path your feet should rightly take,
And though it lead you through the heart must break—
Falter not once, but keep eye straight ahead—
A woman is hurt if rose-thorns make her bled.
Should moments come with powerlessness rife,
Think: "There are but the lesser things in life"
Then will the vital reason chance to awaken.
Remember! There's a man up in heaven
Whose mood
Surrender not on earth, but know full well
He is the only man who will not fail.

FOR WINTER USE

A reader of The Times the other day offered a suggestion which is worth passing along to some who might be interested in it. During the days of the war, she recalled, church organizations did a splendid work in canning and drying vegetables in the summer, to be used during the winter months. She points out that, judging from the number of vegetable vendors coming around from door to door, there seems to be a large surplus of this class of foodstuffs. Rather than allow it to go to waste, she suggests that women's and church organizations secure supplies of it, holding canning and drying bees, and sell to any to be distributed to stores it away for the coming winter months.—Oshawa Times.

MacDonald Hands Names of New Ministers of Coalition Cabinet to King

Stanley Baldwin and Sir Herbert Samuel Pledge Support to MacDonald in Emergency Cabinet

PRICES ON STOCK EXCHANGE IMPROVE

Lloyd George and Henderson Expected to Take Seats in Government Which is Under Formation Today

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 24 (Canadian Press Cable).—The Labor Cabinet, headed by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, resigned today. It will be succeeded by a National Government formed on a coalition basis—in which all three parties will be represented.

London, Aug. 24 (AP).—In a twenty-minute audience with His Majesty at Buckingham Palace this afternoon, Rt. Hon. James Ramsay MacDonald stepped out as head of a Labor Government and stepped in again as Prime Minister of a new National Government in which all three political parties are represented.

Mr. MacDonald handed the King his resignation and accepted the King's mandate to form the new Cabinet. It was understood he submitted the personnel of his new Cabinet to His Majesty. The age-old ceremony marking the beginning of a new Government and a new regime was followed by Mr. MacDonald when he kissed the King's hand before leaving.

An official statement issued later at Mr. MacDonald's office, reported these facts, acknowledged that the new government was to be formed "for the purpose of meeting the present financial emergency", and added that Mr. MacDonald had gone into conference with Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, and Sir Herbert Samuel, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George's lieutenant for the Liberals

These two, the statement said, are "co-operating with Mr. MacDonald in the constitution of the new administration."

Cabinet Possibilities

London, Aug. 24 (AP).—Political observers, speculating on the composition of Premier Ramsay MacDonald's new National Government, named these possibilities:

Conservatives—Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, himself a former premier; Lord Irwin, recently viceroy of India, Peace Minister; Sir Samuel Hoare, Air Austin Chamberlain and Neville Chamberlain.

Liberals—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, also a former prime minister; Lord Reading, who interrupted his legal trip to take part in the budget discussions of the past two weeks; Sir Herbert Samuel and Sir Donald MacLean.

Labor—Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer to the retiring Cabinet; Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Mr. MacDonald's Secretary for Dominions, among others.

Ministers in Opposition

It can be authoritatively said that the resignation of the Labor Government today followed the definite intimation to Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald from a formidable group of his ministers, that they would resign rather than accept the terms of the economy programme which the Prime Minister and Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had drawn up.

The break-up in the Cabinet grew steadily more acute until today's development. The Prime Minister's efforts to persuade all of his most important Cabinet supporters to agree with himself and Mr. Snowden, on the extent of the reductions in the dole which it was that county were reluctantly forced to consider imperative, was primarily responsible for the rapid disintegration of the Labor Government.

Pressure Decisive

Pressure upon the Prime Minister from high political and financial forces outside determined the issue, and it seems that the picture has been created in the Labor party that in a crisis of the character that Mr. MacDonald himself may be unable to repair it.

The Labor party's "shadow Cabinet" held a meeting at the National headquarters.

Sir Josiah Stamp Called

London, Aug. 24 (by Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer).—Perhaps the most significant of all the comings and goings that preceded the resignation of the Labor Government today was the participation of Sir Josiah Stamp, Director of the Bank of England and noted economist. Sir Josiah was hurriedly summoned to Downing Street last night, and he was also present at the audiences with the King today.

Sir Josiah, in the present crisis, is generally believed to be acting for Sir Montague Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, who is now on a visit to Canada for his health. The participation of Sir Josiah made it clear it was not a political crisis in the usual sense.

Sir Josiah's voice in Downing Street is the voice of high finance, not only from Lombard and Threadneedle street but from the Bourses and exchanges of the whole world.

Tomorrow or the next day the King will call a special meeting of the Privy Council at Buckingham Palace, to swear in members of the new government. The retiring Labor ministers who will not be members of the new Cabinet will hand over their seals of office to the King.

Within two or three days organization of the new National Government should be complete. Parliament, under the emergency arrangements made at the end of the last session can be called on seven days' notice. It will take a few days to get a draft legislation to meet the national situation and parliament probably will meet in early section early in September.

Undoubtedly the weighest figure in what will be more or less the official opposition when the National Government meets parliament is "Uncle" Arthur—Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the late Labor administration.

Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden is remaining at the Mr. MacDonald's right hand and in all likelihood will continue as Chancellor of the Exchequer. Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas former "Jimmy Domnibus" Secretary who is a powerful Labor figure, seems to have made up his mind early that he would remain with the ship of state.

"I shall be in the new government," "Jim" Thomas told newspapermen almost in the same minute that it was announced the old government was on the point of expiring.

History of Decline and Fall of Labor Government

London, Aug. 24 (CP)—The steps leading up to the resignation of the cabinet were:

Aug. 1—The special economy committee, under Sir Ernest May limited a report finding there would probably be a budget deficit of the about $600,000,000. It recommended lopping $165,000,000 off the budget by reducing the dole, limiting down payments and increasing contributions by workers, employers and the state to the dole fund; reducing pensions and police and public services, and other item makings a total of $165,000,000.

Aug. 13—The "big five" of the cabinet assembled in determination to attempt to make the budget balance. The "big five" formed the special economy subcommittee consisting of Prime Minister MacDonald, Chancellor Snowden, Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas and Rt. Hon. Viliam Graham.

Aug. 14—Leaders of the three political parties conferred and a "compromise plan" began to be worked at an early meeting of the House of Commons was reported decided upon.

Aug. 16—"The big five" reassembled and deliberated.

Aug. 17—"The big five" again met. Public opinion mounted.

Aug. 18—The full cabinet assembled. A serious situation developed. A revenue tariff report was widespread.

Aug. 20—The Government laid its plans before the National executive of the Labor party, which decided to support the Government in the main but scheme before the general council of the trades union congress, which intimated it could not countenance any reform of the dole. The government scheme was also laid before leaders of the Conservative and Liberal parties.

Aug. 21—The three party conferences were resumed. It was learned the Conservatives insisted on economy before new taxation. Trades union elements vacated situation, if it was the only alternative to making the dole and salaries. For the first time the possibility of the Prime Minister resigning was mentioned. The Labor cabinet met and adjourned over the week-end. Conservative and Liberal leaders returned to the scene. The cabinet ministers met in session back, and sat until 10.30 p.m. The Opposition leaders conferred with the government until late in the evening.

Aug. 23—The cabinet assembled. During its luncheon adjournment the Opposition leaders again conferred with the government. It was learned the King was coming back to London from Scotland and the situation became extremely tense. When the cabinet adjourned, it was stated they were putting the finishing touches on a scheme that was believed would meet the situation.

Aug. 23—The King returned and in turn conferred with leaders of the three parties. The cabinet reassembled. The Prime Minister, at 10.20 p.m., saw the King for the second time. The cabinet reassembled at 10.45 pm, and conversations between the Labor representatives and Liberal leaders resumed until after midnight.

Aug. 24—Conservative, Labor and Liberal leaders conferred with His Majesty for two hours. Formation of a National government was under consideration. The cabinet met at noon, adjourned after half an hour with the announcement the government resigned and would be succeeded by a non-partisan emergency administration to be headed by Mr. MacDonald.

RECORDS MADE BY OUTBOARDS

Three World Marks are Shattered in Peterboro Trough

Peterboro, Aug. 24.—World records were beaten Saturday on the third day of the attack on the Dominion and World outboard motor championships conducted under the auspices of the Canada Power Boat Association at South Beach on Rice Lake.

Over the three days of the meet three new world records were established and six Canadian records broken.

Tom Wood, of Peterboro, driving a Johnson powered boat, speeded his way to a new world record for Class E. Division 2. Wood set the new mark in the three mile event at 7 p.m., smashing the former record set up this year at Albany, N. Y., by Lawrence Dumont of Utica, N. Y., breaking the record the young Peterboro speed demon made when the Canadian record made here on Saturday of 50.38 m.p.h.

The second new world mark of the day was rung up by Percy Dillmore, of Toronto, who skimmed the waters at a former unattained speed for Class F. Division 1 boats of 51.42 m.p.h. Dellmore was driving his Mod. Mills motor.

9 The former record in this class was 51.42 m.p.h. Like Wood, driving this Dellmore also outstripped his previous Saturday performance here when he was driving at 50.21 m.p.h.

Bob Shelling, Peterboro, driving for speed in the Step runabout class broke his previous record of 49.45 miles, setting his new mark forward to 43.7 miles. This is a new Canadian record.

Making a second attempt to boost this new mark, Shelling was forced to call on the funds provided for employment work. If these services are installed, it is expected that many persons of wealth from other places will erect summer homes at Wellington, taxes from which would take care of any municipal outlay. It is also believed that the money spent by the increased number of tourists through Wellington would provide a large increase in circulation of money among the citizens.

THOUSAND DIE EVERY DAY IN FLOODED AREA

Sixty Thousand Square Miles in Two Provinces Under Water

DEAD TOTALS

2,000,000 Deaths in Hupeh and Hunan Province

Hankow, Aug. 24.—Relief was rushed to the flooded Yangtse River valley today, but with the knowledge that many more thousands will die before any measures can prove effective for the homeless, starving and pestilence-ridden multitudes.

Careful surveys reveal that the road 1,000 people dying each day in the district which centres at Wuchang, Hankow and Hankow. Sixty thousand square miles of Hupeh and Hunan Provinces are covered by water five to fifty feet deep, leaving millions of people were homeless and destitute in the provinces.

It was a physical impossibility to estimate the number of deaths that there was little doubt they could reach 2,000,000 in Hupeh and Hunan Provinces before the floods abate and ravages of disease and famine end.

No Relief Work For U.S. Unemployed Here

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 24 (By The Canadian Press)—Unless provision for spending is come to Canada to obtain employment for unemployed, relief works had better stay at home, Hon. Dr. H. Robertson, Minister of Labor, said today. Announcement of the heavy programme of public works to relieve unemployment has brought about a threatened invasion of unemployed into this country, but as immigration from across the southern boundary is desired poor can it be absorbed," Senator Robertson said.

Magistrate is Refreshed After Outing at Lake

Magistrate Mikel has returned to the city after a short holiday at Wellington-on-the-Lake.

Prince Edward county is to receive a daily swim in Lake Ontario and kept up his usual five mile a day walk through the beautiful lake front town and surroundings. He says that there were others staying at Wellington from Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and other places in the United States and Canada.

Some of the citizens of Wellington are considering the question of installing a system of water works for fire protection and domestic use, also a sewerage system. If work on these services is started now, it is believed that part of the cost can be paid for by the Government out of the funds provided for employment work. If these services are installed, it is expected that many persons of wealth from other places will erect summer homes at Wellington, taxes from which would take care of any municipal outlay. It is also believed that the money spent by the increased number of tourists through Wellington would provide a large increase in circulation of money among the citizens.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domenico was named Mary Syrria, her sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. C. Cancilla of Port Hope. This little girl is the fourth child in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Domenico. The name of Frank was given to the little son of Mr and Mrs. Tony Morrell, his sponsors being Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morrell of Kansas City, Missouri. This is the first child born to Mr. and Mrs. Morrell. Mrs. Morrell was formerly Miss Josephine Afronti of Kansas City. She came to Belleville as a bride about a year ago. A reception was held at the home of Mrs. S. Domenico. 234 Front Street, where a very interesting assembled to extend congratulations and be present at the happy event. "Ben Venuto, Ben Venuto, Ben Venuto" was the greeting on man; gifts.

At six o'clock a sumptuous real Italian dinner was served to over one hundred guests, and a good merriment reigned supreme. The compliment "E Vosta Salute" and the English never "To your health," was often expressed during the enjoyment of the dinner, and "Good Spose," which refers to "Dear Wife" was heard frequently. The gathering continued until late and every moment was filled with much happiness and good fellowship.

The guests from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Cancilla, Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. L. Pardella and Mr. and Mrs. L. Pardella, Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. F. Fasone, Mr. L. Afronti and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sessor and son of Kansas City, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. A. Molino and children of Waterford, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Morrell, Port Dover; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Domenico, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amodeo of Kingston and Mr. Tonty Boccone of Simcoe.

Mr. Tony Morrell and Mr. Frank Domenico have been good citizens of Belleville for twenty-one years and the little tots, born in Belleville and who were christened Sunday, will, it is hoped, grow up with their brothers and sisters to be industrious citizens of Belleville and loyal Canadians.

Crisis Has Faced Labor Government All Way Thru

Review of Fallen Ministry of Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald

SERVED 2 YEARS

The second Labor Government in Great Britain which came into power after the general election of May 30, 1929, has had a life of unusual continual crisis.

Frequently it had obtained support in the House of Commons by the narrowest of margins. Its tenure was made the more uneasy by the fact it never has had a clear majority in the House, but has been forced to continue with the support of the balance-holding Liberals.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's second Labor government went into office June 4, 1929, with 287 supporters in the House against 260 conservatives and 59 Liberals. Nine Independents completed the total of 615 members.

The ministry had its first narrow escape from defeat on Dec. 2, 1929 slipping through with a majority of 13 on a motion on the unemployment bill. On Feb. 27, 1930, the coal mines bill was pushed through with only three votes to spare. Two weeks later the government was defeated on a vote of censure of dole resign. Similar crisis were averted in April, July, December, 1930, and June of 1931.

Despite all many narrow escapes the Labor Cabinet had assumed power under overwhelming and promising conditions than those which confronted Mr. MacDonald on the first night he took his seat in the government in 1924.

Mr. MacDonald, born of poor parents in the little fishing village of Lossiemouth, Scotland, entered his second ministry with a program of social and political reforms. He was determined to deal with the problem of unemployment, to reduce armaments, to evacuate the Rhineland and to effect closer cooperation with the United States of Europe.

Despite the handicaps attendant upon a minority government Mr. MacDonald succeeded in putting his projects in the international field, aided by Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary, and Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Trade relations were renewed with Soviet Russia. The Irish Free State was left. Germany, The London Five Power Conference early in 1930 attacked the problem of disarmament.

In domestic and Empire matters Mr. MacDonald has had his hands filled with such problems as unemployment and the dole, strikes, economic relations between Great Britain and the rest of the Empire, and the problem of India. He presided over the imperial conference of 1930, when no concrete decisions on trade matters were reached, and was immediately thrust into the chairmanship of the first round table conference on India, and while the financial crisis of August was developing, the Indian difficulties again came to a head with the refusal of Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, to attend the second round table conference on India at London.

The Scottish statesman who was to deal with these various problems has been a socialist all his political career. He received an elementary education and at the age of 14 went to London where he got a job as a clerk, studying at nights.

Mr. MacDonald was first elected to parliament as Labor member for Leicester in 1906. After several unsuccessful attempts to enter the House of Commons. He became leader of the Labor Party in the House in 1911. A strong pacifist, he opposed Great Britain's participation in the Great War and as a result became so unpopular that he resigned his leadership of the Labor Party. He lost his seat in the Commons in the 1918 elections. Four years later, however, he returned to lead the opposition and in 1924 he formed the first Labor Cabinet of Great Britain, which lasted less than 9 months.

Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, who ended the Conservative Government in the interim between the two Labor administrations, held a strong position in the House following Labor's victory in 1929, although the "man" was Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, controlling the balance of power.

Mr. Baldwin, of Puritan stock, is the son of Alfred Baldwin, chair man of the firm of Baldwin's Limited. Mr. Baldwin was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his Bachelor of Arts.

Then he went into his father's business, and within four years was virtually the head of it.

In 1908 Mr. Baldwin was elected to the House of Commons as Conservative member for Bewdley, Worcester, a division he has represented ever since. For several years he worked quietly and unobtrusively with Rt. Hon. Andrew Bonar Law, the Canadian, made Mr. Baldwin his parliamentary private secretary in 1916, and from that time on Mr. Baldwin's rise was rapid.

When the coalition ministry broke up in 1922 Andrew Bonar Law became prime minister, the first Conservative prime minister in 16 years. Mr. Baldwin entered the Cabinet as Chancellor of the Exchequer. After a few months the head of the government, who was critically ill resigned. He died a short time afterwards, and Mr. Baldwin was summoned by the King to succeed to the premiership.

After the first brief Labor ministry, the 1924 general elections resulted in a substantial victory for the Conservatives and Mr. Baldwin became premier for five years,

Adult "Children" Frolic "Just for Tonight" at Club

Country Club Scene of Unique Function Saturday Evening

"THE SIGHTS"

Hi diddle diddle
The cat and the fiddle
The cow jumped over the moon
The little dog laughed to see such sport
And the dish ran away with the spoon.

Back to the days of childhood; the "Hi diddle diddle" spirit prevailed—they danced, they laughed, they sang and made merry at the "Children's Party" Saturday evening held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

The majority of the large number present became children again "Just for tonight" and the increasing gaiety indicated that the joys of past days were being lived again to the full. They romped and played in the joys of childhood—jolly, rollicking, care banishing, wholesome fun. Of course, there was a variation in the time which had to be retraced en route to childhood days. Some had a considerable way to go while others regained it more easily. This, however, added greatly to the fun. The appearance of the older ones caused much glee to those who were not so far removed and upon whom children's costumes sat with more becoming grace.

A description of the costumes is something to be left to the imagination. The girls wore sailor suits, middies, voils and pretty gingham short dresses, blouses and knee length skirts, sashes and ribbon bows of many colors and frills where they used to be worn; sailor tams, berets, silk sox and pretty slippers, character costumes of excellent conception portraying a coloured mammy and most fear inspiring pirates' brigands, gave a variation to the "children's outfits" and added color and life to the scene. Many of the children had "honest to goodness" pretty curls, while several exposed lengths of most beautiful hair to the admiration of their "young" friends.

The boys also were arrayed in sailor suits, middies, knee pants, wide sox and slippers and numerous original boyish outfits. Big "boys" gloriously arrayed in fancy material suits, short pants, ankle sox and slippers, wearing flowing ribbon ties and wigs of golden curls, added much merriment to the party.

The fun was contagious. It was a scene of animated faces, aglow with the joy of "just being glad," gay companionship and clever repartee. The outbursts of banter when friends met again as "children" was hilarious. "Did your mother bring you?" Where is your nurse? You do look cute, too bad you grew up," were some of the remarks passed in greeting. Many of the girls brought dolls, teddy bears, toy kitties, skipping ropes, beach sand pails, shovels, etc. Candy suckers were enjoyed in the accepted fashion. These suckers are now on sticks, while in the childhood of many of those present, they were attached to slate pencils. They played and romped and quarrelled in sport, over dolls and suckers. At 11 o'clock in the evening. The dance room was prettily decorated with flags, lanterns and balloons. Some square dances of childhood were enjoyed but there were few; for although happy in assuming the dress of earlier days they preferred the dances of today. Musical chairs and the Grand March created much merriment. Excellent music was furnished by Mason's orchestra.

Of course, there was supper and it was readily accepted by the "children" after their strenuous romping and frolics. During this time, old favorite songs were sung with good effect.

Before dancing was resumed the prizes were awarded by Mr. E. V. Ellery as follows:

Mrs. S. D. Lazier (Women's President of the Club) first prize for best "girl" comic costume.

Mrs. Hubert Jones, first prize for best and most appropriately dressed "little girl."

Mr. "Jack" Ryan, first prize for best "little boy" comic costume.

Several "little girls" and "boys" in costume played bridge and danced, entering heartily into the merry making.

It was a most enjoyable party—everyone said so. Now they are back to normal, back to "act their age," after a "real childhood" in an evening of wholesome fun.

WEDDINGS

ROBERTS—BRATHWAITE

Toronto, Aug. 24—Christ Church, Deer Park, was the setting for a lovely late-summer wedding on Saturday at 3 o'clock when Lillian Frederica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Y. W. Brathwaite, was married to Arthur Melville Roberts, son of the late Mr. A. A. Roberts and Mrs. Roberts of Belleville. Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock officiated. Mrs. Ethel V. Bolton, organist of the church, played the wedding music. During the singing of the register Mr. Telverton Brathwaite, brother of the bride, sang. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of heavy cream satin, made on long, straight lines, and appliqued in velvet in four-leaf clover design, insets from the wedding gown worn by her great-aunt, Mrs. Frank Warren of Whitby. The skirt was fashioned into a long train coming to a point, and the sleeves formed mittens over the hands. She wore her great-aunt's veil of cream tulle, embroidered with orange blossoms. It was arranged in plain cap effect, and caught with a narrow band of orange blossoms across the back of the head. From her shoulder it fell in soft folds, coming to a point half-way down the train. Her flowers were a shead of white roses, and she wore a diamond pendant. Graceful gowns in the pastel shades of the flowers in the church were worn by the matron of honor and five bridesmaids, Mrs. Geo. Clarkson, Mrs. James Straithy, Mrs. William Butler of North Bay, Miss Margaret Aitken, Miss Margaret Rolph and Miss Mary Warren of Belleville, sister of the groom. Mrs. Clarkson, matron of honor; Mrs. Butler and Miss Roberts were in pink chiffon, made on long, straight lines, with uneven arrangements of narrow frills falling from the waist to the ground. They wore short chiffon jackets, with three-quarter length sleeves, and large picture hats of pink taffeta, piped with blue. Their shoes were pink, with blue bows. They carried nosegays of blue cornflowers. Their flowers were pink roses and blue cornflowers.

Miss Rolph, Miss Aitken and Mrs. Straithy were similarly gowned in frocks with large taffeta hats piped with pink, and the bows on their shoes were pink. Their bouquets were blue cornflowers and pink roses. Miss Janet Clarkson and Miss Dorothy Manhenitt were winsome little flower girls dressed alike in pale pink crepe de chine frocks, smocked in blue. They wore pink hats, and large pink hats tied under the chin with pink bows, and carried old-fashioned nosegays of small flowers in shades of pink, blue and yellow.

Mr. Grier Roberts of Belleville, brother of groom, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. James Torrance of Montreal, Mr. Hugh Dale-Harris of Ottawa, Mr. E. C. Southey of Bowmanville, Mr. Thomas Wills of Belleville, and the bride's two brothers, Mr. Telverton Brathwaite and Mr. Frank Braithwaite. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 177 Lyndhurst Avenue, where the reception rooms were lovely with rose and white gladioli. Mrs. Brathwaite received with the bridal party in a smart gown of black lace with champagne colored yoke and sleeves. Her hat was of black velour, and she wore Tallaman roses. Mrs. Roberts, who also received was in black chiffon trimmed with cornflower blue chiffon and black straw hat with blue felt trimming. Her flowers were yellow roses and cornflowers. Later Major and Mrs. Roberts left for a motor trip through the Maritime Provinces and Maine. For travelling the bride chose a suit of black basket weave tweed trimmed with black carcual, with which she wore a cream satin blouse. Her hat was of black velour trimmed with black quills, and she wore white kid gloves and black shoes. On their return they will live on Bruemar Avenue, Toronto.

The PATH to the DOOR ... of the Better MOUSE-TRAP BUILDER is Producing a Crop of WEEDS!

QUEEN MARY of England herself recently told a charity organization in which she was interested, "Advertise! It pays to advertise." Indeed times HAVE changed. When Queen Mary must talk of advertising, what must the poor mouse-trap builder do? No longer will the world make a beaten path to his door, however wonderful his mouse-trap. Because his competitors are out telling the world all about their products in advertising. The world is listening. And buying!

There's the situation, sad as it may be to some. The most direct, effective, time-teated, economical way of reaching the public is through the medium of a daily newspaper. DRIVING OUT CANADIAN-BORN

There is a threat to drive out the foreign-born nurses from Boston City hospitals. The work of the Boston City Council shows what happens when a civic body cannot take a cool view. It has probably fallen before the hue and cry for dismissal made by Bostonians quite oblivious of the fact that Canadian and other foreign nurses have performed their duty nobly in U. S. hospitals in times when there was not so great a demand for jobs as there is today.

Would Boston City Council like to hear of U. S. natives being dismissed wholesale out of jobs in Canada?

The world has heard much of Boston's culture and its claim to being the original settlement for liberty in the New World, but things have changed since the Mayflower stopped sailing.

There will probably come a day when Boston Council will be heartily ashamed of itself for acceding to a mob cry for dismissals.

REGISTRATION AND WORK

It is clear that those who are out of work as well as the Governments and municipal councils are alert to the situation.

It is well to see registration proceeding as it is for not only the highway project on which mainly single men will work but also for municipal undertakings under the relief plan with federal and provincial aid.

Such methods are certain to eliminate possibility of overlapping and will relieve strain on municipal philanthropies and will also work as a deterrent to those who would like aid without work. It has been clearly stated that those who spurn work will no longer be taken care of. If such should get into trouble by defiance of law and regulations they would undoubtedly be severely dealt with. The relief undertakings will coordinate activities and will put a stop to the soliciting of aid by those who would rather beg than work. The vast majority want to work.

The work of relief will be welcomed by the men who need it for it will not only provide them with means, it will keep the population busy and where all are working there is less discontent.

Relief points the way to the ultimate recovery from the depression. It will tide over the unemployed until the more cheerful day comes and hence is a community and national duty.

A "HOUSE OF PERPETUAL SPRING"

An atmosphere as invigorating and full of health as that of a May morning.

Ideal conditions where mental and physical fatigue are unknown.

A combination of temperature, humidity, and ventilation where effort and efficiency never sag.

Any type of climate that suits your personal taste or your mood of the moment can be produced as easily as you ring for an elevator.

Such are claimed to be the unique characteristics of the "house of perpetual spring," designed and built by research engineers of the Westinghouse Company to test new theories of heating homes and offices.

According to Samuel M. Kintner, vice-president in charge of engineering, quoted in recent press bulletin, the reactions of numerous persons who have worked and studied in the conditioned air are so favorable that sponsors of the idea feel confident it points the way to what methods of heating and ventilation that will be strongly conducive to greater health, comfort, and sustained effort and for an opening cost below that of present day fuel. We read:

Inside walls of the little house are divided into panels supported by pivots so such a manner that they can be turned much like shutters, a feature which helps in the control of air currents. An electric fan may be attached to the back of each panel, and similar units are attached at regular intervals to the upper side of the ceiling, making heat distribution even at all points.

These elements are controlled by separate switches so it is possible to warm any one panel, any series of panels, the low panels and the ceiling, the ceiling alone, or any other selected section of the wall surface in order to study the results of climates made to order.

With the walls at the temperature of the body there can be no heat loss by radiation, says Schad, and one is quite comfortable, although the thermometer shows the air of the room to be only 60 degrees.

Thus, says the engineer, it is possible to have perpetual spring, regardless of the outdoor weather conditions, and it requires little stretch of the imagination to make a summer cooling plant out of the same equipment.

And since sunlight has been broken up into its several component elements, and since the beneficial ultra-violet rays of the light, which do not penetrate ordinary window-glass, can be created by special bulbs attached to light sockets, Westinghouse research engineers believe the windowless little house of perpetual spring is approaching the ideal of living conditions.

A PEARL
By Aline Michaelis

It lay within its satin nest,
Of all Earth's gems the loveliest,
And many, passing, looked thereon,
And thought how like the dawn it shone.
And, "Ah!" men said, "Where will it go,
To grace a hand as white as snow,
Or on ivory throat to rest,
Like rose-petals to petal prest?"
Wealth purchased it, a watch was set
Always about the pearl, and yet
From beauty's ownership a thief
Soon stole the gem; his triumph brief,
It travelled on from hand to hand,
By secret channels, land to land,
And ever lovelier than a star,
Its fame was voiced afar, afar.
It crossed the continents and seas,
It knew strange temple mysteries;
It heard the litany of love,
This pearl, unchanged where it might rove,
For always, fairer than the day,
It went upon its changeful way:
Until at last, by some mischance,
It fell where fountain waters dance,

"THE HELL OF NOISE" IN JAPAN

Ears of sympathy are turning from the West toward the Japanese as the Japanese complain of the transformation of other cities into "a virtual hell of noise," because there are no regulations to prevent it.

What is more, they think the people of other countries are much better protected than they against ear-splitting cacophony whether from streets or factories. No matter whether it is early in the morning or late at night, remarks the Osaka Mainichi, taxicab drivers "continue to klaxon." Next to the automobiles the greatest nuisance, this daily thinks, is "the racket produced by the operation of machines and factories."

In Japanese cities, it is further pointed out, there is no definite distinction between business quarters and residential districts, and the Mainichi proceeds:

"With the exception of modern office buildings, most business houses serve the double purposes of trading and living. This makes the irritation of the noise on the streets and in the factories and shops all the more unbearable to the people. They are living, so to say, in the midst of the noise.

"Now, the ear is an organ which is not arranged to exercise self-protection against undesired stimulus.

"We can shut our eyes, close our mouths, or withdraw our hands, when we do not wish to see, or taste, or touch anything.

"We can not help but hear noise when it is raised around us, however. It is strange that not the least efforts are made in order to protect our defenseless organ."

CRIME AS BIG BUSINESS

Crime is big business nowadays.

That is why, claims the Wickersham Commission in the fourteenth and what is called the severest report it has submitted to President Hoover, "the local method of pursuit and arrest of the criminal should be better than the equipment of the criminal in his commission of the crime and escape from the scene of it."

Political corruption, inefficiency, illequipment, incompetent personnel and bad training in the police systems throughout the United States—these defects, the Wickersham Commission charges, explain why our police never quite catch up with the "big business" efficiency of gangster, racketeer, and beer baron. The "big business" methods of the criminal classes are thus described in the Wickersham report:

"By imitating modern business in its adoption of every mechanical contrivance which will save labor and secure profitable results with the least expenditure of time and money, the criminals have by association and combination among themselves become in the commission of crime superior to the police in detecting, arresting, and prosecuting them."

AN ALL-CANADIAN INDUSTRY

There is one industry in which every part of the Dominion shares and to the prosperity of which all corners of this country can contribute. It is the tourist industry, which last year gave us a credit balance of $166,000,000. That sum represents the difference between the amount spent abroad by Canadians and that spent in Canada by visitors from the United States, Great Britain and other countries.

Tourist traffic throughout the Dominion has been growing by leaps and bounds in recent years, and it will continue to grow so long as Canada can offer the touristic attractions that please them and services that are satisfactory. This is not merely a matter of good roads or of adequate hotels with food of a proper quality, well cooked and served. It embraces a much wider field of service.

The whole population can share in that service, and will do all in its power if it understands the importance of helping to make the tourist's stay among us a happy one. There are a hundred and one seeming trifles which, taken in the aggregate, amount to a very important and significant total. Courtesy, geniality, a welcoming hand, patience to those who are unacquainted with our traffic laws, a readiness to help the stranger with in our gates by information, advice, and, if need be, recommendations; politeness in shop and restaurant at all times of prices designed to exploit the visitors; and a reasonable allowance for differences of viewpoint and of approach,—these are but a few of the factors that will count unto us for success—Montreal Star.

GLIDING NOT NEW

Telegraph despatches a few days ago told of a comparative neophyte who soared around in a motorless glider, combs within three minutes of the world's record for sustained flight in this type of craft. It was a remarkable achievement which is likely to create renewed interest in this form of personal transportation, but many readers may make the mistake of thinking of gliding as a new ecdism, an offshot of motor-powered planes. In reality, gliders were the forerunners of airplanes. The real pioneer of the air on the North American continent was one John J. Montgomery, professor of physics at Santa Clara college, who, on an April morning in 1884, twenty years before the Wright brothers startled the world with their flights in motor-powered planes, soared from the crest of a hill at Otay, California, in a glider of his own construction. It is recorded that, having been given the preliminary and necessary push, Montgomery's younger brother, the glider negotiated 800 feet over a green keel and then settled on the ground as gracefully as a bird. Of Montgomery, it is said that while pursuing his hobby he captured and shot rather rarely birds and studied their wings in an effort to find the secret of flight. He found that of all birds the gull and the pelican had the greatest gliding range and attributed this to the peculiar curvature of their wings. The curved wing principle of the glider was a quarter-century before all-metal-planed wings came into common use. And so it would seem that, though his achievements have been lost track of by the great majority, so too of the pioneers of aviation is complete honor not due embrace this name. Prof. Montgomery lived unrecognized and unpraised as practical means of transportation. Shortly before his death in 1911 the industry was still in its swaddling clothes and trans-oceanic flights now everyday occurrences were not yet in contemplation.—Hamilton Spectator.

DON'T BLAME IT ALL ON MOVIES

Why do boys go wrong? A very small proportion of them do, yet their number is sufficiently large to be disquieting.

Statistics show that there, during the past year, 277 prisoners, less than twenty years of age in Canadian penitentiaries.

Movies are frequently advanced as the responsible factor. The degrading influence of gangster literature is often suggested. Sometimes there is mention of lack of parental control, though it is to be doubted whether this fault is given the prominence it deserves. If parental control was what it should be, the influence of lurid literature and demoralizing movies might almost be disregarded.

The business of refuting to check the "corrupting influence" of childhood often carried too far. The idea behind the slogan, "Make a chum of your boy," is frequently imperfectly understood. It is to be doubted that prosper discipline has ever come between a father and his son. Yet parents either through indifference or ignorance may watch the trifling peccadilloes of their children with a perverted pride, seeing in them an indication of spirit. They may see their boys enter a neighbor's yard to rob a cherished tree of the fruit which would probably be freely given if it was asked, they see them smash the limbs and do irreparable damage to the neighbor's property and their only reaction is an inane remark to the effect that "boys will be boys" or "stolen fruit is sweet." If any complaint comes from the neighbor it may be met with impertinence and abuse.

Just how boys thus encourage to disregard the property of others can be expected to go straight outside. Yet if such a lad graduates from robbing a garden to robbing a bank, the parents can't understand it. The inevitable wonder is expressed in the time-worn formula, "He's always been a good boy."

If parents want to prevent to bear in mind, they will find it in "The way the twig is bent the tree will grow." There is a whole lot more truth in psychology packed away in that than in many volumes of the modern twaddle on the training of the child.—Toronto Telegram

BRITISH LABOR GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

MacDonald Will Head New National Non-Party Government in Gt. Britain

Baldwin and Lloyd George May Join Temporary Coalition Government Budget Stabilization First Aim

King George Asks MacDonald to Form Non-Party National Government in Present Crisis

SEQUEL TO RECENT DEADLOCK IN BRITAIN

Unemployment Dilemma on Which MacDonald Regime Collapsed Early Today After Long Fight

London, Aug. 24 (AP).—Rt. Hon. J Ramsay MacDonald's Labor Government resigned today in the face of the national financial crisis and Mr. MacDonald was asked by the King to form a temporary National non-Party Government whose first duty will be to balance the budget.

The Labor ministry has been in office since June 4, 1929.

"It's all over. We have resigned," said the Cabinet ministers to their friends outside No. 10 Downing Street as the Cabinet session ended after only a half hour's meeting.

It was apparent soon after the day opening that the end was in sight. The Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader; Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal chief, and Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Mr. Baldwin's lieutenant, were in conference with His Majesty at Buckingham Palace for two hours.

The political leaders left at noon and it was officially announced from Buckingham Palace that formation of a National Government was under consideration.

Last Meeting

The Prime Minister hurried to Downing Street and the Cabinet meeting, which it had been forecast would be the last of the Labor Government, began. It lasted only half an hour. Then it was made known the Government had resigned—and would be succeeded by a non-party administration, which, formed for an emergency, will disband when normal conditions have been restored.

It is understood that Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, will serve under Mr. MacDonald if he succeeds in forming a new ministry. It was also expected that Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, head of the Liberal party, would hold a place in the MacDonald Government if formed. If his health improves, if he is unable to act, it was believed that another Liberal leader such as Sir Herbert Samuel, who has been represented Mr. Lloyd George during the negotiations, would take his place.

It will include Conservatives and Liberals. Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, and Liberals who have taken very active part in the management of their party during the illness of Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, asked at Buckingham Palace in the presence of the King to participate in a Cabinet in which Mr. Baldwin will serve under Mr. MacDonald.

Budget Balancing

Balancing the budget will be the task of the National Government and it is not expected to last more than a few months during which economy bills will be rushed through the House of Commons.

There probably will be a specific session of parliament, and after the nation's finances are straightened out there will doubtless be a general election and the political situation will be clarified.

The Labor Government came into office on June 8, 1929, and for nearly two and one-half years struggled with national and world problems whose gravity was increased by the general economy depression.

Opposition Efforts Failed

The present crisis developed with the report by the government economy committee calling attention to the urgent necessity of balancing the budget in the face of a threatened deficit of $600,000,000.

For two weeks the cabinet has been in emergency session debating measures which would wipe off that deficit, but opposition to measures which would do so culminated in its resignation.

The Trades Union Congress, backbone of the Labor movement, issued instructions and then developed a split in the Cabinet.

To the new government, which probably will not hold office beyond next January, the ministers of the retiring Cabinet who supported the economy bills offer their services.

Those who opposed him may fight the programme of the National Government in parliament, but from present indications they are not likely to have much chance of success.

Small National Cabinet

Mr. MacDonald is believed to be the formation of a small Cabinet of about 12 or 14 ministers instead of the usual score. The retiring Cabinet had 21 members. The smaller group will be more wieldy for quick action.

"I shall be in the new government", said Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas Secretary for Dominions, as he left Mr. MacDonald's office.

Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, also seemed certain to remain, and there will probably be half a dozen others as a Labor block in the emergency Cabinet.

At least nine members of the retiring Cabinet were resolutely opposed to some of the economy measures, and these probably will have no place in the National Government.

Mr. MacDonald was scheduled to visit the King again this afternoon and His Majesty was also to summon leaders of the former opposition.

MacDonald Bears Political Strain Well

London, Aug. 24 (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Rt. Hon. James Ramsay MacDonald, whose government resigned to make way for a National Government which he will probably head, seems to be bearing the strain of his arduous labors remarkably well.

Mr. MacDonald reached his bed at No. 10 Downing street this morning at 1:30 a.m. after a remarkably busy day which had followed two weeks of intense activity. No Prime Minister since the war years experienced such a day as Mr. MacDonald had yesterday, including as it did two audiences with His Majesty, a long cabinet meeting, and a late confer ence with the Opposition leaders.

REVISION OF BANKING ACT IS ADVOCATED

Miss MacPhail Would Remove Bank's Powers

ASKS DEFLATION

Would Prevent Executions on Debtors Through Slump

Newmarket, Ont., Aug. 24.—(By The Canadian Press)—Revision of the Bank Act including removal from chartered banks of the power of issuing currency, was advocated by Agnes MacPhail, M.P., addressing a parent industry conference here Saturday.

She advocated a deflation of monetary values, "making a dollar buy what, say, 75 cents on the markets of the world, while its home value would be around $1.00, in other words, when we brought a foreign dollar home, it would be worth an additional 25 percent of value in Canada."

Attended by farmers and other citizens of this district, the conference took the stand that agriculture is the greatest industry of Canada, resolutions were carried urging appointment of a committee to add in meeting the national emergency created by depression; suggesting it be made impossible for money lenders to place executions on the property of debtors affected by the slump in farm product prices; and asking immediate extension of rural Hydro Electric Power lines. The conference also urged that provision be made for equality of education.

Agnes MacPhail, M. P., Dr. Joseph Tovell of Toronto, and J. W. Buckley, secretary of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council addressed the meeting.

"The capitalistic system is to save itself, it will be only through self-sacrifice. Producers cheaper goods and shorter hours of labor, in order to have more men working," said Miss MacPhail.

"We ought also to squeeze out of Canadian industry 'the water' that is in the capital structure. It is not all certain," she continued.

A defense fo labor was offered by Burke Hall, discussing the industrial depression, he claimed labor was asked to make good the mistakes which it was not responsible. "Labor is not responsible for the (industrial depression)," he said, "as it is given no voice in management. It is not the first to be called to make good the losses of industry due to overcapitalization and mismanagement, irrespective of the fact that Labor never initiated any of the iron laws of supply and demand banks, railroads, and other industries that can best be communally owned should be publicly owned."

A plea for co-operation was made by Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., president, that we utilize the creative and moral qualities which make a man co-operate with his brothers. "Is that friend we must enter from our present difficulty," he said, "if he was not as economist, he said." "I don't know that the present banking system will be superseded by anything proved fatal Sunday situation was due to the fact that donations to individuals and banks had not been sufficiently generous.

LLOYD GEORGE UNSURPRISED

Still Holds His Strategic Political Position in Britain

London, Aug. 24 (AP)—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader who recently underwent a major operation, received the news of the Labor Government's fall at his home.

"I am not surprised," was his laconic comment.

Mr. Lloyd George still holds his strategic political position. He has held the balance of power since the Labor Government took office and if he wants to he can command a leading place in the National Government.

If the emergency Cabinet is to be of short duration, however, he may not recover sufficiently from his illness in time to plunge into the hot parliamentary fight which is almost certain to occur. In this event such outstanding Liberals as Sir Herbert Samuel and Sir Donald MacLean are likely to represent him in the Cabinet.

His Majesty Gains Greatly in Prestige During Crisis

King George Has Favored Non-Party Gov't. Since Start

VIEW PREVAILS

London, Aug. 24 (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Undoubtedly the King has gained immensely in prestige during the crisis that culminated in the resignation of the Labor Government today.

It is understood that His Majesty favored formation of a national, non-party government—such as is now being created—ever since he had his first talks with the leaders of the three parties shortly after his return to London from Scotland yesterday.

His Majesty saw the Prime Minister again for twenty minutes late last night, and he exhorted the leaders of the three parties into a joint conference at Buckingham Palace today.

Exactly what part His Majesty played in the momentous joint conference that preceded the Cabinet session today may never be known. But it was learned that during the conference the Prime Minister was strongly urged to disband his cabinet and take the leadership of a government representing all three parties, a government that could put through emergency economic legislation at an early session of the House, and carry on until normal conditions were restored. This was the view point that prevailed.

Takes Jump in River But Is Caught by Pursuers

Toronto, Aug. 24—A plunge into the Don River north of the Bloor Street viaduct at 5.30 yesterday afternoon failed to aid Robert C. Campbell, aged 30, of Mount Forest, Ont., in his escape from a charge of domestic trouble.

Campbell, police said, was found in the living room of the home of Alfred Graham, 1054 Broadview Avenue, by Miss Sally Graham, 17, of the Hunt apartments, who told police James Campbell, a young man for who, with Phillip Larogue, 1036 Broadview Avenue, Harry Ellis, 1036 Broadview Avenue, and Geo. Hill, 170 Eaton Avenue, returned to the house in search of the man. In the struggle which followed in the back door and was seen making his way down into the ravine.

The posse took after him, and one of them saw Campbell, police said, drop a parcel near some bush on the bank of the river. Picking up a piece of rock, one of the men threw it and struck Campbell on the back. He was seen a minute later to plunge into the river. Pinky Campbell waded back on the bank, and was seized by his pursuers and walked back to the house.

A telephone call was sent to Pape Avenue Police Station, Sergeant Nevin notified Detective Greenlee, Detective Driver, Mrs. Cullough, went to the house and arrested Campbell on a charge of housebreaking. On being searched, the prisoner, it is charged, was found to have a jimmy and screwdriver in his pocket.

The parcel found in the ravine, police allege, contained a suit of clothes, shirts, ties and a pair of shoes belonging to David Graham of the Broadview Avenue address. Mr. Graham Sr. 196 a razor, Elizabeth, 10, Eaton Avenue, and Malcolm Graham, 15, Eaton Avenue, also Mrs. Graham had been in the house ransacked, and, entering into the dining room, saw a man standing with a parcel under his arm.

Detectives Greenlee said Campbell is a tramp and lived in the huts in the Don Valley. He is said by police to have admitted the charge, saying he was going to get into a house, no matter if he had to force his way. His story to police is that he left the farm food for the Broadview Avenue house before the strike, the clothing.

JUNIORS EVEN PLAYOFF BY 9-7 VICTORY

Shaky Start Did Not Deter Home Team From Recovery

PAGETT'S HOMER

Petes' Threat in Seventh Held in Check by Wilkins

Slugging their way to victory the B.A.A.A. Juniors evened up the Eastern Ontario Junior playoff when they defeated the Peterboro Posters at the local Fair Grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 9 to 7.

After a somewhat shaky start when the visitors collected four runs in the first innings, the local kids went to work and made the series one game apiece. The third and deciding game will be played in Port Hope on Tuesday evening, Aug. 25 at 5.30 p.m.

Pagett, the Petes smart second baseker, supplied the feat of the first game in Peterboro when he hit the first pitched ball high and far away for a home run. Three more counters were registered before the ace was retired. Not to be outdone the locals went to work and plastered the offerings of Denison, the Petes' hurler, for three runs, only to add five more to the list in the third innings and one in the seventh to finish their scoring. After the first innings the locals were only able to bag one run in the third and two runs in the seventh to finish on the short end of the scoring.

Wilkins, on the mound for the Association kids, started very shaky but settled away in the latter part of the game to hold the Petes when they threatened in the seventh frame. Vlasnik" McClure caught one of the best games of his career and his handling of Wilkins' slants was almost letter perfect. The locals' infield was not broken up by the absence of "Zeke" Tobe, but J. Barriage filled the hole in a very capable manner not having an error during the entire game and handling all chances like a veteran.

Murray, at second, for the locals gave the fans one of the best exhibitions of how to play the "keystone" sack seen in Belleville in some time. He accepted more hard chances than all the rest of the infield collectively and the kid did not have a slip during the entire nine innings. At times he brought the fans to their feet with his fine fielding and good throwing.

On the local play the same brand of ball in the third and deciding game that they have demonstrated in the first two games, they should win from the Petes tomorrow at Port Hope. The winners tomorrow will meet the Toronto junior winners next Tuesday afternoon. Where the first game will be played is not known as yet.

On Thursday evening, of this week the B.A.A.A. are putting on a benefit game for their star pitcher, "Cliff" Smith, who lost the life portions of breaking his arm in the first game of the series in Peterboro. Their opponents will be an all-star team from the other three junior clubs in the local junior league. Point Anne, Moore and Wellington players are all very glad to have an opportunity of helping the boys in their misery. The game will be played at the Fair Grounds at 8 o'clock Thursday evening and it is to be hoped that the baseball fans will turn out better than they did last Saturday. These kids play much better ball than they would expect. They are the seniors of tomorrow.

Saturday's lineups were:

Peterboro—Pagett 2b, Bailey lf, Price lb, Bailey cf, Denison p, Schollard 3b, Bowerman c, Denuson ss, MacGregor rf.

B.A.A.A.—Murray 2b, Wilkins p, Oulhane lb, Carter ss, Cyr 3b, Farmer, McClure c, Graham cf, J. Barriage lf, Fraser rf.

Score by innings:

	R	H	E

Mrs. Moody Wins in Straight Sets

New York, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, still the impressive, perfect tennis player, came back Sunday to claim her place atop the women's tennis world by defeating Mrs. Eileen Bennink Whittingstall, of England, in straight sets in the finals of the 44th national women's tournament at Forest Hills. In winning Mrs. Moody captured her seventh U. S. title.

The scores—6-4, 6-4 indicate the ease and dispatch with which Queen Helen turned back the last of 45 players who questioned her right to the throne she relinquished a year ago. It took her 24 minutes to subdue her slightest opponent in the opening set, but she ran through the second in 22 minutes with the loss of only 14 points.

Boosts and Fair Criticism

The editor of "Sport Eye" received a letter from one signing himself "One Seeking Information." A number of questions were asked by the writer and we will try to answer them to the best of our ability.

Question No. 1—Is it a fact that every game that Miss Fairbrown of the CIACO Club has played in, has been played under protest? Answer—Some of the games were played under protest, but not all of them we believe.

Question No. 2—Is this fair to the CIACO Club or the other teams in the league? Answer—Absolutely no.

Question No. 3—Why has President Woodley not handed the protest of Miss Fairbrown over to Mr. M. F. Duff of the B.A.A.A. to deal with before three weeks have gone by? I understand that a meeting was held some time ago and the decision was that this should be done. Answer—We have no idea why the protest was not handed to the B.A.A.A. That is the business of the League executive.

Question No. 4—Why were three umpires used in a recent game between the Belleville Fruit and CIACO teams? Why the extra expense? Answer—We believe that this was an arrangement between the two teams. The home team hired the umps.

Question No. 5—Why do the public persist in sitting on the fence and getting on the lawn during games? Why don't league officials ask the fans to cooperate in this manner? Answer—You will have to ask them in person.

Question No. 6—Is Miss Stinson of the National Maids fully qualified for the Belleville Maids? Answer—That is up to the league officials to decide the status of Miss Stinson. It might be added that Napanee is closer to Kingston than it is to Belleville though.

Question No. 7—When do the play-off's start? Answer—Again we will have to refer you to the league officials.

Question No. 8—There is considerable talk about the CIACO Club reporting officially that they had won their game in Kingston on Aug. 17th and later denied by the Kingston team. Why didn't President Woodley and Secretary Vanderwater of the Women's League the CIACO management? Answer—as far as we know the CIACO Club did not report and it remains a loss for the CIACO Club. Why not let such matters as this drop?

Gibbard's of Napanee, won the Eastern Ontario Section of the intermediate O.B.A. series as they won two straight games from the Belleville A's. Tonight, after winning at home last night the Napanee boys will meet the Kingstonians at the Kingston Cricket Field on Saturday by the score of 9 to 6.

Walt Grow has the Gibbard clan hitting with a vengeance. He defeated the Belleville boys on Saturday and the result was 14 to 6 and 17 to 6. Other leaders of Fournier, While "Dree" Fraser let the "little Pastes" down with but three hits. If the Gibbards fielded a little better Fraser would have had a shut-out.

The local B.A.A.A. juniors evened up the series with the Peterboro Posters by defeating them 9 to 7 on Saturday. The third game is being played at Port Hope tomorrow at 5.30 p.m. May the locals go far.

On Thursday evening the B.A.A.A. kids are playing a benefit game for "Cliff" Smith. "Cliff" had the misfortune of breaking his arm while pitching for the locals at Peterboro last week. The game is a worthy cause and it is hoped that all sport fans will be on the job. Time of the game 6 p.m., place Belleville Fair Grounds. Teams B.A.A.A. juniors vs. "All Stars" of the Hastings County Junior League The best players from Wellington, Point Anne and the Junior Moore will be pitted against the league winners. The price of admission is only 25c.

ORIOLES SEEN IN COMEBACK

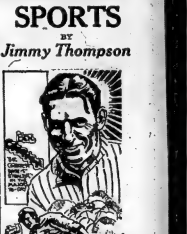
Sherid's Wildness in Final of Opener Proves Handicap

(By the Associated Press)

After being driven down a couple of notches in the great three-club race for the International lead, in their series with Rochester, the Baltimore Orioles are in the comeback road while the Red Wings and the league leading Newark Bears are engaged in their private war for the lead.

The Orioles are up against the Montreal Royals, who have recently added Owen a contending position down into fifth place and so far they have won two out of three games with two more days of the series left. Baltimore came out with an even break in a double header yesterday while Rochester was squaring its series with Newark by winning a single game 6 to 5.

The Royals put up a pair of tough battles, but Roy Sherid's wildness in the final inning of the opener proved too much for the handicap. Sherid, who gave seven passes walked in two runs in the ninth to give the Orioles a 5 to 4 victory. A home run by ripple, his second of the day, broke up a pitchers' duel between Vaughn Bowyer and Ad. Liska in the second clash and won for Montreal 4 to 2. Although Brown gave the Orioles only two hits, they were batting 1.000 in the fourth when Ripple clouted his homer with two on base. Montreal got out three runs off Liska.



Newark's pitchers suffered an attack of wildness fully as bad as the one that overcame Sherid and with similar results. Rochester's batters made only two hits off Stoner, Brennan and Thomas but they drew ten walks and one hit batsman to make them good for six runs.

Buffalo Bisons staged a comeback against Jersey City in the two games of a double header and place themselves only one game behind Rochester. Starcher, in his pitching by George Grant, forcer Jersey City hurler, with Dick Tucker's 9th home run of the season and a homer by Mueller won the first game 4 to 0, in the second, the home slammers Bob Nekola for 14 hits to win 4 to 3 while Bloomer and Mitchell each won the first game 4 to 0, in the second, the home slammers Bob Nekola for 14 hits to win 4 to 3 while Bloomer and Mitchell each won the first game seven blows.

WHITTLING IT DOWN

To take our view for instance the grand old game of baseball is getting standardized along with motor cars, chewing gum, and red front nails. They've decided that the pitcher can't return a ball in a hurry, that eliminates one of the few really interesting surprises the fans have left. Another thing we notice by its absence is the trick of baseballing. In the major and even the international leagues it is becoming a lost art. Time was when base stealing was an art in professional baseball, but it seems as though the game has lost one of its features, namely the art of steal ing bases.

TOLAN MAKES WORLD RECORD

Percy Williams Looks From Sidelines at Track Meet

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 24 — Percy Williams, Canada's sprint idol, looked on from the sidelines, Eddie Tolan, famous Michigan colored runner, raced into a new world's record in the 100 metre feature event of the International Track and Field Meet here Saturday, trouncing Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California ace, by two yards. Tolan flashed over the distance in 10.3, seconds, one-tenth of a second under the former mark of 10.4 held jointly by Simonsell and Charley Paddock of Pasalena, Cal. "Buster" Brown, Edmonton sprinter, was third, a few yards behind Wykoff.

Williams stripped for the race, but after warming up, announced that he would not compete because of a sore leg muscle. Williams has been troubled a lot with sore muscles this year and deemed he had better not chance permanent injury.

Two Canadian records were established during the day. Clarence Hill, University of Oregon star, won the 5,000 metre run in 15 minutes, 26.6 seconds, breaking the Canadian mark by 15.4 seconds by D. McGill of Winnipeg, in 1924. Hill broke the tape 25 yards ahead of Jack Melville of Burnaby, B., who finished second.

George Thodoratos, Sacramento youth, set a new Dominion mark for the 16-pound shot put, defeating Paul Jessup, Seattle weight star, with a toss of 50 feet 9 3-4 inches. The old mark was 48 feet 7-4 inches, made by Ralph Rose, Olympic club, San Francisco, in 1907.

It was quite a day for Tolan, who also came through with an easy victory in the 200 metres, He defeated Jimmy Ball of Winnipeg by two yards in 22.6 seconds.

Peterborough C. G. L. Defeats Orono Team

Peterboro, Aug. 24.—Scoring nine runs in the first two innings, C.O.D. C. winners of the East Peterboro League, defeated the Orono team, winners of the Lake Shore League 9 to 1 in the first game of the O. B.A.A. Intermediate group play-off Orono got away to a bad start. Their infield was wide open and failed to give Wills any support, hence nine runs were scored on four hits. After the second inning Wills pitched great ball, striking out seven men and only allowing four hits. Orono failed to score in the eighth frame. Score:

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 13 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When the king ape released the limp form that had been Lord Greystoke, he flirted his attention toward the little cradle. Kala was there before him and, ere he could intercept her, snatched the chilc herself, dropping her own dead babe in the cradle, and bolted through the door.

High up among the branches of a mighty tree she took refuge, hugging the shrieking infant to her bosom. Then hunger closed the gap between them and soon he became quiet. The son of an English Lord and an English Lady nursed at the breast of Kala, the great apes

Meanwhile the beasts within the cabin were warily examining its strange contents. Once satisfied they were dead, Kerchak did not again molest the body of either Lady or Lord Greystoke. Presently he approached before the rifle hanging upon the wall. Finally he tore it down and examined it closely.

The other apes sat huddled together watching their chief. Suddenly Kerchak's finger closed upon the trigger. There was a deafening roar! The apes fell over one another in their wild anxiety to escape. Kerchak, equally frightened, hid still clutching the rifle, behind a through the door, which shut tightly after him.

The rifle-sight had caught upon the door's edge and the latch had sprung as Kerchak passed out. When the apes again brought themselves to approach the cabin, they found it securely fastened. After roaming about for a while, they left their homeward march. And Kala joined them with the man-child.

Runs From Behind Parked Car, is Hit

Sunday afternoon shortly before six o'clock Haiden Hallett, 192 James Street, Belleville, was driving, he claims, at a moderate speed on Emily Street, when unfortunately a child ran in front of his car and was thrown to the road. The little girl named Fremine Alenth, ten year old daughter of Vincent Alenth, who lives at 3 Starling Street, it is said, had run from behind a parked car to the centre of the road. It is thought that she saw the approaching car became frightened and suddenly run back with the result that she was hit by the car. Mr. Hallett picked the child up and took her to Dr. Robertson's office, where it was learned that her injuries were of a minor nature and she was taken to her home by Dr. Robertson.

Traffic Officer Taylor investigated.

Sales to China Help Grain Mart.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 24.—Another big scoop of wheat business may be removed from the Farm Board's hip before the week closes. Several sales and trades are in prospect, one sale of at least 15,000,000 bushels, possibly much more, probably will be successfully negotiated with China for use in feeding that country's starving flood victims.

If the Chinese sale for 15,000,000 bushels is consummated, the Board will have parcelled out approximately 70,000,000 bushels of its store since last spring.

3rd Class Good Enough For Him

Ahmedabad, India, Aug. 24.—(CP Cable)—Mahatma Gandhi set out today on his journey in a third class compartment with his mattress, spinning wheel and goat's milk can of goat's milk, on his way to Simla to confer with Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India.

The Mahatma, as representative of the Hindu Nationalist Congress party, will leave for London on August 29 to attend the second Round Table Conference, if agreement can be reached between himself and the Viceroy regarding Gandhi's charges of violations by the authorities of the Delhi truce between the Government and the Congress.

Jerusalem, Aug. 24.—The Arab population throughout Palestine went on a general strike, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports.

The strike was called by the Arab executive to protest against the Government supplying outlying Jewish settlements with scaled armories.

SYNOPSIS

Lovely Fanchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her erstwhile "Pop." Fanchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Rivard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the law, she goes to the Carstairs home as Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Colin Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Fanchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Fanchon makes her debut in New York. Colin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Fanchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note arrives from Tony. She visits him and reshapes his scheme. Tony informs Pat, Fanchon that Evelyn is alive but has lost her memory. He threatens to expose Fanchon unless she introduces him to Mrs. Carstairs as "Cesare Gallo." Although claiming he has Evelyn in his apartment, Tony refuses to let Fanchon see her. Two days later he calls at the Carstairs home. Colin and an old friend are skeptical about him because of Fanchon's strained attitude in his presence. Months later, Tony tells Fanchon she must induce Mrs. Carstairs to wear her emeralds to the Van Suydam Ball. He suggests that Fanchon go away with him. Fanchon has no alternative. At the ball, Tony wears a Roman costume similar to Colin's.

CHAPTER XXIV

Jennie looked magnificent in a Roman empress costume for the time of Catherine the Great. The ropes of Carstairs emeralds were looped about her neck beneath the heavy pearls and fell to her waist. There were emeralds in her ears and she wore a small tiara of emeralds and diamonds. There were great square stones on wrists and hands, emerald as spring, clear as water, uniquely beautiful. It had taken no little ingenuity on Fanchon's part to make her wear them. She always wore the emeralds at the Van Suydam ball, at the opening of the opera and on one or two other occasions. Fanchon could not drag her eyes from the jewels although she had seen them before. The first time Mrs. Carstairs had shown them to her. "They must go," she said, "to Colin's wife. I've left you other pieces of jewelry, dear . . ."

The dinner table glittered with crystal, with silver and gold plate and silverware; it had been built about a square pool in which a miniature lake banked with orchids. There was wine . . . and excellent food . . . and superb service . . . and around table, though Fanchon with the feeling of an Alexander, were millions of dollars in jewelry alone. However, the emeralds would keep him and Fanchon for the rest of their lives. There was a place in Paris, and another in Rotterdam, where broken there they settings, they could be disposed of. He knew of these places. He had not served one term in a reformatory for nothing; nor had he confined his activities to the service of drug rings and gang war makers.

"It was quite late when they went, in what practically amounted to a fleet of cars, to the Van Suydams. As it happened, Fanchon drove with Colin. The other Roman had been unable to make other arrangements but bided his time in silence, following Colin's small French town car as it pulled away from the curb before his did, with his dark and sorrowful eyes.

And Colin had make his own arrangements. He and Fanchon were alone in the car save for an impassive driver divided from them by glass and steel.

"I had to get you to myself," he said, "and it wasn't going directly to the Van Suydams. We are driving around the Park first. I want ed to tell you how beautiful you are to me. I would take no more pains to tell you that, Evelyn, but I must content myself with a few brief sentences. I am not," he added, with forced lightness, "the only one who thinks you . . . Just as I am not the only—Nonesuch."

She said nothing, trying to keep the conversation from dangerous ground:

"It was an amusing costume, Cesare's coming as he did . . . the costumes are alike, even in colors. I suppose they came from the same costumer's."

Colin turned his mask in his hands. "Cesare Gallo, the dark Spaniard who became him very well. She had never, she thought, seen him as handsome.

She thought . . . I love you. And you will never know . . . that my secret is the end. Of everything.

"Evelyn," he said, a little moan escaped her. He turned quickly, he asked in anxiety:

"Evelyn, what is it? You are not yourself."

"I'm all right," she answered and then, seeing a chance to establish her plan, "only a little tired, Colin . . . I have, perhaps a slight headache."

Colin continued unheeding:

"You have not been yourself since this Cesare Gilli turned up, out of the blue. Who is this man, Evelyn? What is he to you? What hold has he over you?"

She replied, her heart beating rapidly:

"None. Collin, don't be absurd . . . I've told you all about him. He is . . . just a friend."

"A friend," he said, shrewdly, "who makes you tremble when your eyes follow is fear, before whom you alternately pale and blush. Come, it will not believe it. Is there anything troubling you? Is it that perhaps, knows of that time in Hawaii? Oh, don't draw away from me, Evelyn. Tell me the truth. Is the man threatening you with exposure of what was really an idiotic escapade? Because if so, the remedy lies in your own hands. You have but to tell him simply and at once that I and my mother are aware of the matter. Or was there something you didn't tell me . . . concerning it?"

"Should if there was!" she asked, simply fighting for time.

"As if that would matter! Nothing would matter to me. Not even if you told me you had loved another man before and been to him what . . . what you can never be to me," he groaned.

She said, unsteadily:

"I did love another man once. As girls love, quite unthinkingly. But I—I was nothing to him. Nothing important. I was just there. I've always been my own," she said, very strangely, "I've never belonged to someone else."

"Was this man . . . Commander Gaines?" he asked her . . . "Oh," he said, hopefully, "don't answer . . . I have no right to ask or to know."

"He was not," she said. I think you should know that much."

"Still, then?" With whom you drove, who had followed you, who now annoys you by his importunities? Evelyn, you can't be afraid . . . not to have seen."

She did not answer. She could not. It was true. And yet it was untrue.

"Oh, Evelyn," Colin said, with a more complete loss of self-control than she had ever witnessed in him, "I have been a blundering idiot. And I have used this man as an excuse to sta; here longer . . . an excuse to be near you. I should, I realize, have gone long ago. Perhaps I should have run from you that very first day in the rose garden . . . when we quarreled and when, against my will, I fell in love with you . . ." he said, trying to speak more lightly, "but it was a useless effort. I . . . I fancy that perhaps my thinking you were afraid of Gilli and wanting to stay near and protect you, was all romantic-idiotic, if, as I now believe, you were once in love with him and are no longer, that would, of course, account for your attitude when with him, your avoidance. It is a situation which is not unusual and you are capable of handling it yourself. So nothing remains for me except—to go on board."

Then He Was Gone

by N. Florence Leech

Celeste dreamed slowly, postponing as long as possible the ordeal of going downstairs. She sighed as she remembered her brother's parting words that morning: "I'm bring ing a friend home to dinner," he had said. "Name of Johnnie Woods . . . He's a struggling young architect, and a fine chap, so be kind to him, sis."

Poor Alec! Like all the rest of the family he was trying to marry her off, just because she was temperately and obviously unhappy; marriage to them was the only possible solution. Well, they were correct; but the catch lay in finding the right man.

Four years ago, when she was nineteen, Celeste had spent the summer in Paris with her mother. Two weeks there she had met Monsieur Jean du Bois at an art exhibit. Their glances had caught and held across the room and he had come to her through the crowd. Blue eyes and brown had said in that brief hour all that a man and a woman need to say. Every day after that they met surreptitiously in the garden of the Tuileries D'Or. Sometimes they sat still, more often they took long walks; but always they talked, talked... and finally she promised to marry him.

"I'm not earning much now," he admitted, "but we shall enjoy poverty. And some day you'll be proud of me."

She agreed unreservedly. Accustomed only to luxury, she thought that temporary poverty would be a delightful experience. As for Jean's work, he was probably the French equivalent of a bond salesman; or he might be in real estate while

FIND ROUGE POT IN RUINS

Roman Matron in Britain Like Modern Sister

London, Aug. 24 (By George Blanchford, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent) — "Time cannot wither nor custom stale"—

Fallen searchers among broken stones are gradually revealing a strange human story of days when Imperial Rome held Britain from the English channel to the Grampians. Along the old Roman wall which once spanned the northland from the Tyne to the Solway among among the ruins of Vercilanium (which Queen Boadicea in her millhand assertion of women's rights burned to the ground)—in the remains of Roman Villas in Hampshire, chapter is slowly added to chapter. And it is a story not of invisible empires but of man's little weaknesses and women's little vanities.

The discovery of Vercilanium, near St. Alban's of a bronze rouge pot and pincers of decorated hair pins is more revealing of the tan matron in those old days that the division of Caul into three parts and if wonned, that the ancient ivory box of counters tells how men gamoled. Paw marks and their shore where a naughty dog scampered over tiles before they had time to dry.

Roman industry even had its slackers. A potter discovered in London itself bears a half-innumous, don itself bears a half-innumous, half-cynical inscription. "A Roman workman who did not take on the job. A workmate, with no thought of conferring with his fellows recorded the fact with his wet finger on a wet tile. And the tile has come down through nearly two thousand years.

Control of Diseases in Gladioli Plants

The soil that has borne a crop of diseased gladioli will, in most cases, harbour the organisms responsible for these diseases for a number of years even if it is not replanted to gladioli in the intervening years. It is obvious then that these soils must not only be avoided for the future planting of gladioli for at least five years, but every precaution must be taken to prevent the transference of this soil to clean areas, either by cultivating tools, utensils, etc., by feet of men or animals, or by wind, where the soil is liable to drift.

Corms having disease lesions should not be planted or sold as these corms are the most prominent means of introducing the disease organisms into a soil, which may be free from them. In order that corms may be grown corms are free from lesions they should be carefully examined. Each lot of the examination is made just before planting or not before April the 15th scales may be entirely removed, but if it is done during the fall or winter it is also possible to avoid the entire removal of the corm scales. It has been found that the pealed corms subjected to average storage conditions, practically no deterioration in value due to drying and shrivelling, as observed by them held in storage for some time.

The following method of examination is recommended (before is adopted):

A. By the removal of the two outer scales, a ring of corm tissue will be exposed at the base varying from 1-2 to 3-4 inches wide. An examination of this area will usually be possible to detect about half of the diseased specimens.

B. With regard to the other half of the probably diseased corms, a discolouration or partial discolouration of the remaining corm scales is nearly always associated with the presence of any rot or scab. However, where the corms are affected with hard rot, a discolouration or discolouration of the scales may not always occur. In this case the feet of the corm will often reveal the presence of the larger lesions, which are always deeply sunken. In order to spot the presence of small hard rot lesions in the upper half of these corms which have no corm scale symptoms, it will be necessary to skin completely one corm in every 10 or 15 in the sample and if lesions of this type are then found, the number examined should be increased.

These recommendations are open to criticism, for the larger grower they would entail a great deal of labour but are recommended especially for newly purchased or valuable varieties. Where gladiolus culture is carried on extensively, the work of peeling all corms would render it almost prohibitive. Field experience, however, has made it possible to eliminate diseased stock in other ways as explained below.

During the growing season, when cultivation or flower cutting is being done, a sharp lookout should be kept for all plants showing the first symptoms of disease, i.e. a leaf yellowing or spotting. When such a plant or group of plants is found, they and the surroundingsoil should be immediately removed with a spade, placed in a box or wheelbarrow kept at the end of the row, and disposed of in such a way as to preclude all possibility of contaminating clean soil. With the exception of an occasional drying of the leaf tips in hot weather, any deviation from the normal green colour of the leaves, fits a climate similar to that of Ottawa at any rate, should be regarded as an indication of the presence of disease, and dealt with accordingly. Even the first two or three fronds in the fall have no appreciable effect on the corms.

Early ripening of the plants may occur in certain varieties in localities where planting is done early and dry weather prevails in the later parts of the season. Care must be taken to ascertain however, that the early ripening is not due to disease, and can only be a normal condition that is uniform throughout the variety and in the absence of any of the disease symptoms described above.

At digging time a further opportunity is offered to get rid of diseased plants and their corms. Any plants showing on being dug, show any signs of decay on the stems discolouration of the corm scales, should be placed in a separate container and suitably disposed of. While, as I have indicated previously diseased corms may be later distinguished, it is impossible to separate to cormels and cormels of diseased plants respectively although those of the latter are capable of carrying disease when planting and should be rejected. The two recommendations last given offer an easy way of avoiding this source of contamination, which is also of great importance, and one which if overlooked will result in a spread of the disease. Careful grading and inspection of corms and quarantine of diseased soil also.

When cleaning the corms in the winter careful inspection should be forded to eliminate diseased specimens according to the recommended procedure given above.

The corms should be stored in a place that is suitable for storage of potatoes, and is a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees, and a moderate amount of moisture.

The use of various disinfectants for treating diseased corms and diseased soil have been tried without success so far. The use of a five per cent solution of formalin in water for 30 minutes or a 1 in 1,000 solution of corrosive sublimate for 15 to 20 minutes is recommended in the following three cases:

A. For seeding healthy corms selected from a mixture of healthy and diseased ones.

B. For soaking corms of expensive varieties after the lesions have been cut out with a knife.

C. In view of the fact that some of the diseases, probably dry rot, enter the corms from the soil through the corm scales and are progressive during the storage period, it is suggested that either of the above treatments may be carried out to advantage at digging time. It may be an unsuitable time to soak the corms and it may present difficulties in the way of proper curing, but if the presence of disease is suspected from field symptoms, a soak at this time would be of greater benefit in preventing losses from decay than a curing treatment before the fungi have entered the tissues of the corms too deeply to be killed by such disinfection.

The inspectors at the ports of entry are now familiar with these diseases and a more careful search for them should be carried out on important gladiolus Stock. A percentage of lots are found to be affected above which fitness has been condemned and if any disease is found in a shipment a re-inspection by the grower is notified of its presence and the necessary precautions to adopt.

The feature attraction today and Tuesday, matinee daily, is the new Oscar Hammerstein Sigmund Romberg glorious musical romance, "Children of Dreams," with Margaret Schilling, musical comedy favorite, and Paul Gregory, Broadway star, and considered a screen "find", in the stellar roles, supported by a notable cast including Charles Winninger.

Every lady attending the Belle tonight will receive a gift of beautiful Blue Pearl Dressmeware, with the compliments of the management.

Among the Romberg achievements are "Blossom Time," "The Student Prince," "Princess Nightie" and "Nina Rosa." It being their second offering, written exactly for the screen.

The love story is that of a girl who has lived all the life of a gypsy, wandering through California with her parents from orchard to orchard, in the time of apple harvesting —and wherever they fancy happens to take them in the rest of the year they eventing in the fire-fly camp of the fruit-pickers, when gay starlight are twanging and young and old are dancing and singing under moon-whitened trees in their house-on-wheels. Take the whole family to see and hear melodious "Children of Dreams."

ROGERS ALL DRESSED UP "YOUNG AS YOU FEEL"

In "Young As You Feel," his latest fun starring picture, Will Rogers discards the personal habits of a lifetime and appears for the first time on stage or screen in a well-groomed, Bond Street tailored gentleman.

Rogers has not gone Hollywood. His striking wardrobe is a definite part of the very human characterization Rogers portrays as "Lemuel Murchison", dyspeptic, grouchy old fogey who is compelled to turn ultra modern as an example for his two sons.

"Young As You Feel" which is the screen version of George Ade's hilarious play "Father and The Boys" and which opens at the Belle Wednesday for a three day engagement, deals with the widowed father of two modern sons, a man who has devoted his life to their interest and their welfare, to settle down to business and become happy, contented husband.

The boys, however, have other ideas. One goes in heavily for society, while the other makes movie mania. Then Rogers resorts to desperate measures. Children takes place in his character, brought about by a temporary return to professional entertainer, portrayed by Fifi Dorsay, which Rogers made so much hilarity in "They Had To See Paris."

From a staid, opinionated, dyspeptic old fogey, Will Rogers changes overnight into a gay blade. His neglect of business brings on the first-class clamp of Lucien Littlefield, a shock to Rogers and Fifi ignore all protests dancing with the wild exotics of night clubs and race tracks.

Comedy begins to fly which is just the needed element to bring his sons to their senses and make them settle down to business.

"Young As You Feel" is reported to be the best picture Will Rogers has made to date. It combines the homely wit of Corbett Ade's characteristic slang and the infectious humor of Rogers.

In addition to Fifi Dorsay and Lucien Littlefield, Rogers' supporting cast includes Donald Dillaway, Terrance Ray, Rosalie Roy, Lucille Browne and others. Frank Strayer who directed Rogers in "They Had To See Paris," directed the production.

THE CAPITOL'S CODE OF CONSISTENCY

'Cool crowds enthralled' describes to perfection the state of things at the Capitol on Saturday when an enormous number of both in and out-of-town folks lined the walls and filled the seats, and saw one of the best programmes exhibited in Belleville for many a long day.

"The Hate Ship," Bruce Graeme's thrilling mystery thriller is a remarkable production. For story, for action, for feasibility and for entertaining unfolding of the story one could not possibly wish for anything better.

"Trail of the Hunted," an episode of "Adventures in Africa," is the best yet of this most entertaining and educational series.

It is delaire is present for a really good programme, it would be hard to find a more enticing performance than that at the Capitol to-night, where this programe shows for the last time.

EXTRAVAGANCE TO-MORROW AND WEDNESDAY

It would not be extravagant to see "Extravagance"! Offering as it does a feast of astonishing brilliance to both eye and ear, this beautifully dressed production contains a wonderful moral. It says in effect, "If a man loves a good woman, a safe coast, and the man is not her husband, it is bad wrong, already married, cheating her husband."

Lloyd Hughes, June Collyer, Dorothy Christy and Owen Moore,each ably assist in setting this pictures in a manner which will find response in any audience.

The arrival of "Extravaganza" at the Capitol to-morrow, (Tuesday) for two days will be accompanied by a galaxy of featurettes including "An Animated Dip", a very amusing comedy, "The Rambling Reporter" (travelogue-always interesting) and "Wow Wows and Song" a delightful vaudefilm.

"When Is That Young Man Going Home?"

THIS unwelcome suitor has been wooing the most beautiful young woman without winning her favor. Patience of the household seems about exhausted.

FILM ACTION IS EXPECTED

Provinces Plan Single Case vs. Alleged Combine

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 24.—Joint action by all the provinces of Canada in combating in a single prosecution is planned against the alleged combine of motion pictures theatres in Canada recently reported by Peter White, K.C., Dominion Government commissioner. It was stated at meeting of legislature, it was said in the Parliament Buildings here Saturday, Provincial legal departments are combining their forces and will decide on a course of action at a conference to be held at some central point, probably Winnipeg. It was stated.

Provincial legal representatives are anxious, it was stated, to avoid overlapping and confusion, and it was indicated that one prosecution will be launched in one province, under present plans, the cost to be borne by all the provinces. Details are expected to be worked out in advance for agreement by provinces.

Niagara Rock For Rock Wool Manufacturing

Ottawa, Aug. 24—The important discovery that certain deposits of rock in the Niagara district of Ontario are suitable for the production of rock wool, a valuable insulating lining and covering material, features a report issued by the Honourable the Minister of the Department of Mines. The report, by M. F. Goudge, deals with the possibility of establishing an industry in Ontario for manufacturing rock wool, which is classed as one of the most effective insulating materials known.

Rock wool, or mineral wool as it is sometimes called, the report states, is not manufactured in Canada at present, as hitherto suitable raw materials were not known to exist within the Dominion. It is made from shaly limestones which possess certain definite characteristics. Research carried on in the laboratories of the mines branch by Mr. Goudge indicate that several deposits of impure limestone occurring in various places between Niagara Falls and Ham Iton are suitable for making rock wool.

In the process of manufacture, the natural rock is mixed with coke and charged in a small blast furnace, where it is melted, the molten rock flowing in a small stream from the base of the furnace is blown into a myriad of small globules by a blast of high-pressure air/steam. As the rock globules hurtle through the air each develops a very thin, pliable, glassy fibre behind it. This fibre is known as rock wool.

The discovery of the suitabdy of the Niagara district rock for the manufacture of this commodity suggests the possibility of a new and valuable product being added to the mineral production of Canada, the report states.

QUINTE BRANCH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Quinte branch of W. I. held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 11, at the home of Mrs. Noble Brown, Front of Thurlow. There was an excellent attendance, and a splendid program enjoyed by all present. The President Mrs. Jas. Bunnett, was in the chair.

The meeting opened with the Institute Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Community singing was indulged in after which Mrs. Mary Hall gave a most beneficial paper on "Forgiveness," referring to the Bible in many instances throughout, always reminding of Our Saviour and the many examples of "forgiveness" He set before us. The theme we set at all time:

"By God forgiving
And Law abiding".

Mrs. Clare Leavens in her most pleasant manner favoured with a solo, "Down by the Old Mill Stream." Mrs. D. Atkins gave an interesting reading. Mrs. Gerlin, with her wonderful musical talent, delighted the ladies with several instrumental solos. Mrs. R. Clarke who has been holidaying in the Sudbury district gave a very inspiring scenic picture of her trip. Mrs. Jas. Carbolt added to the program with a humorous reading entitled, "Pa's Vote". Mrs. Arthur Clasie sang a solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere". Another much enjoyed feature of the afternoon's proceedings was Community Sing, "How to keep young" and the many suggestions were helpful as well as amusing.

Mrs. Ed. Clarke invited the Institute to the home, 93 Gordon St., Belleville, for the September meeting. After the business Mrs. Brown served a very dainty lunch.

REINFORCED DUNLOP CABLE CORD TIRES

Values of the Air We Breathe

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.,

FAMOUS AUTHORITY ON HEALTH AND PSYCHOLOGY

We all breathe air. We cannot appreciate how many substances properties are.

Air is without taste or color but a mixture. It is not a chemical air exists, as it were, by itself.

Air, when pure, is composed primarily of nitrogen, oxygen and carbon dioxide. Of nitrogen there is 79.02 per cent of volume, of oxygen 20.96 per cent and of carbon dioxide 0.04 per cent. Usually, however, a sample of air, no matter where taken, contains many impurities and a certain quantity of water vapor. Nitrogen seems to act as a diluent of the oxygen which, one might say, would burn us up if not diluted. This element, nitrogen, is found everywhere in nature, especially in the structural tissues of plants and animals. It is also in all plants and animals in all forms of life.

Although oxygen does not constitute as great a volume as nitrogen, it is as important for the maintenance of life that all living things die at once when deprived of it. Oxygen is a sort of concentrated oxygen. It is plentiful in the fresh air.

Carbon dioxide is given off from the lungs when we exhale. With the help of the sun's rays all plants inhale carbon dioxide, use the carbon part for their own upbuilding and sustenance, and give free oxygen back to the atmosphere. This is why plants and trees are so beneficial to human life. They help to turn our living waste into life-giving oxygen.

There is always some water vapor in the air. This is because water is always evaporating from the earth's surface. This water content in the air is also absolutely essential to life. Absolutely dry air quickly proves fatal to plants and animals alike.

Among the impurities to be found in air may be mentioned ammonia, nitric acid, nitrous acid, carbon monoxide, carburetted hydrogen, soot, dust, vegetable fibres, wool and silk fibres, small particles of skin, chalk, sand, iron and microscopic vegetable life such as moulds.

Air, of course, is seldom absolutely pure. Small quantities of any of the above may be present and usually in such small quantities that they are not specially harmful. It is evident, however, that a change of air now and then is advisable. One moves really from one place to another to escape impurities.

Ventilation is most essential for all rooms, whether it be those we work in or those we live in. But with proper ventilation, we either remove or dilute the impurities. The latter arises chiefly from our breathing, from fires and lights, from the presence of sewers and drains, and the general accumulation of dirt.

Heat debilitates us as well as impure air. But air may be fresh and not necessarily cold. The best way is to open the top and bottom of one or two windows, day and night, all the time keeping the temperature of the room at about 68 or 70 degrees Fahrenheit. We may not always recognize that the air is impure as it may give no odor. Therefore the safest way is to keep plenty of fresh, outside air coming in.

Fresh hydrogen peroxide may be used for unsightly hair growth on the arms or legs. This does not remove the hair but bleaches it and makes it less noticeable.

SIX LINED UP TO BE KILLED

One Killed, Two Thought Dying—Latest Outrage in New York

New York, Aug. 24.—One man was killed and two others believed to be dying after they, with three companions, were lined up against a wall in Brooklyn and shot down by five men in an automobile.

First reports said the men in the car fired about a dozen shots before they fled from the scene of the massacre. They did so with a touch of grim humor, the wall of slaughter house swainst which to line up their victims.

The shooting came at a time when the city was massing all civic bodies for a mass meeting Monday night to plan forms of combatting gangsters and only three days after a sensational running gun battle in Manhattan in which all persons were killed.

Police, Communists Battle in Streets

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 24—Nine alleged Communists were arrested last night and several injured, one seriously, after a battle with police.

A street meeting was held commemorating the anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. A Communist newspaper published in New York was sold among the crowd and, after a warning, police seized the unsold copies and the two distributors and took them to headquarters.

Speakers then exhorted the mass to march on police headquarters and release the papers. Police hastily were mobilized at headquarters with tear gas bombs and a nearby fire company connected hose to hydrants. The mob came, but because of the warning stalled on the Canadian National tracks at the eastern outskirts of the town and was struck by the fast Montreal-Toronto express.

A lady occupant of the car also escaped. The roadster was thrown into the ditch and was completely demolished. Following the impact fire broke out, and was extinguished by the Port Hope fire brigade. The car was then driven southward and stalled on the tracks. As it was being pushed into reverse the lady occupant, of the car, the name of whom the driver would not divulge, saw the approaching train. Both leaped to safety as the train crashed into it.

CRASH KILLS FOUR PEOPLE

Truck With 40 People on Way to Meeting Hits Auto

Drummondville, Que., Aug. 24—Four persons lost their lives and six others were injured during a collision between a motor truck and an automobile on the main highway near Riviere Noir Sunday night. Earlier reports reached the death list at six. The motor truck, containing nearly 40 passengers, was headed for a political contradictory meeting at St. Eugene while the automobile, containing four persons was en route to Montreal.

The dead are:

Joseph Allard, 20.
Maurice, Geoffrey, 18.
Charles Edouard Denis, 62.
Paul Gagne, 23.

All four were residents of Drummondville of its immediate suburbs and all were instantly killed. Allard, Geoffrey and Denis received fractured skulls while Gagne died of severe internal injuries. The dead were all occupants of the truck.

The automobile was driven by George Beattie of Montreal, who had his wife and two children with him. His six-year-old son, Georgs, Jr., was severely hurt about the head and body and is in a critical condition. The others in the car escaped with minor injuries.

Quarrel in Quebec Over Politics Fatal

Sorel, Que., Aug. 24—Politics are blamed indirectly for the death here of Joseph Millette, 39, which followed a quarrel on Friday night.

Information gathered by the provincial police indicated that following a political argument with two or three men taking part a fight ensued during which Millette suffered a fractured skull from which death resulted. An inquest will be opened, the identity of the victim established, and the jury men were told to reasonable next

The fight took place on the second floor of a local hotel. Millette's police declare, must have been standing close to an open window when struck. The blow probably stunned him and knocked him through the window. He fell on the gallery below, landing on his skull, which fractured.

The French way of the cross was conducted at 1.30 by Rev. J. Payne, and at 2.30 the English way was recited by Rev. J. Maher, S.J., of the Jesuit residence of Toronto, both services being followed by benediction of the blessed sacrament.

NEW CABINET TO BE ANNOUNCED TODAY

Liberals Triumph In Quebec Carrying 79 Out Of 90 Seats

Clean Liberal Sweep in Quebec Elections Houde Twice Defeated

All Taschereau Cabinet, But One Returned at Polls.

MAJORITY GAINS

No Third Party Candidates Successful on Monday

Montreal, Aug. 26.—Complete results of the Quebec general election of yesterday were tabulated by the Canadian Press at 12.30 o'clock this morning, and showed the final results to be:

Liberals elected	79
Conservatives elected	11
Total seats	90
The standing of parties at dissolution, July 30, 1931, was as follows:
Liberals (Government)	65
Independent Liberals	1
Conservatives	11
Labor	4
Vacant	4
New seats	5
Total	90

Stronger than Ever

Montreal, Aug. 25.—After 34 unbroken years of power, the Liberal Government of the ancient Province of Quebec was on Monday swept back into office with a record, even after what is conceded to be the most dangerous fight for victory the Conservative Party has made since 1897.

With only three seats in doubt, all of them traditionally Liberal, Premier Taschereau late last night appeared to have returned 75 seats to the legislative Assembly, while the Opposition, their Leader defeated in both of the two electoral seats where he was a candidate, had but 11 seats, equal to their number at dissolution.

After a whirlwind campaign in which he delivered almost sixty speeches throughout the Province in ten days Mayor Camillien Houde met decisive defeat in both St. Mary and St. James, Montreal, He has represented St. Mary for the past eight years, but contested St. James as well, in order, he said, to make sure he was a Minister who had not a candidate in yesterday's election.

One Minister Defeated

Premier L. A. Taschereau and all his Ministers were returned by comfortable majorities, with the solitary exception of Hon. Gordon W. Scott, who was to have been Provincial Treasurer. Mr. Scott was defeated in the St. Dominique division of Montreal, a traditionally Conservative seat, won by C. B. Gault, who has held it for more than twenty years.

Liberals gained the following five seats: From Conservatives, Laval, Montreal, Dorion, Napierville, Stanstead, Shefford, Ste. Marie and Sherbrooke; from Labor, Maisonneuve. Conservatives captured the following four seats, from Liberals: Chambly, Beauharnois, St. Hyacinthe and Yamaska. Seats that remain in doubt are Gaspe, Two Gaspe and Magdalen Islands. Four out of the five new seats provided by the recent redistribution Act returned Liberals, while the fifth is in the doubtful column. The net increase.4 in Premier Taschereau's followers will be, therefore, at least; five, although the number of Conservatives remains stationary.

"One of Greatest Victories"

Premier L. A. Taschereau issued the following statement on the result of the polling in the Province of Quebec's general elections today:

"The Liberal Party has achieved one of the greatest victories in its history. We have given in the past an honest and progressive administration and the people of the Province have manifested in a manner which leaves no doubt of their appreciation of our work. I regret but one thing—that is the nature of the campaign fought against us, which besmirches the good name of the Province. The double defeat of Mr. Houde and the disaster to his party is our revenge. In other regret I must replace it the defeat of my excellent friend Gordon Scott. His defeat is more sorely deplored in certain quarters. It now remains for my colleagues and myself to again take up the tasks of administering the affairs of the Province in a manner which will merit the confidence which the people have again placed in us."

Houde's Statement

Defeated in both St. Mary and St. James by his Liberal rivals, Mayor Camillien Houde, Leader of the Quebec Conservatives, issued the following statement at 1 a.m. to-day:

"It became clear that the Liberal Government had been returned with a large majority.

"The Premier has spoken. I have nothing to add. I sincerely thank all those who have accorded us their confidence. To all the candidates who held our banner so high during the present fight, I express cordial thanks and my messages for not having been able to lead them to victory. I have the knowledge that I have done all my duty and have not spared myself in order to win."

The Conservative Leader was defeated in his own constituency by Dr. Gaspard Pauleux, and in St. James, where he contested the candidature only ten days ago, by Irenee Vautrin, the Liberal nominee.

Interest in Ottawa

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—The result of the Quebec Provincial election arouse keenest interest in the Dominion Capital. Even in the best informed circles there has been little disposition during the past few days to predict results, or to forecast the size of anybody's election. The return of the Taschereau Government by such an overwhelming majority consequently came as, to some extent, a surprise. Liberals were jubilant, while among Conservative supporters there was disappointment that apparently little headway had been made in the Province of Quebec was apparent.

Strenuous Campaign

The campaign which led up to yesterday's polling was barely three weeks in length but was featured by strenuous efforts on the part of the parties. Much had powerful assistance from the Federal administration party. Mayor Houde, who has represented Montreal in the Commons for eight years, was assured by wire of the support of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and other noted Conservatives while Hon. Arthur Sauvé, Minister of Marine, Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor General and Hon. Lucien Cannon, Postmaster General addressed many meetings throughout the Province.

Aiding the Liberals were Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Dominion Minister of Justice, Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former Minister of Mines and Fisheries, Hon. Fernand Rinfret, former Secretary of State and Hon. Lucien Cannon, former Solicitor General.

Turbulent Scenes

Election day was one of the most turbulent in the history of the Province. Police placed 233 persons under arrest, the majority of whom on various charges, the vast majority of them being released when the polls had closed. Revolver shots were fired in the Montreal Division of the city and 6 number of Indians were arrested. No injuries were reported in there. At mid-afternoon a general order was sent out by police headquarters that all available constables must concentrate at the important polls.

Freed Drops 13 Feet

At St. Jerome, in Terrebonne County, nearly 200 persons rushed out of the general committee room of Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, to go to a market hall for the purpose of hearing Mr. David speak after his victory at the polls. A foot-bridge leading from the committee room to the street collapsed and the crowd dropped 13 feet to the ground. Six persons were more or less badly injured and the 13 others escaped with minor bruises.

A ballot box was missing from a Montreal polling booth but was recovered after an hour's search. Four men were arrested and charged with theft.

Recriminations Alleged

Included in the Montreal arrests were 225 persons alleged to be guilty of attempted impersonation at the polls. Cards to be used for impersonation, it was charged, on polling day were seized during raids at various committee rooms, police reported. The Provincial Police had 300 special constables on duty in the city. Among the raids was one on the committee rooms of Hon. Camillien Houde where, according to Deputy Chief of the Montreal Provincial Police J7 men, including a city police constable, were taken into custody. Others were rounded up in saloons, clubs, vacant dwellings and other evidences of violence. The police stated they had taken thousands of cards bearing the names and descriptions of dead voters.

Two fatalities were recorded in hospital. Hymie Schwartz was reported to have been injured in a scuffle after special constables had entered a dwelling, executing orders on a charge of throwing ballots out of a window, while Ernest Gaudet was found badly beaten on a city street.

Godfrey outfought and outpointed his opponent from the start of the second round. Godfrey weighed 177 1/2 and Harris 228 1/2.

700 Miners Flee Before Racing Flames at Corbin

Fernie, B. C., Aug. 25.—Women and children and the aged and sick were fleeing from the mining town of Corbin, B.C., last night as a forest fire raged down upon them from the timbered hillsides, menacingly threatening to wipe out the community and the homes of its population of 700 persons.

Corbin is 62 miles east of here, in the southern part of the province.

The fire had already reached the railway at the extreme end of the town's two large sawmills, the miners' dwellings are located. It was burning fiercely on the timbered mountain side and in undergrowth brush at the bottom of McGillivray Creek, exposing the buildings to great danger.

Trains started to pull out of the threatened district, one bound south to the junction of the Eastern Britsh Columbia Railway and the Canadian Pacific. Owners of Motor cars packed what belongings they could and fled along the highways.

Fire crews were concentrating their efforts to protect buildings while the forests roared irresistibly on.

There is a large quantity of timber cut and the fire should ignite this, serious loss may result with it, not only to the town but to the mining industry in the town.

The British Labor Government has passed on and a National Government has risen in its place in an effort to guide the Motherland's ship of state into calm waters. EARL JELLICOE IS WELCOMED

Bronzed British Sailor Has Shy, Genial Smile for Armament

Ottawa, Aug. 25—A short, slight, bronzed sailorman, whom every tar in the British navy knows as "Sir John Jack," took the capital of Canada last night with no beaux arts armaments but a shy genial smile.

Cheers which echoed through the Ottawa Station and were yet but the prelude to a refrain of enthusiasm that followed him everywhere, greeted Earl Jellico, admiral of the fleet and hero of Jutland, when he arrived in Ottawa early Monday evening.

Within three hours of his arrival the grand president of the British Empire Service League, who is visiting Canada for the annual meeting of the Canadian Legion at Oshawa, had begun the heavy official itinerary which has been prepared for him here.

Nearly 700 army and navy veterans, officials of the Legion's Dominion executive, and members of its Ottawa branch, with their ladies, gathered at the organization's local headquarters for a reception to the visiting admiral. As at the station on his arrival, official Ottawa rubbed shoulders with the humblest ex-service man at this function of welcome.

As he entered Ottawa headquarters, Admiral Jellicoe signed a form and became a member of the Ottawa branch; of the Legion. Brig.-General Sir Gerald Turner White, who is in the admiral's party, became a life member of the Legion, Lord Jellicoe signing the certificate with a fountain pen borrowed from a local newspaper man.

Idleness Blamed on Mistaken Policies

Toronto, Oct., Aug. 25.—By The Canadian Press)—Mistaken policies were responsible for the fact that thousands of men were idle at the present time, according to S. Lavery, K.C., of Quebec, who spoke here Monday night at the National Convention dinner of the Native Sons of Canada.

The depression should be resisted, he said, "by preventing Canadian-made jobs from being filched by foreigners." Canada should emulate France, he declared, which had found jobs since the war for "as many people as the entire population of the Dominion.

D. L. McDougall of Vancouver, B.C., National President, called for stricter immigration laws to keep out of the country those who were not prepared to remember the full burdens of citizenship." He thought some of Canada's emigrants would return if "we could put the so-called American-Canadian citizens work, here and made room for our own workers."

Speedy Action to Aid Pound Sterling is Aim of 3-Party Government

Balancing of Budget Only Object of Coalition

SEEK CONFIDENCE

Announcement of Personnel of Cabinet Expected Today

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald today completed the task of filling the Cabinet posts in his new National Government from the three major parties, respecting to complete the roster tonight.

The most important positions already have been manned. Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, head of the Conservative party; Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, ailing Liberal leader and Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden taking posts. If Lloyd George's condition does not permit, it is likely that Sir Herbert Samuel will take his place.

The Cabinet probably will have about a dozen ministers instead of the score or more who composed the defunct Labor Ministry. But there are more than 60 lesser ministerial posts which must be occupied even during the temporary life of the non-political government.

Parliament will be summoned to meet September 8 as soon as the reconstruction of the cabinet is determined.

London, Aug. 25.—The new national government will take whatever steps it deems necessary to keep confidence in the pound sterling unimpaired, it was indicated in an official statement on the situation issued from 10 Downing Street last night.

The statement follows:

"The Prime Minister, since his appointment by His Majesty this afternoon, has been in consultation with Stanley Baldwin, Sir Herbert Samuel and Philip Snowden as to the names to be submitted to the King for inclusion as Ministers to the new Government. Considerable progress has been made.

"The specific object for which the new Government is being formed is to deal with the national financial emergency and it is not to be a coalition Government in the ordinary sense of the term, but a government of co-operation for this one purpose. When that purpose is achieved the political parties will resume their respective positions.

"The matter is pressing without delay the excess of national expenditure over revenue. It is anticipated that Parliament will be summoned early in September, when proposals will be submitted to the House for a very large reduction in expenditure and for provision, on an equitable basis, of the further funds which will be required to balance the budget.

"As the commerce and well-being of the British Empire depends but of a large part of the civilized world on the stability of sterling, a well-founded confidence in the pound sterling, the new Government will take whatever steps may be deemed by them necessary to keep that confidence unimpaired."

Will Be Sworn in Today

His Majesty will hold a meeting of the privy council at noon today or Wednesday, when the members of the new government will be sworn in and the seals of office will be handed to the King by those ministers of the late cabinet who will no longer hold their portfolios.

Immediately upon leaving the palace Monday afternoon Mr. MacDonald began the task of making a new cabinet. The composition of this cabinet is the chief subject of a national interest tonight, now the first frenzy of the atmosphere has passed.

Of the material ready to hand some indication is already possible although there is no reliable news as to how the different jigsaws will be fitted into the constitutional frame.

Mr. MacDonald, it might be safely said, will take in to the new cabinet perhaps not more than three of his associates in the old one. Four Conservatives are prominently in line for the smaller national cabinet. Two, possibly three Liberals seem sure of places.

Philip Snowden Enters

London, Aug. 25—Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, issued a statement giving reasons for why the Conservatives consented to enter the National government.

"The formation of a national government, containing members of the three parties in the state," the statement said, "is a measure to which all concerned, at home and abroad, that the gravity of the situation is realized by those who know the facts have been made known and that it has been received in order to take the measures necessary to put the finances of the country in order.

"We are face to face with a grave national crisis, which, if it were not taken in hand with courage and firmness, would be fraught with serious consequences to every man, woman and child throughout the country.

"But our country always gives proof of its greatness in times of national emergency and I have sufficient confidence in our people to believe that on this occasion will be no exception to the rule.

Seventy Separate Units in Highway Construction

Toronto, Aug. 25—Random highlights on arrangements for establishing Ontario work camps in Northern Ontario for the unemployed began to emerge at Queen's Park yesterday.

The following details, it is understood on good authority, have received the approval, provincial and federal, of Premier George S. Henry's cabinet:

(a) Construction of the work on the Tyrans-Canada Highway into 70 in-dividual units of 100 to 150 men each.

(b) Appointment of a physician in charge unit to tend the health of the workers.

(c) Distribution of proper clothing on their arrival in the north to those who lack it.

(d) Examination of every man before he is accepted to ensure the physical fitness of all who go north.

(e) Return of the amount of his railway fare to every man who remains at least three months.

FIRES NEAR 2 CHURCHES

One Blaze on Outskirts of City Destroys House

Answering calls in the vicinity of churches seconds to be the best number House, the city fire department could do last night. The first call was at 9 p.m. when the department was called to extinguish a grass fire west of Holloway Street Church. The department experienced very little difficulty in putting out the blaze which was on a common. The second call was behind Bridge Street Church about 11.15 p.m. where a rubbish fire was burning rather heavily. The department soon had the blaze extinguished.

Later in the evening there was a call from outside the city limits. Chief Lynch went out to Gilbert Street with the hose and ladder truck, but all the firemen could do was to see a barn that was on the property. The house was built by Sammy Avis and now occupied by Mr. Lucas. No one was at home at the time of the fire and it is not known how the blaze started. The house was completely destroyed but the local department, by careful work, saved the rest of the buildings on the property. As they could not use streams of water the members of the department deserve much credit for saving the outer buildings.

Immediate development of the property on Dowdall, situated in the centre of the rich pitchblore metal finds, is to be undertaken by the company. Dowdall island is in Echo Bay, close to the east shore of Great Bear Lake. The other main finds are situated on the mainland. Valuable deposits of uranium and radium and silver, with some copper, have been found there.

ONLY LIBERAL GOVERNMENT MEETS ATTACK

Receives Most Impressive Mandate it Ever Received

11 YRS. PREMIER

Taschereau Finds Self With Entire Cabinet But One Back

(By H. M. Peters, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Que., Aug. 26.—The only Liberal Government in the Dominion of Canada yesterday repulsed what was regarded as a critical attack and came through with the most impressive mandate it has ever received from the electorate.

Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec since 1920, led the Liberal forces to victory in which 79 members of his party were elected as against 11 Conservatives. The Premier's position not only failed to increase its representation in the Provincial assembly, but its leader, Mayor Camillien Houde, of Montreal, was defeated in Ste. Marie and St. James, both Montreal seats.

Not a single representative of the Labor or Independent candidates secured election and several lost their deposits. Gains and losses in old seats were almost evenly divided but the Liberal party captured five new seats created by the last redistribution of constituencies and another from the Labor Maisonneuve from labor, increased their representation in the legislature by 6 members. At dissolution there were 75 Liberal seats although four of these were vacant owing to deaths and appointments to the Bench. Of the Conservatives held 11, the same number they will have in the new legislature, while William Tremblay held the Maisonneuve labor member.

The Premier again finds himself with his entire cabinet with the exception of Hon. Gordon W. Scott, whom he had chosen to represent the English minor ity in the ministry as provincial treasurer. Mr. Scott went down to defeat before the veteran C. B. Gault, Conservative member for St. George's, Montreal, for more than 20 years.

ABDUCTS CHILDREN IN STOLEN PLANE

Independence, Cal., Aug. 25.—A house painter, driven to desperation by domestic troubles, took out on a wild flight from Bishop in a stolen airplane yesterday, carrying with him the two children a court had taken from his custody. As they could not use streams of water the members of the department deserve much credit for saving the outer buildings.

The man, Henry Billingsley, 40, of Los Angeles, snatched children from their mother's home while she was at work.

That night, after many hours of search, the plane was found abandoned on the desert floor. Near Lone Pine 16 miles south of Independence. The stolen plane was wrecked as Billingsley brought the ship to earth.

Billingsley's experience was another blow to his self-confidence when he received flying instruction at Bishop from the man in whose plane he fled.

When the plane was located, there was no indication of the direction taken by Billingsley and the children.

Manitoba Asks Whole Cost of Age Pensions

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 26.—(By The Canadian Press)—The Manitoba Government will request the Dominion Administration to assume the whole cost of old age pensions within the Province this year, Premier John Bracken declared last night. He stated his Government was unable to finance 25 percent of the scheme because of crop failure and reveals that Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Municipal Affairs, was instructed to ask the Dominion Government to assume the whole cost when he presents Manitoba's case tomorrow to the Dominion Labor at Ottawa, probably.

RURAL ISSUES TO BE SOLVED

"Put Hand to Plow," Says Premier As Means of Solution

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—"You must put your own hands to the plow and solve this problem for yourselves, by raising greater crops and finer live stock that will command the markets of the world," was the advice to people of rural Ontario given by Hon. George S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, in his speech at the Coliseum here Monday by which he formally opened the 40th forty-fourth Central Canada Exhibition.

The Premier dwelt on difficulties facing rural Ontario, due to education, and secondary education in particular, and on good roads. It had occasioned a burden from which had grown a desire to reduce taxation. It behooved the residents of rural districts to fight with their municipal representatives at a time like this, however, Mr. Henry said.

After reviewing the government's continued efforts in the past to make electrical power available in rural districts, the Premier stated that this year the Hydro would construct an additional 300 miles of rural power line, doubling its mileage. A flat service charge not to exceed $30 a year was made possible to the farmer through government assistance in this development, without which a prohibitive charge of $100 a year at least would have to be made, he added.

They will be laid off Wednesday night and a new gang will continue the work Thursday morning. 11-Pound Salmon Trout Big Job For Contractor

Mr. Walter Patterson is not greatly surprised when he lands a big contract—but he used to this, but he was surprised when he caught an extra large fish last Saturday. Mr. Patterson returned Monday from Long Lake, where he had been passing a short holiday and he brought the big fish home with him. The salmon trout was caught for its kind and yesterday it attracted considerable attention in the window of Green's meat market, where it was on exhibit.

Mr. Patterson says: "I was trolling for bass Saturday morning on the lake in front of McCauley's hotel, using spoon and line and with casting plug, when suddenly the spoon he had a strike on my line and a great fight began at once. I'm sure it was great sport — had nothing to use in landing the fish and it gave me an exciting time for twenty minutes. When finally landed the fish proved to be a salmon trout and when weighed it went eleven pounds.

This is an exceptional weight for salmon trout, six or seven pounds is considered large.

I certainly enjoyed my holiday and would like to have a battle with the brother who got the fish I caught or some relative of the same size."

Mr. Patterson says the bass fish he is confident at Loon Lake, he caught two just before leaving for home Monday which went four and four and a half pounds.

FEAR DAIRYING WILL SUFFER

Forty to Fifty Per Cent Reduction in Milk Flow Expected

"Unless this part of the province gets relief in the way of rain in the near future there will be from 40 to 50 per cent cut in the output of milk," was the statement issued by J. L. Irwin, Dairy Produce Grader for the Dominion Government's Department of Agriculture, today. This is especially noticed in the southern part of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and the result will be that all dairy products will be affected if the present drought continues.

At present this expected decline has not been noticeable but is expected by the dairy producers in the very near future. The cheesemakers are at present not affected but they naturally are very anxious about the future of their output if rain does not soon come. In the northern dairying district has not had a real good substantial down fall of rain in some weeks past and not naturally the farmers of this district are having considerable trouble watering their stock. Some of the nearby farmers in this district are forced to draw water for some distance in order to water their stock. The district in general needs rain and the outcome of their crops also depends on a down fall of water in the very near future.

Kaye Don May Use Clear Lake For Trials

Peterboro, Aug. 26.—(By The Canadian Press)—Clear Lake, near here, is being considered by Kaye Don and Gar Wood as a possible scene for attempts at New World speed records with the Miss England II and the Miss America IX. It was hinted today in the presence of J. D. Vance, a mechanic on Gar Wood's staff, at South Beach.

"We do believe that Clear Lake presents as fast a course as any that can be had, and that there is no need for Kaye Don to go to Africa or South America if he wants to try for a record," said Percy McClure, Secretary of the Association.

'BANKERS ARE EVER WRONG'

Bernard Shaw's Plea for Shorter Hours of Work

London, Aug. 25.—George Bernard Shaw, suggesting remedies for the financial crisis which has gripped Britain most give up hope of restoring her one-time prosperous foreign trade and concentrate on her home market.

"It looks for the moment as if the crisis were brought about by bankers," he said, "but bankers are always wrong. They are always afraid of foreign complications and foreign trade. They are still looking forward to an impossible restoration of our old trade relations with foreigners. We should abandon all hope of a recovery of our old foreign trade and turn also the matter in our minds to consume and produce at home and encourage imagining we are ruined when exports and imports fall off."

The redistribution of work and money is the way to solve at once the problem of unemployment," he said, "and as soon as the redistribution of leisure which is inevitably produced by mechanization."

"At present instead of shortening the hours of labor—the obvious thing to do," he continued, "we get long hours for the employed and increased and increasing number of parasitic people. We try to keep them alive on the dole. We should abolish the dole and substitute employment for everybody in the working day to four hours if necessary.

"The problem of unemployment is grappled with, until bankers and others drop their delusion that the world isn't going on as it did in the nineteenth century, there really is no use in talking seriously. We will be driven from expedient to crisis and desperate expedients to keep up the pound sterling."

When asked if the turn of events had surprised him, he replied emphatically: "Not a bit. I am not only a Socialist who understands. The bankers are just beginning now. It's been going so for fifty years and they have brought about the present condition. One doesn't know from hour to hour what the next breakdown will be."

Mayor Gives Lie To Police Officer

Cobalt, Ont., Aug. 25—Evidence of a Provincial Police Officer given in court here last Saturday, was branded as an "unadulterated deliberate lie," by Mayor Robert Hunter, during the regular meeting of the town council last night.

The reference was to sworn testimony given by Provincial Officer Stromberg, who told the Magistrate that he had heard, while watching the home of P. F. Sutherland, a guild inside the house tell Sutherland the Mayor had just come in and had said that Police Officers were around. Sutherland and his wife both were charged with brewing and illegally selling liquor and was convicted.

WILL ROGERS IN EVENING TOGS AT BELLE THEATRE

"Young As You Feel," the long heralded Will Rogers' comedy drama, in which the popular screen star and Comedian is seen for the first time as a model of what the well dressed man should wear, opens tomorrow at the Belle Theatre, for two days, Matinee daily.

The story deals with the quite human and logical predicament of a kind and wealthy widower who finds his two willful sons slowly getting beyond his control. They also listely refuse to share the responsibilities of his large meat packing business, but are very willing to spend his profits on their social and sports activities.
